they may be turned. Although it may be desirable to strain the very highest degree of science in every department undertaken by the student, slight observations upon any thing new or striking which meets the eye of a traveller, are of importance in directing the attention of more experichted persons to the subject. The periodicals of India afford great facilities to those who desire to make the fruits of their researches known. Vast quantities of the most useful information are to be found in these valuable productions, as yet almost wholly supported by amateur contributors, who neither writing for money, nor ambitious of shining by their style, communicate the results of their experience in an easy unaffected manner, very much to the purpose. While colonial politics, parties, and factions, are, with the exception of very few interesting instances, looked upon in England as complete travesties of the grand game of life, the mighty warfare which decides the destines of the world; the great value of the services performed by those who employ their pens in the development of the natural resources of the country, are universally acknowledged.

Sporting in India opens so many avenues for amusement, that although not maccompanied by danger of various kinds, it is scarcely possible to withhold encouragement to a pursuit which is at once so exciting and so absorbing in its nature. Notwithstanding the deleterious description of the atmosphere to which the pursuers of the savage game of an Indian jungle are frequently exposed, the malaria, which sometimes renders the air so thick and so strongly impregnated with disagreeable odours, as to be scarcely respirable, the excitement often suffices to preserve the party thus situated from any injurious effect. Many persons of course break down, and retire from the field with the seeds of a fatal disease, or a constitution which never can recover the shock; but others escape, and it need hardly be said, that after undergoing so severe a process of acelimization, the worst dangers of the climate may be braved with impunity. Fishing is a far more perilous amusement than hunting, it must be carried on at seasons of the year when frequent changes of temperature occur, to which the exposure is very injurious. Long intervals may clapse without producing the pleasing agitation of the mind which renders the body insensible to external sensations, and it is almost impossible to avoid the contact of wet clothing, since it is necessary to wade through pools, and to stand perhaps knee deep in the water. The rod has not so many votaries in India as the ritle, still the angler pursues his sport in many of the streams; delighting more particularly in the capture of the Mahasseer, a splendid fish which is said to afford as much excitement as the capture of salmon in the rivers of Scotland or Ireland. As nothing in India can be so detrimental as idleness, and as an amusing pursuit is not always incompatible with the highest scientific attainments, those who have any talent for the stage will do well to cultivate it. There is no record in India to show that the slightest disadvantage has ever resulted to those gentlemen who have taken up the sock or the buskin. In fact, some of the most distinguished names in the country might be adduced to prove that success upon the boards has not been prejudicial to the morals, or injurious to the prospects of the votaries of Thalia, or her more sombre sister. actor is a personage of infinite importance all over India; and one Governor-General was said to have given an appointment in Calcutta, for the purpose of retaining the Keeley of the Chowringhee Theatre, at the Presidency. It was well bestowed in other respects, and no individual has had reason to regret the motive should it in reality have been the one assigned. In the Upper Provinces it is sometimes found to be impossible to get up a play without the assistance of some neighbouring star, who travels perhaps seventy or a hundred miles without fee or reward, save that which is conferred by the applause bestowed upon him for the purpose of exhibiting for a single night. The female characters in India, being with the exception of Calcutta, where two or three actresses are engaged, personated by the most ladylike looking youths of the station, nearly all the objections urged against amateur acting are removed. It brings the parties engaging in it into female society, which is always desirable in India, for youths who feel, or fancy that they have few qualities to recommend them to the companiouship of the ladies, are apt to indulge their slivness, until it degenerates into rusticity. They begin to be afraid of encountering the respectable portion of the sex, and gradually acquire pernicious habits, or enter into connexions which prove destructive to them through life. Some young men there are who never mix with European ladics at all, others may be seen in clusters in remote corners of ball-rooms, auxious, but not daring, to approach them; these shy youths should always be encouraged, since in no part of the world can female influence be more beneficially exercised. While advocating rational employment of every kind to the cadet, he should not in other pursuits forget those strictly belonging to his profession. The study of military jurisprudence is one especially to be recommended; a high degree of attainment will qualify the party for the office of judge advocate, while no individual liable to be called upon to sit upon a Court-martial, should be ignorant of its leading principles, an ignorance which in many instances has led to the most flagrant acts of injustice.

ON THE EAST INDIA COMPANY'S RATES OF EXCIIANGE.

By a late Parliamentary Paper it appears, that in the year 1836-7 the Court of Directors drew bills on the several Governments of India, to the extent of £2,042,232, which is about one-half the amount of the annual supply from India, and that the rates of exchange on these bills were from 2s. per sicea rupee to 1s. 111d. per Company's rupee, the latter being equal to 2s. 1d. per sicca rupec. At this time the Indian Governments took bills on London at six months' sight, at from 2s. 2d. per sicca rupce, to the same for the Company's rupee, which is equal to about 2s. 34d. per sicca rupee, at which rates above one million sterling was remitted to the Court of Directors. The rate of exchange in London, varying from 2s. to 2s. 1d., averages 2s. 01d. per sicca rupce, and if to this we add the interest for the difference of time, it will be equal to a rate of exchange in Calcutta of 2s. 21d. per sicca rupee; and the India rates of exchange varying from 2s. 2d. to 2s. 3\frac{1}{3}d. the average thereof is nearly 2s. 3d. per sicca rupee; the result of the whole is that the Company's remittances from India, for above three millions sterling, have been made at rates averaging 2s. 2½d. to 2s. 3d. per sicca rupce.

While the East India Company are receiving this high remittances it is not a little surprising that they give sicca rupee on bills drawn by the Bengal Government for in public loans, and the consequence is, that many of the proprietors ment paper who reside in Europe, are compelled to employ agents to receive their interest in cash, and then remit the amount in private bills; it is also a very great hardship on the few persons who still continue to take Company's bills, to get only 1s. 11d. for the rupee, when others are receiving 2s. 3d. or 2s. 4d., and when the Company themselves are receiving on their large amount of remittances nearly as high a rate. The Company estimate of all bills to be drawn from India on the Court of Directors for 1837-8 is only £240,000, and it is presumed that only a small part of this amount can be interest bills at the exchange of 1s. 11d. so that there cannot be many persons who are injured by this low rate of exchange, but it must be borne in mind that those few are probably the most helpless and most in want of protection, widows, or others unacquainted with matters of business, or otherwise unable to employ an agent to receive and remit the amount of their interest. But besides the injury donc to these persons, the inconvenience is great to the more numerous class who by the present regulations are forced to employ agents, and who would prefer taking Company's bills at anything like a fair rate of exchange. By forcing all these persons to take private bills the Directors increase the competition for such bills, and so far it keeps down the rate of exchange and injures themselves; whereas if they would consent to grant their own bills at one penny in the rupee under the rate they themselves receive, for all interest due to persons residing in Europe, there would not only be a certain profit to that extent on all such bills, but they would morcover diminish the competition for private bills, which would tend to keep up the rate of exchange. The proprietors of the Indian loans who reside in Europe have a right to expect that every facility will be given to them in the way of remittance, which is not prejudicial to the interests of the Company, and in this case, so far from being prejudicial the measure recommended would be advantageous in a two-fold degree. On former occasions the Court of Directors have consulted the convenience of the Loan proprietors, one proof of which may be given as it is connected with this subject, and refers to the origin of the rate of 1s. 11d. at which the interest bills are At that time the current rate of exchange in Calcutta, was from 1s. 10d. to 2s. per sicca rupce, and when the Directors gave orders that the interest bills should be drawn at the exchange of 1s. 11d. it was intended to be, and was in reality, a benefit to the Loan proprietors, inasmuch as they received Company's bills at the same rates as were current for private bills; it was also deemed necessary to provide that the bills should be granted only to those Loan proprietors who were actually residing in Europe, a convincing proof that it was considered to be for their advantage, but either were they compelled to take the bills, nor were the Directors bound to grant them after a certain period should they think proper to discontinue them. The arrangement was of a temporary nature, for the convenience of the Loan proprietors who resided in Europe, and although circumstances have so greatly altered since then, no alteration has been made in the rate of exchange, the subject seems to have escaped attention, and the benefit originally conferred has long ceased to exist. When the rate of exchange for bills was fixed at 1s. 11d. it was a very fair rate, and the do not appear to have contemplated any profits to the Company transactions, but only to accommodate the Loan proprietors who resided in Europe; that rate is now a very unfair one and it is submitted to, only by a few unfortunates, who, from ignorance or inability have no other means of obtaining their interest, while all those who are placed in more fortunate circumstances are enabled to get 2s. 3d. to 2s. 4d. for the rupee—a difference of 17 to 20 per cent. on the year's income. Be it remembered also that some of these unfortunates have lately suffered a reduction in the rate of their interest, which is now only 4 per cent. on a good part of the loans; under these circumstances, it is peculiarly requisite that every facility should be granted for remitting the interest at a fair rate of exchange, and as this may be effected, not only without injury to the Company but with positive advantage, it is to be hoped that the principle of the former regulation will be carried out, and brought to meet the altered state of the case.

ON THE TRADE OF THE UPPER INDUS, OR DERAJAT. BY CAPTAIN BURNES.

The country on the right bank of the Indus, below the salt range, till that river is joined by the waters of the Punjab, is known by the name of Derajat. It is so designated from the two principal towns in the tract, Dera Ghazee Khan, and Dera Ismael Khan. Derajat being the Arabic plural of the word Dera. The lower part of the tract bears the local name of Sinde, and the upper that of Damun (or border), from its bordering on the mountains of Sooleeman. The country, itself is flat, and in many places fertile, particularly in the vicinity of the two Deras; but to the westward of the river, even at a distance of a few miles, there are no wells, and the soil is entirely dependent on rain, and water from the hills, without which there is no crop. On the opposite bank of the river in Leia, the Indus overflows to the east, and the land, which is exceedingly rich, yields heavy crops, and is known by the name of "Cuchee." From Leia, the great ferry of Kaheeree conducts the merchant beyond the Indus into Derajat; and as the mountains are crossed by the caravan route that leads to Cabool and Candahar, and as it is here that the greatest of the Indian caravans assemble before passing to the west, the Derajat is invested with a high degree of commercial importance.

From Calcutta, by Lucknow, Delhi, Hansee, and Bhawulpoor: from Bombay by Palee, Becaueer, Bhawulpoor and Multan: from Umrutsir by Jung and Leia, and from Dhera Ghazee Khan itself on the south, by Bhawnlpoor; all these routes join at the small town of Drabund, about thirty miles west of Dera Ismael Khan. At this point commences the well known road by the Goomul river, to the pass of Goolairee, which is always traversed by the Lohance Afghans, some of them enter the mountains higher up west of Tak, and also by an inferior Pass named "Cheeree," lower down; but all eventually join, about forty-five miles from Drabund. These people are pastoral and migratory, and many of them proceed annually into India to purchase merchandize, and all assemble here in the end of April, their families having wintered on the banks of the Indus, to pass into Khorassan for the summer. They effect this in fixed order by three divisions or "Kirees," which, I believe, simply mean migrations, and these bear the names of Nasseer, Kharoutee, and Mecankhy, which is that of the branches of the tribes conducting them. The first is the most numerous, and, with it, go from 50 to 60,000 head of sheep, but it is with the last that Handoo merchants and foreigners generally travel. The extensive nature of the traffic will be best explained by observing, that the Custom House books shew, that 5,140 camels laden with merchandize passed up this year, exclusive of those carrying the tents and baggage of the people, these are rated at the enormous number of 24,000 camels, the Nasscers having 17,000 the Meeankhy 14,000, and the Kharoutce 3,000. The tract which they pass leads, by broken rugged roads, or rather water courses of the Goomul, through the wild and mountainous country of the Wuzeerees, but the Lohanees have arms and numbers to protect their property, and that of strangers. They all reach Cabool and Candahar by the middle of June, in sufficient time to despatch their investments to Bokhara and Herat, and in the end of October as winter approaches, they descend with the same arrangements into the plain of the lindus, bringing, horses, dyes, frmits, and productions of Cabool, in return for the goods of India and Britain. The channel of trade is ancient, for in the year A.D. 1505, we find the Emperor Baber campaigning in the Derajat, and stating that he had fallen in with Lohance incicliants, and phindered them of "a great quantity of white cloth, aromatic drugs, sugar (both caudied and in powder), and horses," which are the very articles of trade in these days, though 332 years have since elapsed. It is due to the Emperor to state that, if he then plundered, in his own dafficulties, he afterwards clothed the Lohance merchants in dresses of honor, when firmly established on the throne of Cabool.

In a neighbourhood so advantageously situated, merchants export the native productions of the soil with profit, and the manufacturer converts them, and the imports from other countries into cloth, which accompanies these and the foreign goods that pass through it in transit, Dera Ghazee Khan itself, is a manufacturing town, but it is surpassed by Multan, and Bhawulpoor, which are in its ucighbourhood; on these two marts I shall be silent, as their commerce has engaged the attention of Lientenant Leech, whose reports will convey every, and the fullest information of Dera Ghazee Khan: I need only say that at one time, its trade with the west, and even with the east was brisk, and though it does not now exhibit its former prosperity, from the great influx of British goods, its native manufactures are yet healthy and thriving is celebrated for its goodbuddens and duriaces, or, striped and plain silken cloths, which being sought for, and admired, are yet annually exported to Lahore, and to Sinde, and considered to surpass those of every other country. To the east it sends its silks, deriving the raw material from Bokhara, and the west. To the west it sends its cotton, and the greatest of its exported manufactures is coarse white cloth, which is sent to Khorassan, and yet stands its ground with English cloth, as far as demand goes, though far its inferior in quality. The demand for British calicoes has decreased by one half this year, on this account last year the sales effected amounted to 50,000 rupees, and for this, it is under 24,000. Chintzes of different descriptions, with soosec, bafta, and some coarse loongees, complete the list. There are no woollen manufactures. The value of all these may amount to about one and a half, or two lacs of rupees, and the greater part is exported. A coarse kind of cutlery, swords, scissors, knives (such as are used by sailors) is made at Dera Ghazee Khan, and exported. The bazaar consists of about 1,600 shops; 530 of which are engaged in weaving and selling cloth. The town has a prosperous appearance, which is altogether attributed to the protection of Monsieur Ventura, who was lately in charge of this district. It may have a population of 25,000 people. It is said to have been built by a Belooch about 300 years since, and its name, long fluctuated between "Ghazee Khan" and "Hajee Khan." It was completely subject to the crown of Cabool, and fell into the liands of the Sheiks, about twenty-five years ago. They farmed it to Bhawul Khan, who had no interest in protecting it, and his officers were guilty of gross extortion; but since it was resumed in 1832, it has greatly recovered itself.

The country around Dera Ghazee Khan is very rich; the town is pleasantly situated in a flat country, about four miles from the Indus, and surrounded by gardens and lofty trees, among which the date predominates. It is said indeed, that there are 80,000 date trees around Dera. By far the most valuable production of the place is indigo, 2,000 maunds of which were this year exported to the west. I am informed that this is the full resource of the district. best sort now sells for sixty-five rupees per maund, the next for fifty, and the most inferior for thirty-two, so that this export alone amounts to about one lac of rupees in value. The dye is inferior to that procured in Bhawul Khan's country, but it is cheaper, and has a ready sale in Cabool, and Bokhara, besides being nearer at hand. The cotton of Dera Ghazee Khan being soft in staple, 25,000 maunds are procurable, it is at present exported. Sugar is cultivated, but in small quantities, and only of late years. The place is rich in grain, the wheat and barley are superior, but the rice is red and indifferent. The price of grain in June, 1837, was as follows, the currency being that of Shooja Ool Moolk, and much the same as the Company's rupee, and the maund as that of Shikarpoor already described :-Rice per maund of 40 seers, 80 rupees to a seer, 3 rupees; Rice, 2nd sort 12 maund, 2 to 13 ditto; Wheat 11 maund, 1 ditto; Gram 70 seers, 1 ditto; Dal, or mohree, 2 maunds, I ditto; Moong, or mash, 50 seers, I ditto; Gliee per maund, 81 ditto; Oil per ditto, 4 ditto; Salt per ruja, or piece of 1 maund 25, 3\frac{3}{4} ditto; Native Salt 2 maunds, 1 ditto; Goor or Molasses, 3\frac{1}{4} ditto; Sugar Candy per maund, 16 ditto.

Under Cabool, Dera Ghazee Khan yielded a yearly revenue of about 12 lacs of rupees, it now produces  $8\frac{1}{2}$  or 9 lacs, and that only within these two or three years. The country which gives this, includes the district of Sungur on the north, and Hunand Dajel on the south, also Bachee across the Indus. It is farmed to the same person who is now Governor of Multan, and it is improving daily. The number of villages around Dera Ghazee Khan is exceedingly numerous; they are nearly all peopled by Mahomedans, and in the town of Dera Ghazee Khan the two tribes are about equal, there being in it, 125 Hindoo temples, and 110 mosques, great and small, every description inclusive.

The duties leviable in Dera Ghazee on all sales of clothence is pues per rupee, which is paid at the Custom House (Chubocha) immediately after the transaction. This is called the old tax (Mensool guideence) and paid by citizens; foreigners pay double.

Dera Ghazee Khan communicates with all the countries around it by good roads, except those to the west, where it is necessary to qualify that term; a list of the marts or places of note may not be useless, and I may prefix to it that goods of every description, quitting Dera Ghazea Khan, pay an ad valorem duty of 2 per cent. viz., to Asnee, Hunund, Cutco Gaudava, Mitthen, Shikarpoor, Bhawulpoor, Khyrpoor, Ullah Yar, Hyderabad, Multan, Lahore, and Umritsir, all merchandize, whether cloth or groceries, taxed in this manner. But since the most important route in this line is that of the great caravans to Cabool, 1 shall particularize the duties there leviable. At the outset, the first charge is as above. Ad valorem, 21 per cent.; at Sungur, per manul, 13 annas; at Kot Tuga, per camel, 2 rupees; at Drabund, ditto, 2 ditto; at Tilk Sewaree Khan, ditto, 2 ditto; at Sooleeman Khuel ditto, 1 ditto; at Ghuznec, per camel, 8 ditto; at the Gate of Cabool "Gooshie" or car tax, per camel, 2 ditto. Landed at the caravansaries of Cabool, one in forty is taken in pieces of cloth; indigo and groceries are compounded for at 20 rupecs per camel load. This is the whole duty of the road. In effecting sales, a brokerage of 1 per cent. is paid, and another rupee is expended in caravansary hire and porterage. On returning from Cabool, the duties are as follow: -- on quitting the city, Ad valorem, 11 per cent.; at Drabund per mun of every kind (if to any but a Shikarpooree, the charge is 10 rupees), 6 rupees; at Dera Ghazee Khan per mun if advanced from this, 10 annas; at Bhawul Khan's frontier per camel, 3 rupees; at Bhawulpoor (though the usual route here is viá Multan,) 3 to 55 per cent. Nothing therefore is more complicated in appearance, than these duties; and one is surprised at the novel mode of weighing cloth and levying duties accordingly. The Hindoo merchant of Shikarpoore, it will be seen, has a great advantage over the Mahomedan, which arises from its being advisable to give encouragement to a great The duties in conveying goods to Khorassan are heavier than in returning, probably from the greater value of the articles; the expenses of an investment to and from Dera Ghazce Khan to Cabool and Candahar, are rated at 35 per cent., the profit in excess is calculated at 25 per cent, and this is generally realized. From Dera Ghazee Khan to Drabund, 90 coss, the hire of a camel is 30 rupees; from that to Cabool, it depends upon the supply, varying from 20 to 30 rupces per head.

Dera Ismael Khan is in these parts next in importance to Dera Ghazee, but it is only a third of its size, and labours under disadvantages from its position. About 12 years ago, the town was washed into the Indus, and on a new site, about three miles from the river, the inhabitants have again fixed themselves. Till lately the place was held by a Mahomedan Chief, who laid out the new town with order and regularity, having wide streets and a good bazaar, but the Sheiks possessed themselves of Dera Ismael a year ago, and are not likely to work out his plans of improvement; as yet the houses are built of sun-burned brick, and the town has a deserted look, but it is said to be a place of much stir and bustle in the winter when the Afghans return from Khorassan to its neighbourhood. There is a large caravantary in it, where they transact their business and dispose of much of their goods, for Dera Ismael is their bazaar town. It contains 518 shops, but there are no native manufactures here, as in the Lower Dera. The wool of the Lohanee sheep is not sold here, but in Cabool, where an agent, if despatched, might procure the article in abundance, and, at the same time, the means of transporting it. The transit of coarse white cloth from the Punjab through Dera Ismael to Drabund, is great, amounting to no less than 3,000 camel loads a year. Each package contains about 500 yards of cloth, the guz and English yard being the same, so that we have an export of 1,800,000 yards of this fabric. It is manufactured at Meengana, Jung, &c., also at Rohan, and might be made in Britain. Most of these goods are crossed at the ferry opposite Dera Ismael, and pay much heavier duties than lower down;  $2\frac{1}{4}$  rupees being exacted on every maund of weight, while 7 to 10 annas is the demand at Kaheeree, which readily accounts for the caravans crossing at that ferry. revenues of Dera Ismael Khan amount to  $4\frac{1}{4}$  lacs of rupees per annum, of this 2 lacs and 8,000 are derived from the taxes and town duties from Kcheeree South to Ecsa Khyi North, and the rest from the lands subject to Dera Ismael Khan. Gram and the necessaries of life are more expensive than in the Lower Dera, though supplies are also received by the river from Murwut, which is a grain country.

THE EAST INDIA SLAVE TRADE.

and their sales of the sales were the sales and the sales are

(Second Article.)

It is the work of the "experimentalists," not of us, to excite and fifet the public mind with this most inauspicious of subjects. Why so many efforts to rescue themselves from odium? Why such arduous exercise of all the faculties of invention to free themselves from reproach? If the project indeed be nothing more than "an importation of free labourers," is it necessary to bore public attention with such lengthened details, so often repeated, of "contracts," and "wages," and "permits," and "special acts of Government?" Is it necessary to put contrivance itself out of joint by way of bringing forward arguments in its favour? If the speculation were like other speculations, just in its object, allowable and unexceptionable in a moral view in its consequences, would its patrons toil with such unrelaxed energy to prove that all was so fair and so honourable, so very honest? Will the least suspecting judgment be able to resist the influences of suspicion, at such proceeding as this? or the most ingenuous forbear the exclamation, "why such ostentatious display of motives which you say imputation cannot reach?" For ourselves, we have but one opinion on the subject. From the first we were startled at the very sound of the speculation—a speculation, be it remembered, devised by Slave Owners in the Colonies to augment the number of labourers on their Plantations—and whatever our earlier impression, all subsequent data that have come to our knowledge have come only to confirm that earlier impression, and to force us to erreive yet more undeniably, the unjustifiableness of the project in itself and the wild mischief with which it is identified in its consequences. We entered upon the discussion, likewise, with no party-prejudices; without the least clue to the discovery whether it originated with Whig or Tory. We interpreted it according to its acceptation in a moral and political point of view; and we arrived at the conclusion, under the most calm and unbiassed course of reasoning, that it was the Slave Trade revived—the Slave Trade under new appearances—the Slave Trade in regions whither its accursed influence had not before extended—the Slave Trade under the most specious of cloaks, viz. commercial enterprise. And we find that in that conclusion we were not peculiar; that the Government itself had arrived at the same conclusion, in asseveration of which is the despatch of the Head of the Colonial Department to Sir J. Carmichael Smyth, under date of the 31st October, 1836. In that despatch occurs the following surprising paragraph—surprising as coupled with the recollection of the sanction given by the Government to the measure, and yet more surprising still, from the wilful contradiction, confusion, or miscontruction afforded by the Minister to his own sentiments. "It should be an essential part of such a law," says this despatch, "to except from its operation any person brought as an apprentice from Africa. If, under that name, labourers should be recruited on any part of the African Coast, the consequence would inevitably be a direct encouragement to the Slave Trade!!" This, from the Minister's own lips, that, in Africa it would be the Slave Trade; although, we grant, that what it is, or would become, in Asia, he disdains to remember. But it is impossible that we, or rather the public, should forget. If, in Africa, says the Government, it will inevitably result in the Slave Trade, and here we pause for an answer to the question, "what else is it in the East?—what are the circumstances which shall convert a Slave Trade in Africa from exhibiting the same horrific features in the East?" We pause for a reply. It is preposterous to urge, as if in anticipation of this question, that in Asia the tribes, from amongst whom the deportations are made, are at war with the Anglo-Indian Government. This is a strange argument wherewith to bolster up the character of the project. Yet, stranger still is it that as an argument in its favour it proceeds from a section of the press valued throughout Europe for its mines of Oriental lore, and respected by every class of writers for at least the mildness of its tone, whatever may be the fixedness of its dogmas. The Asiatic Journal has enlisted itself a partizan in this question, and without for a moment impugning the sincerity of its advocacy, or flinging back the stigma which with less than its usual courtesy it assails the adversaries of the scheme, we venture to express a regret, that it should have been prevailed upon to sacrifice so much valuable space to so derogatory and weak, and sinister a purpose. True is it, as the writer attests, that "the general notion here is, that this scheme is a species of kidnapping." This without a doubt is the impression throughout the country; an unpression on every Englishman's mind who has thought about it; and it is the very universality of the "notion" that forms one of the strongest presumptions of its accuracy. But it was a strange method of self-convicting it in error, to test the merits of the scheme by the facts adduced in the sequel. "These Dhangars," says the encomiast, "are a race of Kholes, of these men who six or seven years back were at open war with the Indian Government, whose atrocities in the Rainghur and Chota Nagpore district called down upon them the severe vengeance of our Government?" This is the statement made by the writer in question, and from which he deduces an opinion of the beneficiality of the importation project, and moreover with which he seeks to disabuse the public mind in this country of the notion that the scheme is one of kidnapping! but could an argument more hostile to the purpose have been resorted to? If these Dhangars are foes to the Indian Government, is this a ground of inference that their interests had a chance of enhanced protection from the Government? On the contrary, will not the Government grasp at the occasion of ridding itself of a class of subjects difficult to govern, and in fact too turbulent to be kept in awe? and this, in fairness, is the true exposition of the casc. An insurrection breaks out in the Hill Districts, a ship arrives at Calcutta in demand of "free labourers"—to quell, or we should say, to starve the insurrection, what so politic in the Government as to issue its "permits," without limit, for the embarkation of these self same "free labourers." It cannot be said there is anything in the least strained in this hypothesis. It is obviously the natural and instantaneous inference. More to the purpose of the experimentalists would it have been to shew, that these Dhangars were under the especial protection of the authorities. As it is, a new argument against the project presents itself; except, indeed, in the sense that the preliminary argument against it being invincible, an array of minor arguments are like supernumeraries on the national lists—as well done without. The preliminary argument against it is, that exposed as the far-stretching coasts of Asia are to every attempt of crimping and fraud, it is impossible to assign limits to the cruel designs really capable of being reduced to practice. It is easy to talk of special acts of Government and police supervision, but while the necessary precautions may in one part be acted up to with rigorous precision, at the next, a ship may have weighed anchor, freighted with a cargo of unhappy wretches, to whom no Government protection had reached, nor, owing to the difficulties of meeting the several circumstances of the contingency, could by any human practicability have been made to reach. It is sufficient that the scheme is liable to a single abuse of the kind to expose it to the loudest reprobation. Commercial enterprise, the love of gain, even the desires of avarice, may be deserving of encouragement within certain bounds, but to transstep those bounds, to place at their mercy the destiny of a single human being, in the question of his freedom or its converse, is as clearly beyond legitimate ends as that there is a moral, and an immoral, in human actions. In our foregoing paper, a paper compiled with infinite attention to the verification of facts, we demonstrated, not only the possibility, but actuality of the nefarious proceedings which had already taken place. We cited evidence of undoubted authority to prove, that not only were innumerable wretches decoyed from their homes and put on ship board, some in a state of stupor from intoxication, others with their senses deadened by narcotics administered by crimps, but we also shewed that others who had gone apparently with their own consent, bewailed the calamities which beset them on the foreign shore, whither they were carried, and from whence at any risks they were ready to rescue themselves. But we have been assailed, as was so natural we should be, under the pretence that we rad magnified minor circumstances, and distorted fair ones. We deny the charge realmly and without passion we repel the charge; and doing so, the assailant to produce one instance wherein our statements were not substantially doonments of official derivation, or a single position we distribute in by reference to averments made by eyc-witnesses of the events or scenes, for whose reality their honour is pledged all things there is nothing like the inveteracy of projudice whom incited to the rescue by rapacity and sordid endeavours. For the pleaders on the opposite side, it is obvious the have nothing to gain by the triumph or defeat of their cause—at the same time nothing to lose. Their word may be taken, for, at least, it can have nothing of self-interest: but it is not so with the champions of the question; a subject of personal concern is embarked in the failure or success of the plan; and while the opponent of the importation scheme stands unsustained, save by the abstract force of right against wrong, the advocate for the measure comes forward stimulated by whatever the prospect of individual loss or aggrandisement may inspire. We confess that in so far we are an interested party as the rights of India are concerned. We avow ourselves the assertors of those rights; and at a glance we discovered that the scheme in question had for its consequences an invasion of those rights, balanced by whatever of profit to the invaders. We have no wish to go over ground formerly traversed; there exists not here the least necessity of shewing that a contract-system it is not; that measures provident against the abuses with which it is fraught, are not practicable unless at a cost which would anticipate and out-weigh the objects of its undertaking; that in its first intention it is a fraud against the act of the twenty millions advanced towards a specific object by the public of this country; that it is a gross injustice to the Negro; or, that in reference to India, that it is an injury virtually meditated against the whole of its population, in the sense that its population is redundant to the extent of the non-application of capital to the developement of its industry, but with capital to such object applied, not only that it is not redundant, but that its reduction would become to her a decided grievance. Neither would it now be necessary to recal to the reader's attention, the innumerable disadvantages arising in the matter of that deterioration of character the Hindoo inevitably must undergo under the new circumstances of his condition; the moral restraints over stepped in the unavoidable neglect of many of his religious duties—the social ties and obligations superseded by pernicious irregularities of feeling and affection; besides the unhappiness and misery he is the victim of on the score of severity of servitude, disparity of language between himself and master, and hence, the constantly recurring source of misunderstandings and animosities. We see no reason for recapitulating the crowd of adverse fortuities with which the fate of the Indian, it is so easy to foresce, will in every shape be assailed: his state of helplessness and exposure, comparatively with the combined means of power and domination possessed by the capitalist; the inefficiency of any tribunals of justice to adjust his claims in all instances by standard of equity; and more conspicuously the danger that through casualties he is so likely to be led into, and so unable to counteract, he may become involved in a term of servitude from which, from the effects of his poverty, his alieuship, his want of protection in so many ways combined, he shall never be extricated. We say, it would be useless to enter upon a recapitulation of these points of consideration, because they are evident to the mind on me first survey, and which being evident in themselves are beyond the power of any force of sophistry to countervail or annul.

There is an argument broached by the supporters of the question, to the effect of shewing, that the planters resort to the measure in their self-defence against the rise of wages certain to be insisted upon, at the date of emancipation, by the negro. We reply, why not test the point by its own rules? why not allow events to adjust themselves through their own natural process? If all were fair in the latent motives of the planters, they surely would not expose themselves to risks, which at the best were the most superfluous of endeavours. They would argue naturally that wages, like other instances in the sphere of political economy, must inevitably be controlled by their own circumstances; and that when once they rose to a certain elevation, they will have only attained to their just elevation, or must instantly fall to their just level. This would be the view of the planter, if his motives were controlled by reasonable prospects of gain; but from his not confining himself to these prospects his soaring beyond them-it is deducible his calculations of profit have their foundation in sources of inordinate thirst of gain, and are therefore liable to be denounced by every champion of the more enlarged principles of human justice.

We abstain from advancing another argument on the subject. We perceive that without a further exposition of the character of the speculation, it must fail from the very want of inherent force to sustain itself. Justice will avenge herself. The planter will soon be taught that that stage in the social principle is gone past, when individual aggrandisement could base itself on the detriment of the collective body. In future, in commerce, as in politics, the interests of the greater number must be paramount to the over balanced accumulations of wealth of the few. Hence, we derive the assurance, that although flourishing for a moment, although supported by the countenance of Government, and aided by all the machinations of prejudice, in league with avarice, yet that as a speculation of profit to its projectors, the heinous design must become effete—the Slave Trade in the East unavoidably become a dead letter.

STEAM COMMUNICATION WITH INDIA.

To the Editor of the Oriental Herald.

SIR,

In the April number of your Journal there was printed a Correspondence that had passed between Captain Grindlay and myself. By the last India mail I have received the following letter from C. B. Greenlaw, Esq., (the "Secretary to the New Bengal Steam Fund,") accompanied by a request that I would cause the same to be circulated; as it bears so directly upon the question that occasioned the Correspondence alluded to I hope you will allow it to occupy the same position in your forthcoming number, as that did in April last.

I need only further observe, Circuit Grindlay accepted his appointment, that of London Agent to the "New Bengal Steam Rund Committee;" and also received his instructions from Mr. Greeniaw, the writer of the letter here sent: it will now be seen in what manner the New Bengal Steam Fund Committee appreciated the services of Captain Grindlay, who had been specially employed as their paid advocate, to promote the Calcutta Plan for a Comprehensive Steam Communication.

I remain, Sir,

Your obedient Servant, JAMES BARBER.

(To the Editor of the Englishman.)

STEAM COMMUNICATION.—Dear Sir,—You have published in your paper of this morning two sets of correspondence of Lord William Bentinck, and the Home Steam Committee, with Captain Grindlay, which you say are worthy of attention.

With the former I desire to have nothing to do; for the latter I had purposed to take no notice of it, till the receipt of the promised communication from the home committee, which I presume is delayed owing to the non-production by Captain Grindlay, of the accounts, as required in the concluding paragraph of the Committee's letter. As, however, you tell your readers that it is worthy of attention, I will bestow a little on it.

You will perceive that the Home Committee do not venture to impugn the grounds on which the Calcutta Committee withdrew their confidence from Captain Grindlay. Those grounds were, that he had not, up to that time, advocated the extension of the communication to the three presidencies, which, and which alone, he was engaged (and undertook) to do. On the contrary they merely refer to information and personal knowledge as to his services in the cause, which the Calcutta Committee are anxious to promote, beyond what was or could be possessed by them at the dute of their letter of the 1st May, withdrawing their confidence from Captain Grindlay; and again they express their opinion that, when the Calcutta Committee shall become thoroughly aware, as they are, of the zeal and ability with which he has endeavoured to promote the adoption and success of the comprehensive plan of Steam Communication with each presidency, they will be anxious to do full justice to him. I have put Captain Grindlay's case as stated by the Home Committee fairly. I have indeed quoted their very words; and I will now observe that the "information and personal knowledge" of the services rendered by Captain Grindlay, and their "acquaintance" with the "zeal and ability with which he has endeavoured to promote the adoption and success of the comprehensive plan" would seem, each and all, to have arisen subsequently to that conduct of Captain Grindlay. for which the Calcutta Committee withdrew their confidence from him : that—above all—the acts, out of which the Home Committee acquired this information, personal knowledge, and acquaintance, were done and performed by Captain Grindley in the capacity of their executive agent, or secretary, following out their views, not his own. If indeed they can shew that Captain Grandlay, prior to their taking the matter in hand, and employing him as their executive agent and secretary, has independently, on his direct responsibility to the Calcutta Committee. endeavoured, with zeal and ability, to promote the cause of the com- $3 \times 2$ prehensive scheme, then they may fairly charge the Calcutta Committee with having tripled with the interests of that scheme by withdrawing their confidence from him. But this they cannot do. It follows therefore that, since the home committee took the independent advocacy of the cause out of Captain Grindlay's hands, and employed him as their secretary to carry out their views, he may have so acted as to merit the commendations bestowed on him by them; while he may, previously, in his direct relations with the Calcutta Committee, acting on his own judgment, feelings, and views, have advocated a course directly opposed to those of the Calcutta Committee,—views which he undertook to advocate and insist on as well as to those which, since has been under the surveillance of Lord William Benvinck and the Home Committee, he has, as their executive agent, promoted; in short, that, while acting independent of control at home, and directly responsible to the Calcutta Committee, he may have entirely failed in his duty, and more than merited the withdrawal of their confidence; yet, subsequently, when acting under the above influence, and in the position of a subordinate executive agent, he may in that capacity have acted to the satisfaction of his immediate principals; and this I contend is the actual state of the case.

I have not the smallest desire to interfere with the commendations of the Home Committee in respect to his conduct as their subordinate agent. I am quite willing to allow that in his relations with the Home Committee, since they have taken the matter up, he has entitled himself to their praises; but I must observe that, in this case, he could not by possibility have done otherwise. With such men as Lord William Bentinck and Mr. Turton, united in advocating the comprehensive scheme, and employing Captain Grindlay as their secretary, agent, or even colleague, he could not possibly have acted otherwise. His actions in this case are but the reflection of theirs. But I would ask them to point out where, abstracted from them, he has independently used the means at his disposal, with zeal and ability, to advocate the comprehen-Unless they can do this, and show that he has done so up to the period when the Calcutta Committee withdrew their confidence from him,—which they cannot do,—they are themselves unjust in inferring injustice towards him in that withdrawal of confidence!

I now proceed to shew that, while acting independent of the control of Lord William Bentinck and the Home Committee, and directly responsible to the Calcutta Committee, he did entirely fail in his duty, in a degree more than sufficient to warrant their withdrawal of confidence; that not only did he fail in his duty as regards the advocacy of the comprehensive scheme, but that, he actually took on himself to publicly reprehend the conduct of those who employed him.

In July, 1834, a select committee of the House of Commons came to the following resolutions:—

of steam-vessels is an object of great importance both to Great Britain and to India. That it is expedient that measures should be immediately taken for the regular establishment of steam / ommunication from India by the Red Sea. That it be left to His Majesty's Government in conjunction with the East India Company, to consider whether the communication should be in the first extance from Bombay, or from Calcutta, or according to the combined plan suggested by the Bengal Steam

Committee; and that by whatever line the communication be established, the net charge should be divided equally between His Majorty's

Government and the East India Company."

On these resolutions a petition was prepared to the House of Commons, with memorials to the Board of Control and the Court of Directtors praying for the establishment of a Steam Communication by way of the Red Sea "between England and the principal ports of India;" and an appeal was drawn up to the people of England urging the establishment of "Steam Communication between England and ALL PARTS OF India," " on those principles alone which have been in like cases found to answer, namely, speed, regularity security, and the junction of all places of importance interested in the mutual intercourse." The advocacy of these, the views of the Calcutta Steam Committee, based on the plan suggested by them, which plan had, as shewn above, received the concurrence of a Select Committee of the House of Commons as one worthy of consideration for immediate adoption, was entrusted, by the Calcutta Committee, to Captain Grindlay, as their direct agent, restrained alone as to the general expenditure of funds, by three gentlemen, viz. Sir Charles Cockerell, Mr. James McKillop, and Mr. Fletcher. tain Grindlay accepted this agency. In a demi official communication to me under date 27th September, 1836, he says:—

"You shall have better proof than my promises of my anxiety and determination to meet the wishes of your community, and the expectations that are entertained of me. I shall advocate and insist on whole measures, and Mr. Peacock's position shall be repeated until it is indelibly impressed on the conviction of all concerned."

In his official letter, dated 13th September, after acknowledging the receipt of the petition, &c. praying for the immediate establishment of a Steam Communication by way of the Red Sea "between the principal ports of India and England," he says:—

"I beg you will assure the committee that I undertake with alacrity the office which they have done me the honour to call on me to perform, of communicating with Lord William Bentinck on this subject, and of acting in general as their agent in promoting the accomplishment of this great national object, and finally, I beg you will assure the committee, as representing the inhabitants of Calcutta, that I shall labour incessantly to carry into effect their wishes."

Now the wishes of the inhabitants of Calcutta were expressly for the immediate establishment of the communication with the three presidencies. In a word, the "WHOLE MEASURES of CAPTAIN GRINDLAY!!" Let us now see how he fulfilled the above pledges.

Owing to his not sending duplicates round the Cape, and to the detention of the mails in Egypt, with exception of two letters, no communication was received from him till the 14th of April, 1837, and then four consecutive minths' reports, viz. from November to February inclusive—were received, together with a pamphlet said to have been written by himself; for which, at all events, his name being appended as its author, he is responsible.

In the pamphlet there is the following paragraph at page 11.

"It is now certain that the only course by which a steady and rapid Steam Communication with India is to be expected, is by the Mediter ranean and the Red Sea. There is some difference of opinion as to the point to which it should be at the first directed in India, some thinking that it should be confined to Bombay, whence letters might be distributed by dawn, to the rest of India, others that a more extended system of communication by sea should be established, by forwarding the mail from the Red Sea to some central point, whence steamers should proceed to the three presidencies. In the event of the latter plan being adopted, Point de Galle, in Ceylon, has sometimes been named as the rendezvous—at others, Socotra. The questions opened by the differences on this head are too numerous, and involve too much discussion to be here even adverted to. But it is satisfactory to know that their decision, whatever may be the result, will in no way affect the great principle of the plan, which is to increase the facilities of intercourse with India, by the establishment of Steam Communication by way of the Red Sea."

Now I wish your readers to bear in mind that the plan included in the words—"at other Socotra" is the "combined plan of the Bengal Steam Committee," recognized by the Select Committee of the House of Commons as one worthy of consideration for immediate adoption; it is the plan which Captain Grindlay undertook, as the direct paid agent of the Bengal Steam Committee, to advocate and maintain; in a word, it is synonimous with the "whole measures," which he voluntarily pledged himself to "advocate and insist upon;" yet he here declares it to be a matter of indifference "whalever may be the result;" that is, whether the communication be restricted to Bombay—or whether it be extended to the three presidencies from Socotra—it will "in no way affect the great principle of the plan!!!"

I would now ask what confidence the Calcutta Committee could repose in Captain Grindlay after this; having undertaken to act for them in England as they would act for themselves, and voluntarily pledged himself to "advocate and insist on whole measures," as opposed to a restricted communication, he here declares that "the differences opened on this head are too numerous, and involve too much discussion to be here even adverted to!" and that it is a matter of indifference which is selected; and this in the face of a paragraph of his own at page

6, to the following effect:—

"Neither the advantages of Steam Navigation generally, nor the propriety of its permanent establishment, as a medium of communication with India, are matters now to be discussed. In favour of both the question has been decided by the most irrefragible evidence. A considerable period of experiment and observation has prepared the way for acting decidedly and beneficially,—a variety of routes and plans have been suggested, and the only task remaining is to make a judicious choice.

Instead, however, of entering on this the only remaining task, the task he undertook to execute—for which he was engaged and paid—he not merely throws the plan of his principal overboard, but, with monies placed at his disposal to advocate their views, advocates a course of proceeding altogether opposed to them.

Will the Home Committee say that this is proof of "services" to the cause of "comprehensive communication?" That it evinces "zeal and ability" in endeavouring "to promote the adoption and success of the comprehensive plan of Steam Communication direct to each presidency;" or that it entitled him is a continuance of confidence.

Again further on at page 14 referring still to the weight of plans, which after all are reducible to Bombay alone or the three presidencies, he says:—

"As might be expected, where so much interest has been felt a variety of plant have been proposed; and in tome cases, their respective advocates appear to have been disposed to regard each other with some degree of hostile feeling. This is to be lamented.

"Where all have a common end and the only difference is as to the means of attaining it, a candid construction of the motives and views of every one who is stirring in the cause, may fairly be looked for. The readiest as well as the most effectual way to put a stop to any opposite feelings, will, however, be the selection and establishment of some one plan. The benefits of Steam Communication once within the reach of those who so anxiously desire them they will no longer dispute about the means through which they are obtained."

Now I would again ask the Home Committee whether this evinces any zeal or ability in favour of, or particular desire for, the establishment of the communication to the three presidencies? They cannot say that it does; they must admit that it also places the restriction to Bombay and the extension to the three presidencies on a level; and declares that the residest as well as most effectual way to put a stop to any opposite feelings in the parties advocating each, (his employers being one of those parties, and the "whole measures" he engaged to "advocate and insist upon" one of the matters at issue,) will be the selection and establishment of any one plan; and then he infers that, "either being selected, say that to Bombay, the parties who require it to come to the three presidencies, namely, his employers, will have within their reach the benefits of Steam Communication, and will no longer dispute about the means through which they are obtained!!"

In a subsequent part of his pamphlet, where, for the information of the British public, he enumerates the various plans from time to time suggested, he expressly omits all mention of the plan of those (the Calcutta Committee) from whose means the pamphlet emanated, which plan he engaged himself to advocate, although it was the originar comprehensive plan, and necessarily claimed primary notice in the enumeration; and this notwithstanding he was furnished with the letter of the Calcutta Committee proposing the plan to the Governor General in Council (in which the advantages of the comprehensive scheme over the restricted were most fully gone into), and with his Lordship's minute in council in reply approving of and recommending it.

He acknowledged the receipt of these documents on the 28th September, three months before the publication of his pamphlet, in these words:—

"I have just received your's of the 22d (April) with the correspondence of Lord William Bentinck, which will form a very proper subject, for publication. I must however husband my resources and be prudent in the expenditure of my ammunition, &c."

So prudent has he been that he has reserved it to this time. And why? Solely because he was determined to avoid all notice or mention not only of the plan itself but of the Committee, who specially engaged him to support it alone. Nay, so minutely careful is he on this point, that even when in the course of his refurent he cannot avoid referring to the resolution of the Select Committee of the House of Commons in which that plants recommended for consideration as "the combined plan suggested to the Bengal Steam Committee," he sails it "the combined plan of Bengal!" purposely excluding the Calcutta Committee—his employers—and their plan from the credit to which both were justly entitled from its recognition by a Select Committee of the House of Commons as one worthy of consideration for immediate adoption. I would ask the Home Committee whether this is proper conduct in an agent, especially in a paid agent? Nay I will ask them now to say on which side lies the interpret!!? Why here, it is as clear as the sun at noon day, as was declared in the last half yearly meeting of the subscribers to the Steam Fund, the last half yearly meeting of the Committee having discarded their agent, it is the agent who has discarded the Committee!"

I have said more than enough to show that, when acting on his own bottom, when unrestrained by the control of Lord William Bentinck and the Home Committee, and especially of Mr. Turton, not only did he not endeavour to promote the adoption and success of the comprehensive plan but that he positively stifled it. This must be conceded to me. It is proved out of his own pamphlet. Now let us see under what circumstances all this became known to the Calcutta Committee. Although, as I said before, when the committee received his pamphlet, which was forwarded with his letter of the 7th January, 1837, they received at the same time his monthly communications from November to February inclusive, yet they received no communication whatever from Lord William Bentinck, or the Home Committee, nor is there in the whole of Captain Grindlay's letters, public or private, one single word relative to the comprehensive scheme, not one word bearing on "whole measures," not the smallest notice of it even as a measure to be worked out after the restricted measure should have been obtained, not one word on Mr. Peacock's position!!!

So much for Captain Grindlay's "zeal and ability, in the promotion of the comprehensive scheme up to the time of the withdrawal of the confidence of the Calcutta Committee."

But I have said that, besides thus failing in his duty in respect to the comprehensive scheme, he took it on himself publicly to reprehend the proceedings of his principals. I allude to the last quoted paragraph, to which I beg reference may be made. He there takes occasion to declare that the respective advocates of the plans in some cases appear to have been disposed to regard each other with some degree of hostile feeling, and—mild, amiable creature, as he is, he declares, "This is to be lamented." He then goes on to read a lecture on Candour! to such advocates; and infplies that they have been attaching any thing but "candid construction" to each other's motives.

On receiving his pamphlet I wrote him a letter expressive of my sentiments on it. On this paragraph I said as folliws:-

"Now it is no use beating about the bush. You can only mean this and the Bombay Committees, and the advocates of the proposals of both."

"This is really as pretty a specimen of using weapons bought with our own money to break our keads as I ever met;—and really your cool way of disposing of our case, our wishes, and our prayer, is beyond all things most admirable."

The readiest as well as most effectual way to put a stop to any opposite feeling will, however, be the selection and establishment of some one plan; the benefits of Steam Communication once within the reach of those who so anxiously desired them, they will no longer dispute.

about the means through which they are obtained ....

This in other words is, the Bombay people with the communication to go to Bombay alone. The Calcutta people with it to go there, but they likewise wish it to go to Ceylon as Madras, and Calcutta. I am employed by the latter to advocate this their earnest wish, and their urgent prayer; but in mercy to both parties determine; put a stop to these differences by selecting either. This is the real meaning of your language, and whether that feither shall be the plan you are engaged to support seems not only to be a matter of indifference to you, but the whole tenor of your arguments and reasonings goes the contrary way. Your conclusion here is worthy of your general tone, you say—

"The benefits of Steam Communication once within the reach of those who so anxiously desired them, they will no longer dispute about the means through which they are obtained.

"But pardon me if I say the benefits of Steam Communication if restricted to Bombay will not be within the reach of those who so anxiously degire them, except the people of Bombay. One benefit will, certainly, extend beyond Bombay, viz. that of the earlier receipt of letters; but all the other benefits are sealed from all your constituents whose particular interests you were engaged to support."

In replying to this, the following is all that bears on my taxing him with applying his censure to the Calcutta Committee.

"To pass without notice the divisions which existed was impossible; to magnify their importance, and to aggravate the ill feeling existing in consequence would have been most unwise, because it was giving to the hostile or the indifferent, ground for saying 'settle the differences among yourselves, Gentlemen, and then we will consider your proposals.' Such a mode of answer has invariably been resorted to whenever differences of opinion among persons agreeing to a certain extent have been pressed on pertinaciously."

Now this amounts to a clear admission that he did mean the paragraph I quoted to apply to the Calcutta Committee—and what follows? why this,—that Capt. Grindlay, having been engaged by the Calcutta Committee to adverate, as their paid agent, the establishment of a Steam Communication TO BOMBAY, to Ceylon, Madras and Calcutta, in opposition to its restriction to Bombay, as desired by the Bombay Committee, instead of so doing, with money entrusted to him for this purpose alone, publishes a pamphlet in which he declares that these two committees, one of them his employers, are seeking one common end, yet regard each other with hostile feelings-and he calls on the authorities at home to put a stop to this by adopting the wishes of either! WELL KNOWING AT THE TIME that those authorities were decidedly opposed to the views of the parties who had employed him! thus, as I have stated publicly taking his principals to task, and abandoning their cause. Now in this case, admitting for the sake of argument that the Calcutt Committee had entertained the most determined hostility towards the Bombay Committee which they never did. but admitting that that hostility went to say, -Instead of the communication going to Bombay let it go to Calcutta only; and had maintained that plan as pertinaciously as I admit they have its going equally to ALL; still if Capt. Grindlay was engaged, and paid, to admocate these views of the Calcutta Committee, he ought to have done it. He might have refused to undertake such advocacy; but if he took the fee he ought to have pleaded. But when, being only called upon to say to the authorities at home and to the people of England—the Bombay people desire to keep the communication confined to themselves, while my clients wish it also to reach them, without infringement of the wishes of the people of Bombay, pray comply; he rather takes his clients to task, and, considering the temper of the judges, says more in favor of their adversaries than of those whose cause he had undertaken, I just ask what the world would think of such clients if they continued to employ such an agent?

In his direct relations, therefore, with the Calcutta Committee, it was impossible, whether as regards the duty they owed to the cause of comprehensive communication, or that which they owed to their own characters, they could continue their confidence in him; they therefore withdrew it, and severed their connection with him; leaving it to the Home Committee to select, not such a direct agent with the Calcutta

Committee, but a paid secretary to themselves.

I claim to have made my case good; to have shewn that Captain Grindlay not only failed in his duty in not advocating the comprehensive scheme, up to the time the Committee withdrew their confidence from him; but that he took on himself publicly to reprehend the parties who employed him to do so.

Captain Grindlay has attempted to defend himself against the proved charge of not having in his uncontrolled character of direct agent to the Calcutta Committee advocated the comprehensive scheme, viz. the extension of the communication to all the presidencies—on the ground that it would have been imprudent to do so, with reference to the opposition to be expected from an influential quarter, in which such advocacy would be calculated to foster a feeling inimical to any communication at all.

The reply is easy. His pamphlet appeared in December, 1836. Under date, 1st October of that year, he forwarded an article published in the Asiatic Journal, which, on more than one occasion, he has attributed to the pen of the all but highest individual home authority in the Government of India. That article expressly declared as follows: "It is obvious that Steam Communication will be established in some may:

of this no one acquainted with India can possibly be ignorant."

This, coming from such authority, settled at once the general question. The writer then propounds the plan he would recommend; he expressly objects to its confinement to Bombay, and advocates the extension to the three presidencies. Now, I ask whether, in the face of this open advocacy, in October, 1836, of the extension of the communication to the three presidencies by, as he believed, the all but highest individual home authority connected with the Government of India, Captain Grindlay was warranted in throwing overboard the similar views of his principals, on the plea that their advocacy would be imprudent? Surely the writer of the article in the Asiatia Journal, if really the high authority imagined by Captain Grindlay, was a much more competent judge of what was the proper course to pursue to attain this great measure; and Captain Grindlay's defence sails to the ground. He appears, independent of his dereliction of duty, as the worse than needless advocate of the general question of any communication at all, not only by his own showing in one of the paragraphs which I have quoted from his pamphlet, but by the far more to-be-depended upon course of advocacy taken by the writer in the Asiatic Journal. I say worse than needless, because he has needlessly expended, on what was sure of being attained without it, money entrusted to him for the attainment of ulterior objects.

have now to observe, that however Captain Grindlay may have acted up to the wishes of the Home Committee, as their executive agent, since they took the matter up. I cannot perceive, up to this date, in the Atlas, nor in any other place, indications of independent, voluntary systematic advocacy of the comprehensive scheme. On the 1st June last, he forwarded to India Dr. Lardner's pamphlet, and, in the following month, the third edition of his own!! Thus still giving to the world, up to that period, while the Select Committee of the House of Commons was sitting, the sentiments and views I have above pointed out as those entertained and advocated by him. Of Dr. Lardner's pamphlet, in his letter to the Calcutta Committee, he says:—

"I trust that this publication will do us service, emanating as it does from a well-known member of the scientific world, taking up the right side of the question, and advocating the principle in its fullest extent."

Yet never, even in the Atlas, whose pages are at his command, has he once noticed it. In an article in the Times, introducing the Calcutta appeal to the British public on the day when he expected the petition would be presented, it is spoken of in disparaging terms.

This is my case; and I lay it before the Indian public, desirous on the one hand that it should receive attention and judgment abstracted from any consideration which may be deemed due to myself personally; and on the other, free from any deference which belongs to the names of the Home Committee, and to their being on the spot.

I desire the case to be considered alone with reference to the facts: repeating that the Home Committee do not venture to impugn the ground on which the Calcutta Committee withdrew their confidence from Captain Grindlay. I desire it to be pronounced whether the Calcutta Committee could, without a betrayal of the trust reposed in them, and without the sacrifice of their characters, have continued to place confidence in Captain Grindlay, after the publication of views so entirely at variance with theirs, and with his own pledges—and after reprehensions of their proceedings, such as I have quoted from his pamphlet. Could the Calcutta Committee leave THE CAUSE uncontrolled in Captain Grindlay's hands after such a course of advocacy?

This is the point. The Home Committee may have reason to be satisfied with Captain Grindlay after they came forward and placed him in the subordinale situation of their secretary or agent; and the Calcutta Committee hay, and, I contend, they had and have just grounds to be as entirely dissatisfied with his uncontrolled independent proceedings, and to withdraw their confidence from him.

It is scarcely necessary for me to say that I must literally be taken as conveying my own sentiments alone. I am actuated solely by a desire to defend public proceedings to which I have been a party, which have, as I think, been unjustly inquigned. I have avoided all reflection on Captain Grindlay, that was not absolutely necessary for that purpose; and I feel assured that no indifferent person can read the extracts I have given from Captain Grindlay's pamphlet, without being satisfied that the Calcutta Committee would have betrayed their trust if they had not withdrawn the advocacy of the cause of their constituents from has hands.

I am, dear Sir,

Your's faithfully,

C. B. GREENLAW

Calcutta, Feb. 6, 183

The following Address to the Right Honorable Lord Auckland, voted at the late Steam Meeting, and his Lordship's reply, are published for general information:—

Address of the Inhabitants of Calcutta and its neighbourhood in Town Hall Assembled.

To the Right Honorable George, Lord Auckland, G. C. B. Governor General of India.

My Lord,

The inhabitants of Calcutta and its neighbourhood, duly assembled at the Town Hall, for the purpose of taking into consideration the present state of the question of Steam Communication with England, having prepared a petition to the Honorable the House of Commons, and memorials to the Right Honorable the Board of Control, and the Honorable the Court of Directors of the East India Company, praying that Steam Communication from England may forthwith be extended to the three principal presidencies, venture to address your lordship, confident that their prayer will receive from your lordship all the attention and support which its importance merits.

They refrain from entering into any details of that importance, satisfied that your lordship cannot for any period have presided over the councils of this vast empire without being fully sensible how much its moral, political, and commercial welfare must be promoted by an efficient steam intercourse between England and all parts of India.

They, therefore, content themselves with soliciting your lordship, to afford them the benefit of your support in such thanner as may to your lordship seem best calculated to attain the object in view in its most efficient form.

On bchalf of the meeting,

EYWARD RYAN, Chairman.

(1°%) (

To the Honorable Sir Edward Ryan, &c. &c. &c.

Sir, I have to acknowledge the receipt of an address signed by you on the part of the inhabitants of Calcutta and its neighbourhood, soliciting my support to a petition and to memorials, in favour of the immediate extension to the three presidencies, of Steam Communication with England. In answer, I willingly promise you that cordial support, which I am bound to give, as well by the feelings which would lead every Englishman in India to bring himself nearer to his country, as by the duty which is imposed upon me of endeavouring to promote whatever may tend to the general welfare; and I need not add any thing on my part in confirmation of the evidence given by Lord William Bentinck and others, before the committee of the House of Commons, to prove how deeply involved are the interests of our native as well as of British fellow-subjects in the success of your representations. I am ready to acknowledge with gratitude the liberality with which increased means of communication have within the last year been supplied to us, the advantage of which, though not without occasional disappointment, we have all experienced. But I strongly feel how insufficient for many of the great purposes to be contemplated in the extension and acceleration of intercourse with our country, those means must yet be considered; and for their further improvement, I rejoice that the Government and the community may rely upon the continued exertions of those who, with you, have long and strenuously applied themselves to the accomplishment of this most important public object. I cannot doubt, that the manifestations of the general and intense interest with which this question is regarded in India, will be received with all the attention which they so justly merit by the high authorities to which they are addressed.

Off my part, no opportunity will be neglected of aiding, by all means in my power, the renewed representations which will now be submitted. I am confident that the willing co-operation of the President in Council will be afforded to us; and I am looking with impatience for the power of putting to the test of actual experiment the facility of overcoming those obstacles, to which, it may yet by some be apprehended, that a steam voyage from Calcutta to the Red Sea during the unfavourable season will be exposed.

I am, your faithful servant,

AUCKLAND.

Camp Futteygunge, 17th January, 1838.

(True copies.)

C. B. GREENLAW, Secy. Com. N. B. S. Fund.

FUNERAL OF A HONG MERCHANT.

After the decease of a Chinese, his relatives are, by means of astrology, led to fix on a propitious day for his funeral, and the body is frequently kept above the ground many months, before it is consigned to its The Hong-merchant Kingqua died about two months ago, and last Monday was by his friends fixed upon for the burial. The body having to be embarked on the river, a temporary gateway had been erected of bamboo on the water's edge. This gate was a building of considerable size, containing, besides the passage, four large-sized rooms. A smaller building, of one apartment only, had also been erected in front of the American Hong, containing the portrait of the deceased, and seats to accommodate his friends. At seven o'clock in the morning the procession was seen to issue from old China street, and moving towards the gate already described. A large concourse of people had assembled to see the sight, and they as well as a double row of tables covered with sweetmeats formed a lane through which the procession passed. The order of the procession was as follows: First came, each carried in a kind of open sedan-chair, borne by two coolies, fifty roasted pigs, with shining lackered-like-looking hides, sentimentally adorned with flowers; these were followed by a number of similar chairs with other eatables all equally embellished. Following these was a number of mourners whom we supposed to be the defunct's domestic servants. After these came a sedan chair containing the portrait of the dead, and following this another containing a board with the titles in which Kingqua rejoiced while living. This chair was immediately followed by the deceased's friends, amongst whom we recognised several Hong merchants and outside dealers, as well as mandarius of no high rank. Last came the coffin, under a very handsome canopy of party-colored silk, and following close behind it the chief-mourner and other members of the family, dressed in sack-cloth, unshaven and barefooted, or having at least no covering to the feet but straw sandals, such as are worn by the meanest Chinese, it being assumed that their grief ought to be so intense as to render them totally regardless of their personal appearance. The chief mourner appeared, according to the customary ctiquette, so much weighed down by grief, that two servants had to support his tottering steps, and even with this aid he seemed ready to sink to the ground at almost every step. Within the apartment of the gate refreshments were offered to the friends of the deceased, who dispersed after the body had, under a salute of cannon, been deposited in a boat. After burial, and after their being offered to the deities, the fifty pigs and other eatables before mentioned were distributed among the poor.

We have in this sketch of the procession, omitted to mention its ornamental parts, such as a number of urchins heating cymbals, and playing on wind instruments, dressed in cloaks, once magnificent no doubt, but now faded from frequent use; and tof men clad in scarlet jackets, bearing the insignia of the magisteric find judicial offices, such as axes, swords, whips and rattans, all of visose personal appearance betrayed that they looked forward to the distribution of the eatables with no small degree of impatience.

It is indeed impossible to see a more wretched, ragged, famished set of grown up people, as well as children, as those employed in funeral and marriage processions in China; from which we suppose that their services on these occasions are no otherwise rewarded, than by the, on these days, never failing distribution of food.—Canton Press, 23rd December, 1837.

HOT SPRINGS NEAR MOULMEIN.

We have been favoured by Dr. Helfer, with the following description of the Hot Springs, situated about two miles from the site of the old, and now descrited town, of Athan.

"To reach the hot springs, it was necessary to send some men in advance to cut a road through the high tiger-grass which grows here with unexampled luxuriance. The ground is strongly impregnated with iron, and the water which runs over the red ochre has a very styptic taste. The temperature of the water, at a quarter of a mile from the springs, was raised more than ten degrees, and near the springs it was almost too hot for the barefooted coolies to bear. The vegetation became more luxuriant as I approached the springs, and was one uninterrupted mass of verdure. As the place was once inhabited, the high jungle must have been cut down, and a herbaceous vegetation now occupies the place of trees. There are some fine old cocoa-nut and palm trees round the springs, but it would appear that the inhabitants cultivated not only the useful, but ornamental plants, judging from some beautiful cassia acata, which, finding a congenial soil in this elevated temperature, bear splendid flowers; and especially some Pandanus trees, one with his bare roots standing just above a spring. It would be difficult to account for their being there, as it seems improbable the good people of Athan were ever so much advanced as to cultivate mere botanical rarities. There are ten springs, or rather hot water ponds, of which I could only examine one, as the access to the others was through too deep water of 130°. Farht. This one was a semicircular pend about 50 feet in circumference. In one place it was thirty-five feet deep, but I could only measure round the borders. It was perfectly calm. except in one or two places, where a slight ebullition takes place, like that of evolved carbonic acid. Small thin patches of a silicious incrus-The air above the springs was 97‡, and tation swim on the surface. the water itself 146°. Farht. Notwithstanding this high temperature, the borders are deeply covered with vegetation, and a species of fig-tree have actually their knots in the water. The account, however, of fishes being found in the water, seems to border on the fabulous. That this water possesses medical properties there can be no doubt, and it seems to approach, in its composition, to the celebrated waters of Toenritz. Should Amherst, hereafter, become a resort for invalids from India, the neighbourhood of these springs may be of great importance, chiefly for those suffering under cutaneous diseases."-Moulmein Chronicle. December 16.

LITERARY NOTICES.

Indian Tables, for the conversion of Indian Mun into Factory and Bazar maunds, Madras and Bombay commercial weight, troy and avoirdupois weight, and the different maunds in use in the Bengal Presidency: for the conversion also of Factory into Bazar maunds, troy weight into Tola, and Sicca Rupees into Company's, and vice versa; containing, likewise, a table of exchange between London and British India: a table of the assay produce of silver bullion, also tables of the minimum legal weight of the Company's Rupee and the old and new standard Calcutte and Furruckabad Rupees, together with an appendix containing a variety of useful information. By John Muller, Accountant, Calcutta Mint. 8vo., Calcutta, 1836.

This work was published in Calcutta some eighteen months since, under the patronage of the Supreme Government, though we believe no copies have been imported into England, until within this last month or two. The title, long as it is, scarcely conveys a just idea of the variety of important details which the volume contains, and we conscientiously believe there is not one of our mercantile readers connected with India, but will heartily thank us for calling attention to it. The late material alterations in the currency, weights, and measures of the Peninsula of Hindoostan, so totally subversing the long established order of things in those respects, renders such a publication as the present not only highly useful, but absolutely necessary.

China: its state and prospects, with especial reference to the spread of the Gospel; containing allusions to the antiquity, extent, population, civilization, literature, and religion of the Chinese. By W. H. Medhurst. 8vo., Snow, 1838.

Our present limits of time and space do not permit of our more than hastily noticing this remarkably cheap and interesting publication. We trust, however, very shortly to recur to it. The situation of Mr. Medhurst, as an emissary from the London Missionary Society, gave him opportunities for collecting information relative to the extraordinary countries of his visitation, which fow others could obtain, and that the information imparted in the volume before us, is accurate, we have not the least doubt. We heartily recommend the work to our readers; the humility of Mr. M.s' pretensions, and his deprecatory observations with regard to his labours, we think our readers will agree with us, to have been hardly ealled for. The volume is adorned with a map and many illustrations.

The Palmer's Last Lesson, and other short Poems. By Calder Campbell. 12mo., Houlston, 1838.

There are but few of our readers lately returned from Calcutta, who have not been gratified by the perusal, in the periodicals of that city, of various elegant poetical effusions, bearing the signature of R. C. C. They will be pleased to find that there is now an opportunity of their possessing many of them, with various original ones in addition, in a collected form; and their thanks are due to Major Campbell for this pleasing addition to their libraries.

Six years in Biscay, comprising a personal Narrative of the Sieges of Bilbao, in June 1835, and Oct. to Dec 1836, and of the principal events which occurred in that City, and the Basque Provinces, during the years 1830 to 1837. By John Francis Bacon. 8vo., Smith Elder and Co., 1838.

in Spein has given rise, there are perhaps none more interesting to the general reader, than the sieges of Bilbao, whether it be from the importance of the city itself, the vigour of the struggle for its possession, or the great consequence of such possession to both the contending parties. Upon this momentous subject, Mr. Bacon seems to have given every detail, and so far as we are able to judge, with much fairness. The volume cannot, therefore, be otherwise than appreciated by the public. Much useful information upon the state of Spain previously to the breaking out of the war is contained in the introduction, and the embellishments ably assist the reader to comprehend in the fullest degree the statements of the writer.

SYNOPSIS OF INDIAN INTELLIGENCE.

Calcutta.

Union Bank Shares.—The Englishman, (Feb. 17,) says, "Of the 800 New Union Bank Shares of Rs. 1000 each, 48 (exclusive of reserved shares for absent proprietors), remained not taken off by the proprietors; and these were put up at par yesterday at the Bank, and sold by fuction amongst the shareholders. The bidding commenced at Rs. 1,300, and 3 shares went at 1,310, one brought 1,315. The fifth share brought 1,315. Thenceforward there was much native competition, and the 9 following shares fetched 1,325 to 30; eight following shares fetched 1,335 Rs. The thirtieth share fetched Rs. 1,340. Other shares were bought, at from 1,345 to 1,350—1,355, and 1,360 Rs. The 46th and 47th shares were sold at Rs. 1,360 each. The 48th was bid for at 1,365 Rs.; this was the final number; it fell to an officer of the Supreme Court for Rs. 1,370.

Accommodations to Travellers.—The Union Bank was giving a helping hand to travellers in the same way that has long been practised by the London Bankers. Persons visiting New South Wales, the Cape, Mauritius, and other places in the Eastern Seas, were offered accommodation on very good terms. They will have to pay into the Bank any sum they may think requisite for their journey, which will remain at interest, till withdrawn. Against this, the Bank will furnish them with its promissory notes in convenient sums, which they may use or not, at pleasure. The great advantage of this arrangement to travellers, is the facility it will give them of obtaining money in any place they may unexpectedly visit. The promissory notes of a public institution like the Union Bank, will be negotiable BRETT'S HOSPITAL.—It was stated, (Feb.) that the operations of this hospital were suspended, in consequence of a gentleman connected with the commercial community having failed, who was its principal supporter.

REV. MR. MACDONALD.—The Marion, (says the Calcutta Courier, Jan. 31st), brings out among other passengers, the Rev. Mr. Macdonald, a member of the Scots Church, who gave up the Church at Islington for the situation he is about to fill in the General Assembly's School.

wherever merchants are to be found.

Calcutta Races.—On the 13th January, the first day of the Calcutta Races, Gondolier won Shaik Ibrahim's purse of 400 rupees, beating Pilgrim and Sultan, round the course in 3 m. 38 s. Jim Crow won a purse of 800 rs., beating Telegraph in a two-mile race in 4 m. 16 s. Star won a plate value 800 rs., beating Remnant. Gem won a purse of 1600 rs., beating Mishap, Helman, and Minstrel, in a race round the course in 3 m. 43 s. Triptolemus won a plate of 300 rs., beating Jew's Trump. Pirate won a sweepstakes of 22 gold mohurs, one mile, beating Absentee, Gondolier, Rolica, and Magnet, in 1 m. 56 s. Polyphema, Jim Crow, Stoic, Comet, Ploughboy, Gondolier, Gem, Pirate, Gazelle, Lieutenant, and Roostum, won valuable stakes by excellent racing. The Tagore cup was won on the fourth day's races, by Absentee, in two-mile heats, beating the best horses in contention. One of the horses in this race, Roostum, ran against a post, threw his jockey, and dislocated his own shoulder.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.—The horrid cruelties practised by the Hindoos towards their domestic animals, must have struck every resident in India. How frequently, says the Calcutta Christian Observer, do we see the poor beasts of burthen grouning under the influence of appressive burdens, in the mid-day sun, with lost home wounds exposed to the action of the atmosphere, the attacks of insects, and to the lash, of the rude driver. This is a subject demanding the attention of the Legislature, and one which might certainly come within the scope of their labour without interfering with the religious prejudices of the people. A slight fine imposed on persons convicted of maltreating dumb animals would be a sufficient check to the practice.

CALCUTTA PUBLIC LIBRARY.—Proceedings of the Annual Meeting, held 10th February, H. M. Parker, Esq., in the chair. The report stated that 1631 books had been added to the Library during the last year. 1466 of which were bought, 168 were presented. Readers had very considerably increased. Since the last annual meeting, eleven new proprietors and fifty-nine new subscribers had joined. Forty-one subscribers had been, from various causes, struck off the list. In addition to 1000 rs., which Mr. Manuk had liberally contributed, 2,113 rs. had been since subscribed to the "Vested Fund," which consisted of 3,313 rs. Various slight alterations in the management of the institution were resolved upon, and the meeting closed.

Figure 18 Calcutta during 1837.—By the report of the Committee in aid for the sufferers by the Fires of 1837, we perceive that out of a subscription of 46,02% rs., actually realized, 31,906 rs. have been disbursed in the performance of good allies to the houseless and the destitute. 2,532 persons, or families, have been assisted. Tiles, to the number of 93,06,575, have been distributed to those disposed to tile their own huts; 817 tiled buts have been built entire by the Committee; 876 tiled only; 160 in progress of tiling. The balance in the hands of the Committee was 14,713 rs., (Feb. 17th); and there was a sum still to receive from the subscribers of 1,913 rs.

Execution of Decrees at Seramfore.—Ever since the enactment of the Insolvent Act in India, the Danish Authorities have refused to give protection to debtors who abscond to that place to avoid an enforced payment of the debts due by them. Lately a person proceeded from Calcutta to that Town with copies of three Decrees of the Court of Requests against a party who had absconded to that Settlement, and after having rebutted the defendant's allegations of his having paid the amount of these decrees, he obtained an order for the immediate payment of their amount, and it was only on consideration of the defendant having placed in the custody of the Danish Court some furniture, &c., sufficient to cover the amount of those decrees that he had fifteen days time allowed him to pay the money and redeem the pledged articles, at the expiration of which period, if not redeemed, they would be sold to satisfy these decrees.

ASIATIC SOCIETY. --At a Meeting of the Asiatic Society, in February, a letter was read from Professor Wilson, suggesting that Chantry's proposal to furnish a copy of the bust of Mr. Colebrooke (now in the East India House,) be accepted. It appears that the work will only cost £60. It was resolved that a private subscription should be raised for the purpose. The receipt of numerous stuffed birds from Capt. Pemberton (obtained during his march to Bootan) was amounced at this Meeting of the Society.

Bengalue Classics.—One of our correspondents, says the Calcutta Christian Observer, (February,) has offered to undertake the collating and revision of a unifo m edition of Bengalee Standard Works, so much a desideratum; should subscribers be found to defray expenses of printing, &c. It is supposed that the whole may be comprised in eight or ten volumes, at from I to 2 rupees per vol.

LIEUT. JAMES.—A sad accident occurred in the Royal Bairacks of the Fort, January 20th. Lieut. James, the son of the Lieut.-Colonel commanding the Cameronians, fell over the balustrades of the staircase and fractured his skull. Ho lingered for two days and expired on the 22d.

Sir J. W. Adams.—The subscription for a monument to Sir J. W. Adams, has closed, and it now only remains to fix on a spot for its crection.

DWARKANATH TAGORE.—The boundless liberality of Dwarkanath Tagore has lately been manifested (February 5th) in his bestowal upon the District Charitable Society of the magnificent sum of One Lac of Rupees, (£10,000,) to be secured to the Society on good mortgages, and placed out at interest for the benefit of the numerous poor who are maintained from the funds of that excellent Institution. The donation is to form a separate fund, and to be called the Dwarkanath Fund. "We thought (says the Englishman) it would have been impossible for Dwarkanath Tagore to have done anything which could have increased our admiration of his character. He has already fulfilled the duties of a citizen in a manner so highly honorable that had we been asked what was wanting to complete his title to the lift all good men, we should have emphatically answered—Nothing!"

ALTERED AND FORGED BANK NOTES .- There were stated to be many altered and forged Bank Notes in circulation in Calcutta during January.

ALLAHABAD ADDRESS TO SIR C. METGALFE. On the 17th January the Resident at Allahabad presented an Address to the Ex. Licut.-Governor, North-Western Provinces. Sir Charles replied in terms as complimentary as those in which this Address was, (like all others to him,) conclud.

Collectors of Customs.—A letter from Akahabad informs the Englishman, (February 7th,) that when the Sudder Board of Revenue proposed to Government to confer the offices of Collectors of Customs upon uncovenanted servants, Lord

Auckland, though agreeing in opinion with the Board as to the utility of the measure, felt himself precluded from sanctioning it under the peculiar constitution of the civil service.

INVITATIONS TO SIR CHARLES METCALFE,—Mr. Bird, of the Revenue Board, Delhi, entertained Sir C. Metcalfe and party at dinner on the 16th January, and Mr. Colvin gave them a farewell ball and supperson the following evening.

AGRA RACES.—At the Agra Race Meeting (January) Botanist became the favorite and the winner of the Ladies' Purse.

INSOLVENT ESTATE OF ALEXANDER & Co.

Abstract of Accounts of the Estate of Alexander & Co., from 1st November, 1837, to 31st January, 1838.

| DISBURSEMENTS.                        | RECEIPTS.                                                                        |
|---------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| To advances for manufacture of Indigo | By balance of account of 31st Oct. 1837  (°o.'s Rs. 4,323  Indigo factories sold |

INSOLVENT ESTATE OF MACKINTOSH & Co.

Abstract of Reccipts and Disbursements appertaining to the Estate of Mackintosh & Co., from 1st November, 1837, to 31st January, 1838.

| RECEIPTS.                                                                      | Dishursements.                        |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| Bybalance of account of 31st Oct 1837 Co.'s Rs. 25,194 Sale of landed property | To advances for manufacture of indigo |
|                                                                                | described the management of the same  |

INSOLVENT ESTATE OF CRUTTENDEN, MACKILLOP, & Co.

Abstract of Accounts of the Estate of Cruttenden, Mackillop, & Co., from 1st November, 1837, to 31st January, 1838.

| DISBURSEMENTS.                        |                                                | RECEIPTS.                                                      |
|---------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------|
| To advances for manufacture of indigo | 5,653752617921024237,458 | By balance of 31st OctCo.'s Rs. [31,227] Indigo factories sold |

Cold Insurrection.—An insurrection of the Colds has taken place, caused partly by a number of prisoners having been killed at Kishenpoor Jail, while attempting to escape, which their relatives determined to revenge. The leaders were certain chiefs of Khunbund. The project was to kill all the Sahib Logue, expel the Sepoys, and plunder the villages. On the 17th November, these insurgents were met, near Siringscea, by four hundred men of the Ramghur Light Infantry, with a brigade of six pounders, and sixty men of the 5th Local Horse, who had no idea of being attacked in Siringscea. Its pass, where operations commenced, is a rocky ascent, winding through the hills, with jungles, rocks, and ravines on either side. By the time the column had got about half way through, the advance gnard picked up a bow-string and two arrows crossed in the middle of the road (probably a challenge), and had scarcely gone ten paces further, when a flight of arrows came among them from the right, followed by screams like a herd of jackalls. The Coles were well positioned. An arrow from a Cole bow will at a hundred yards do as much mischief as a bullet. In the skirmish that took place in the pass, some dozen of our force were wounded, but none dangerously. The detachment having cleared the pass, marched due south to Juggernatpore, thence to Jypore, east. Both places were descried. A Tautee reported that the whole country to the cast and south had risen, and that there were 2000 armed men stationed somewhere about Koela Booroo under their chiefs. The detachment marched thither, but not a man was to be seen. From the watchfires still burning, it was Evident, however, that they were assembled in large numbers. The work of devastation commenced. Nazim Dohnr and Rooin were burnt to the ground, and a large quantity of grain carried off. The troops then proceeded to, and encamped at Rooin, remaining until the 11th December, during which time, Poto, and others, the heads of the insurgents, together with eighty or ninety persons at Siringseea, were captured. Six hundred heads of cattle, much grain, &c. were carried off; Khunhund and the surrounding places were burnt to the ground. Capt. W., the Governor-General's Agent joined on the 18th December, and tried and condemned to death the five ringleaders,-Poto, Burrai, and Narra, were hung near Juggernatpore, on 1st January; Borah and Poondoon next day, before thousands of Coles. The troops then Frmed, and pursued their routo back to Chychassa, where they arrived on 22d January. The Coles are an extremely indolent race. They go about, women and men, almost in a state of nature; one yard of cloth would literally furnish trousseaux for a dozen Cole Belles. - English.

man, February 13.

OPERATIONS AT SHEKHAWATTEE.—A letter from this quarter (27th Jan.), gives details of Major Forster's further operations. Since last accounts, the Kuzzaka had made head on the Jodepoor Frontier and attacked the Town of Luchmunghur Tyith 800 men, taking advantage of Major F.'s absence from that quarter. However, sir horsemen only, with the Seckur tag-rags, actually managed to repulse the enemy. Afth this affair, the Thakoor of Goora, who occupies one of the strongest holds in Toof vuttee, collected followers, and having entered the village of Kekrana, under Majo FF.'s protection, he there killed the principal Zemindar, plundered the village, and carried off the Thakooranee. Major F. demanded the aid of Sree Bullub, the Admil of Toorwuttee, to apprehend the offender; but he sided with the latter's cause, thinking it much the strongest and most likely to pay him. The Major then dispatched fifty horse, &c. to Belas Sing The offender) demanding his presence to answer for the serious charges preferred against him. The horsenen were received roughly, and lundreds of matchlocks levelled at them, and a volley fired which killed one Suwar. The Major's men dismonnted, charged sword in hand, and cut down eight; then necessarily fell back out of shot reach and encamped. Major Forster soon after sent four companies, two guns, and a hundred horse, to assist the detachment. This little force had to oppose a strongly fortified place, and 4000 troops. A serious engagement took place on the 34th January. Having reached the Town without the loss of a man, the Major determined to storm the Town Fort forthwith; with this view he brought up his guns; however, the enemy got frightened at this array, and quitted the fort as the detachment advanced to the attack, and retired up to a stockade about mid-way up the peak hill, which commanded the lower fort, so that the detachment began to feel the jingal balls telling in. A party of men assisted by the horsemen on foot, gallantly bore down upon the natives, ensconced as they were behind large rocks, where the large guns could not bear on them, and in a few minutes the stockade was taken. The following morning Major F.'s force was strengthened to about 500 men, by the joining of about eighty tag-rags of Khetree. On the 25th, the Major resolved upon escalading the place, if possible. Nothing could exceed the ardour of the troops. On they scrambled, the advance under the Major's son, William, who led them in a manner that called forth the admiration of all. Nor did Major Forster himself remain behind; under the coves of the two guns which he planted in the battery, the insurgents were driven step by step till they reached the fort; from thence bullets and huge stones and rocks were hurled down upon the Entopean force. Having arrived within half-pustol shot of the place, a halt was called by the Major, to take breath, and after a quarter of an hour's rest, the bugle sounded the assault; a loud shout and determined bearing in the advance had the desired effect; the enemy were seen to fly from the walls, and Major Forster's party, mounting on one another's backs, gained the walls, where the British flag was soon seen flying in triumph. The fugitives were pursued in all directions. About 150 insurgents were killed in this affair. The Major's less was five killed, and twenty-seven wounded.

THE MISSES EDEN — LORD AUCKLAND — SIR CHARLES METCALVE. — SIR Charles Metcalic expected to reach Allahabad in fifteen or sixteen days, where a steamer awaits him. It is said the young Prince of Orange will be his compagnon dn voyage to Calcutta. Sir Charles parted with Major Sutherland and others of his party at this station. He was strongly affected at bidding adicu to Major S., with whom he had for years maintained the closest friendship. The unaffected grief shown by Sir Charles in parting with his old and attached friends shows incontestibly a naturally kind nature and affectionate heart, which neither high station nor a long public career have been able to change. The society here was very attentive to his Honour. The station ball given to him was a grande affaire. The room was very fine, and the supper was laid out with more taste, and in better keeping than those of Agra show; but the fashionables of Cawnpore display much less of the grace, credit and perseverance in dancing, that the elegant and accomplished society of the latter is so distinguished for; the station is represented as exhibiting a new plague—that of dust. The residents eat dust and drink dust, see dust and inhalo dust, sleep upon dust and are clothed with dust-in fact there never was anything like Cawnporo dust but Boniface's Alc. The Governor-General had several long conversations with Sir Charles, His Lordship appears a plain sensible man, with little of the Court about him, but wanting the brusquerie of Lord William Bentinek. He is not over cool or importurbable in his manner, which sometimes displays the embarias of a want of self-possession. The Misses Eden, though of a "certain age," are lively, voluble, intelligent and accomplished; sketching is their grande passion, and they draw divinely and untiringly. Every thing striking is transferred to their portfolios, and they will have India by and bye in them.—Agra Ukhbar. January 20.

AGRA TREASURY.—The Treasury has been unable for some time to answer the demands on it, but supplies are expected to arrive immediately from the neighbour.

ing collectorates.—Ibid.

CALCUTTA DOCKING COMPANY.—A meeting of this Company took place on the 16th February, when a report was read which gave entire satisfaction. The positive results of the year show a total of profits after paying all arrears for Ribour, of Rs. 84,000; or 20 per cent. upon the contributions paid up, or 14 per cent. We the whole capital as yet subscribed for, comprising 500 shares. The Company have decided on the purchase of the Lower Howrah Docks, for Rs. 2,18,000. The Company have now on the stocks a large steamer for Government, to be completed in June next; two small steamers for the tagging association, and other jobs of less consequence.

GUNPOWDER MANUFACTORY.—Messrs. Edam and Co., foreigners, were about to establish a gunpowder manufactory in the 24 Purgunnahs with the sanction of Government.

MUNNIPORE LEVY.—Orders were given for the Munnipore Levy, belonging to Rajah Gumbheer Sing, being equipped anew with Ordnance stores and small arms. The Levy was first raised in 1827, and then consisted of 1,200 muskets, and four field-pieces. It now counts 2000 men-at-arms.

NATIVE GAMBLING.—The gambling at the Rass Festival at Khurda has been put a stop to by the magistrates. Laes of rupees are annually lost at this shrine of vice, and hundreds of native families ruined.

CHINESE AND ENGLISH DICTIONARY.—The Indian Government has granted Rs. 1,500 for the printing of a vocabulary in the CochinChinese, and English Languages.

Exportation of Natives.—A vessel sailed during the past month (observes the Daily News, Feb. 8th), laden with Coolies for Demeura. Another is new equipping for that purpose, and will sail shortly. We understand the Agent for shipping these poor unfortunate people has stated that he is authorised to ship •10,000. They are to supply the place of those negroes who will not work under the blessings of the apprenticeship act. We advise the friend of the natives to read the horrifying details of the working of that system. (See No. V. of the Oriental Herald). And then, we would ask, whether it is probable that Bengali labourers will be more able to bear up either under the influence of the climate or the oppression of the slave driver? . . . . . . We have been informed by an eye-witness (adds the Calcutta Courier, same date) of certain abuses of those chokedars who were put on guard over the Cookes shipped for Demerara on board the Hesperus, Capt. Baxter, which vessel dropped down the river a few days ago. One of the Coolies died; and it is alleged, from the man having been refused permission, by the chokedars on gnard, to come upon deck. The Coolie in question was, it appears, against his will, kept down below during several hours of the night, not with standing repeated applications by him to be permitted to breathe the fresh air; and within a few hours after he was (by the exertions and orders of our informant) brought on deck, the poor

THE PILGRIM TAX.—It is generally understood, remarks a number of the Gyannaneshun, that the Government, in consequence of orders from the Court of Directors, is about to take measures for the abolition of all taxes on pilgrims. The Journal, in the course of asshort history of the pilgrim tax, states that the gross collections of the tax at Juggernauth, from 1810-11 to 1830-31, were Rs. 24,37,570. Annual average, 1,16,074. Total charges, 11,54,440. Annual average, 54,973. Not receipts, 12,87,790. Collections at Allahabad, from 1810-12 to 1830-1. Gross Ecliections, Rs. 16, 16, 657. Net receipts, 15,05 s69. Statement of duties on pilgrims at Gyah, from 1803-4 to 1830-31. Gross collections, Rs, 63, 16,762. Net receipts, 53,49,573. The Gyannaneshun asserts that Government makes nothing by the tax except in so far as the tax makes the idolaters defray the expense of their own idolatry, which Government have otherwise to make good from other sources. The paper recommends Government not to abolish, but still to collect the tax, and to pay over to the priests of the temple the sum of Sa. Rs. 36,000 yearly, allowing them to do what they pleased with that sum. The net receipts might be handed over to the education Committee, with a view-to-their establishing a school or college, in which English should be the sole language taught, either at Poorce or Calcutta.

Lieur. Kittor.—By the recommendation of the commander-in-chief, Lieut. M. Kittoe, who was lately dismissed the service for libelling his commanding officer, has been promised reinstatement, and was expected to return to his duty shortly.

of the 3d Dragoons. It is said to be owing to a trivial dispute which occurred on boarwithe ship Thomas Grenville.

CAVALRY RETIRING FUND. - A proposition for a Cavalry retiring Fund, has been started, and was well received.

SALE OF COMMISSIONS.—A private letter from Captain Grindlay, apprizes the Englishman, (Feb. 6.) that the Court of Directors have resolved not to enforce the restrictions against the sale of commissions, though entreated to do so in the memorial of Licut.-Colonel Powell.

The Free School Church.—In consequence of certain alarming fissures in the wall of the Free School Church, or St. Thomas's Church, the Governors called upon Lieut. Abercrombie, engineers, to examine and report upon the edifice. Ho has given it as his opinion that the whole of the western face would long upo have come down in a crash, if it were not for the belfrey, which acts as an abutment in support of that portion of the building. The Governors consequently met on the 11th January, to look into the extent and nature of that many, and having satisfied themselves that some measures should be immediately adopted, have called upon Mr. Parker, the original builder, to take down that part of the church, and have the necessary repairs effected; the whole to be conducted under the superintendence of Major Hutchipson of Engineers.

Decadence of the Chowringhee Corps Dramatique.—A paragraph in a January number of the Englishman shows symptoms of a certain breaking up of the Chowringhee Corps Dramatique, for, says this Johrnal, "Our Kean is sick and on the river. Our Proteus gone to the Sandheads. Count Almania gone to the North-Western Provinces. Our Bob on his back. The Monster, going to Cawnpore. Master Stephens going to Sinha. Master Modus unading his hits (his duty is probably meant). Mrs. Atkinson died lately whilst as ladies wish to be, &c." Mrs. Chester, not dead, but as ladies, &c., too. Mrs. Leach going home." If substitutes cannot be found for these secessions, and we know there will be much difficulty in finding them, the Calcutta Theatre, like the City Theatre, situated in Milton Street, Fore Street, London, (where Edmund Kean has often acted,) will be turned into a Methodist Chapel, or something of the kind, and a new actor will spring up in a Dr. Cantwell; to witness whose performances quite as large audiences will "gather together" at Chowringhee as heretofore, for Temperance Societies, we understand have been lately established in India; and water-drinking, or tee-to-tallism, quite a mania.

Signora Schieroni, Signora Schieroni, the Prima Donna of Calcutta, was about to depart for her native land, (France,) in consequence of all health.—

(January 26th.)

MRS. LEAGH.—The Managers Amateurs and Proprietors of the Chowringheo Theatre had presented Mrs. Leach with a jewel, on her taking leave of the Theatre, in consideration of the services she had done the Drama there.

Locust Flight.—A Correspondent of the Calcutta Conrier, from Benares, (Nov. 28,) writes, that a remarkable flight of locusts had just passed over that district, and left behind a scene of desolation. The flight resembled a thick column of smoke, and came from the East, but it does not appear that the locusts had committed any great devastation, not having settled any where previous to the above date. They are up, says the above authority, (who by the way, we are inclined to disbelieve in a measure,) not only vegetables, but every living thing, sheep, fowls, kids; nothing about Benares has escaped. A mournful silence prevails over the land.

THE RIVER GANGES. (Jan. 7.)—There was stated to be less water in the River at this date, than has been known, for many years. The Junina was hardly practicable for heavily laden boats.

THE MIRZAPORE COURT.—Increase of business in the Judges Court here, has led, it is stated, to the appointment of a second judge. Such an arrangement has long been wanted.

MURDER.—A Dhangur woman, aged about 22 years, was murdered on the 23rd January, in Fenwick's Bazaar. Her throat was cut by one of eight men, it was supposed, who slept in a room next to that where she and her husband lay. About three o'clock in the morning the husband cried out that his wife had been murdered, and the police soon after coming in, found her with her threat cut dreadfully, and life entirely extinct. A knife besmeared with blood was discovered near the head of the deceased, which was stated to have been in her possession before. The husband was also suspected to be the perpetrator of the murder.

A LEOPARD.—Last week, says the Daily News, Feb. 5, a woman was carried off by a Leopard from a garden at Chitpore. The animal was a tame one, and kept in the Menagerie of the Baboo, but had become exasperated and escaped. The poor woman had died from the injuries she had received.

Indigo Planters in Jessons.—There are, says assistant-surgeon Jacob, in a short account of the district of Jessore, between two and three hundred indigo planters in the district; these consist of English, French, and Spanish, with an intermixture of anglo-Indians; they are all extremely kind to the nativos; and this remark I make, because I had heard and opposite character of them. What a different aspect does this district present, since even so late a poriod as the conclusion of the eighteenth century, when its immediate vicinity was infested with pirates: such a change has been wrought by the indigo planters.

BHAUGULPORE MURDER.—A petty Rajah of a place called Muhawar has been convicted before the Sessions Judge of the wilful and unprovoked murder of an elephant-driver, whom he had tied to a post in a tent and there deliberately cut his body in pieces with a sword! The Judge had condemned the Rajah to suffer capitally, and referred the sentence to the Nizamut Adawlut for confirmation.

Delhi.—Starvation and misery prevailed to an unexampled extent, (February,) and it was feared no mitigation of the existing horrors would take place for many months to come.

CAWNFORE.—Famine was raging here, (February,) relief is imperatively required at the hands of Christians.

Nusseeuabad. (February.)—Small-pox was raging very virulently. Five or six officers had been attacked. The natives were dropping off like rotten sheep. The 74th had lately arrived. Grain was cheaper and the crep looking well. The Adjutant of the 52nd was under arrest by orders of Capt. Bell; the late business of an officer of the 22nd was stated to be quashed.

Simlah. (February.)—Bitterly cold. A famine expected. Ottah was selling at 11 seers, and gram 13 for a rupee.

Saugon. (Fcb.)—All doing well.

NATIVE STATES-Oude.-Ilis Majesty was fully expected to be quickly poisoned, but the royal victim was "looking sharp" about him, so that no edible or liquid should be consumed or drank by him, in a poisoned state. The Punjaub.— The merchants had discovered a new route between Cabool and the Company's Cashmere.—Here rice was selling at one maund and thirty puckha seers for the rupee; other grain in proportion (Jan.) The shawl weavers were in great distress; and they regretted having left Loodianah. Cabul.—The Nawah was (Jan.) at Bokhara, in the employ of the Ameer of that city, and is raising 5000 The command of the 1st regiment fell on Col. Rattray (now Fidah infantry. Mahomed Khan Bahadoor); the command of the 2nd on Mr. Harlan (temporary), Mr. East had lately left Cabul, not accepting employ there. Dr. Lord and Lieut. Wool of the navy, attached to the British Mission at Cabul, had proceeded to Koondun to Meer Morad Beg, the Chief having invited them over to examino the illness he is suffering from. These are the first Europeans that ever went openly to this country. Capt. Burnes and Licut. Leech of the Bombay service were at Cabul, quite well. Jeypoor.—The Ruwal Beree Sal stated to be very ill; his death ex-Gunduck .- (Translated from the Loodianah Ukhbar, of 27th Jan.) pected. Morad Beg, the Hakim, has been very ill for some time, and but little hopes entertained of his recovery. He sent a letter to Capt. A. Burnes, requesting the attendance of a European doctor. The doctor was sent, and the Hakim recovered. He complimented the English by saying, that he wished that nation would come and instruct his people. Candahar.—Travellers from this country report that the Nazim had an intention of sending one of his sons to Iran, in order if possible to effect a peace with its ruler; but having received a friendly letter from the English, promising to aid him against that power, he had postponed the embassy. Nepaul-Bheem Sein Thappa, late Dewan of the Ruler, has been Icleased from imprisonment, and the Ruler has granted him a salary of 3000 Rs. per month.

CAPT. WADE.—Capt. Wade political agent, residing at Loodianah, has received instructions to join the camp of the Governor-General by Dawk, (Jan. 7.)

A Word from Sylhet—Lieut. Allardyce.—Lieut. Allardyce arrived at Sylhet ou the 23d January, with a detachment of sappers and extress on his way to Dootputly. The latter part of his trip appears to have been any thing but pleasant to himself, as a number of his men mutinied, one of them a Havildar. One evening taking a stroll on the bank of the river, Lieut. A. met this Havildar, who said, "you had better not pass that way or you will be shot," and made use of much disrespectful language. The number of mutineers was six. Lieut. A. placed them all in arrest, and very properly so. A Court-Martial had mot to enquire into the affair.

The Municone Raja.—A company of the 70th, under command of Lieut. Henressey, and Ensign Mcrcer, were ordered out in search of this old offender, who lately abscouded from Sylhet. He was on his parole. He is now collecting together a force. He is a notoriously troublesome character.

SIMLA—THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEFA (19th Jan.)—One of the chimneys in the Commander-in-Chief's house caught fire lately, and caused some bustle and a pretty good expenditure of ice in the extinguishing; water not being plentiful.—The weather, very fine.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL .- The Governor-General and his establishment were expected at Simla about the beginning of March.

THE BISHOP.—The Bishep was so ill on the 21st January as to be unable to preach a charity sermon of some consequence which he had promised to do on that date.

THE BISHOP AND THE AGRA SCHOOL BOOK SOCIETY.—"The Bishop of Calcutta, ever foremost to promote useful public objects, has added his name to the list of subscribers to the Agra School Book Society for 300 rapees per amount."— Agra Ukhbar, January 27th.

CIVIL FUND PROCEEDINGS.—At a Meeting of the Civil Fund, (Jan. 29,) Mr. Bird in the Chair; the leading question was regarding an application on behalf of the children of the late Mr. Tilghman. On his death, the net proceeds of his estate amounted to Sic. Rs. 64,800, of which Rs. 19,900 were found invested in the second and third 5 per cent loans, and the remainder (Rs. 44,900) in the third 4 per cents. The children, however, having been sent to England, and the executors being about to proceed there, it was deemed advisable to remit (with the exception of Rs. 10,300 left in the third 4 per cent loan, to meet any demand against the estate,) the whole of the proceeds to England, where they were invested in the 3 per cent consols, as the Court of Chancery directs in such cases. The question for the consideration of the meeting was, whether the interest should be computed at what it actually is in England, or what it would have been had the principal remained invested in India Funds. It was resolved that the income be calculated at the rate of interest the principal would have afforded as invested, or as it might have been invested, in India Funds.

THE HON. Mrs. Shore.—The next case before the above meeting of the Civil Fund, was that of the Hon. Mrs. Shore, whose marriage settlement, £210 per annum, was invested in English Three per Cent. Cousels previously to the death of her husband. The question was, whether this is legally disposable preperty according to a rule of the Fund. The meeting considered it was not.

MRS. JENNINGS.—An application from Mrs. W. R. Jennings came under consideration. It appears, by this lady's schedule of property, that her late husband's estate amounts to Rs. 68,000, but Rs. 38,000 of that sum being the proceeds of the sale of a Stamp Darogah's property, for whose embezzlement Mr. Jennings was held responsible by Government, is held in suspense pending a reference to Government. Resolved, that Mrs. Jennings' income for the prosent be fixed with reference to the assets of the estate in the position in which they were at the time of her application, subject to future adjustment.

Uncovenanted Servants' Family Pension Fund.—The majority of the directors of the Uncovenanted Servants' Family Pension Fund, have, we hear, granted Mr. D. Clarke, the secretary, a salary of one hundred rupees per measure, and thirty rupees for office expenses. It the Funds of the Society admitted of such an expense being incurred, we, on the principle that every labourer is worthy of his hire, would make no objection to the arrangement, but when we take into consideration, that the capital of the Society dees not exceed 15,000 Rs., yielding just now at six per cent., 900 Rs. per annum, we conceive it injudicious to grant this allowance to Mr. Clarke, however well he may merit it. We have been told that the dissenting members of the direction have entered a strong protest against the allowance granted to the secretary, under the present state of the Fund, and have recommended the same for the consideration and sanction of subscribers, which we conceive the most legitimate course to pursue.—Englishman, Jan. 29.

DISTRICT CHARITABLE SOCIETY.—The Funds of the District Charitable Society were stated to be in a declining state at a January meeting of the members.

OPIUM RELIEF.—The answers of the Bengal Government to the petition of the Penang and Singapore merchants have been published, and certainly give as miserable and lame an excuse as could be expected, for the partiality of the measure of relief, which has eaused so much ink-shed. The answers state, that it was not because the opium being purchased at high prices was re-sold at a loss, that the remission of the price was granted, but because the Government deemed it necessary to take measures aimed to effect a reduction of prices in the China and other manages for opium, and "there were known to be holders, whose fair market would be effected by these measures."—Englishmen.

THE WELLINGTON TESTIMONIAL.—The officers of the 70th N. I., had subscribed munificiently to the Wellington testimonial, the subscriptions to which were running up to a large amount already. Lord Auckland's subscription was 1,000 Rs. The Bishop's 300. Various gentlemen high in the civil service, gave amounts varying between 250 and 100 Rs. each.

STEAM COMMUNICATION EXTENSION.—Lord Auckland's reply to the Address of the inhabitants of Calcutta, voted to him at the late Steam Meeting, (end of Jan.) was looked upon as a document of the first importance in reference to Lord A.'s declaration, that no opportunity should be neglected on his part of aiding by all means in his power the renewed representations (on the Steam Communication subject,) about to be submitted to the authorities at home. His Lordship's patronage loses nothing of its weight in, that it comes from him rather in his private capacity, than as the supreme head of the Indian Government. It is wholly impossible that the authorities at home, (says the Englishman,) can withstand the accumulating testimony to the value of the fullest extension of Steam Communication thus unequivocally declared by those who are most capable of appreciating its importance. None can forget Lord William Bentinek's memorable declaration that he held the advantages of Steam direct, and indirect, to be so great, that they would be cheaply bought at any price.

MR. MACAULAY AND THE PRESS.—The Englishman avers with reference to Mr. Macaulay's apparent contempt for the Indian Press, "that Mr. Macaulay did to several persons of our acquaintance speak contemptuously of the Indian press, and that he never read the papers at all."

CENSORSHIP OF THE PRESS.—The Englishman, and other Calcutta papers, take notice of a rumoured censorship of the Press which is expected to be established at the instigation of "the Sage who is now on his way home; we alludo to the great and sapient Mr Macaulay."

CAPTAIN WOOD'S HORSE ARTILLERY TROOP.—Capt. H. J. Wood's troop of Horse Artillery arrived at Duni-Dum, (Jan. 22), from Kumaul, after a march of eighty-two days, not including halts, with only two men in hospital.

Brig on Fire.—An outward-bound Laccadive brig was totally burnt off Bindge-Budge about the middle of January. Sho had 8000 Rs. in cash on board; half of which, however, has been recovered.

FAILURE OF TARRACHUND DAY AND Co.—The late extensive failure of the native House, Tarrachund Day and Co., has eaused great anxiety amongst the opinm speculators, and there was a corresponding excitement in the bazaar on account of their engagements. Their liabilities are to the amount of ten laes, against which they can only bring four lacs.

LAUDABLE SOCIETY.—The half-yearly Meeting of the Laudable Society took place, Jan. 26th. The funds of the Society up to 31st December, 1837, amount to Sa. Rs. 9,53,126 9 6, from which, deduct the eventual dividend at the rate of Sa. Rs. 2,000 per share to complete Rs. 6,000 of each share, on 148\frac{1}{2} \text{ shares on fifty lives already lapsed, leaving a surplus of Sa. Rs. 6,56,626 9 6. The lapses adjusted between July and December, 1837, amount to 20\frac{2}{2} \text{ shares held on twelve lives, to which being added 127\frac{1}{2} \text{ shares on twenty-eight lives lapsed between January 1835 and June 1837, makes a total of 148\frac{1}{2} \text{ shares in fifty lives. Mr. Greenlaw submitted to the meeting his plan for the application of the surplus fund of the Society at the end of the present term. Counsel's opinion was to be taken on Mr. Groenlaw's propositions.

THE TAGORE RACE CUP.—The Tagore Cup of this year, 1838, is round and shallow, having the rim surmounted by a vine in high-relief, of which the fruit, leaves and tendrils are nature's self. It is supported on a pillar, the sides of which arc also boautifully chased with vinc leaves, and frem the base of it are springing three chariots, each with a pair of fiery coursers, in eager start for the Olympic Goal. Each charioteer has his device or crest on the head of the poll of his chariot; and each has a provoking smile of success on his countenance, as he strains his gazing eye towards the distant object of his ambition; but the fierce and haughty air of the victorious Cerebus is easily distinguishable. The horses are superb.— Hurkare.

RATES OF POSTAGE.—By the notice from the General Department, to which we alluded on Saturday, observes the Hurkaru, January 22d, we find there is an alteration in the rates of postage to be henceforth leviod on letters to and from Engled by the overland mail, in consequence of the Act 1st Victoria, chapter 76. and which supersedes clause 31, ef Rules for the management of the Post-Office Department. As far as we understand the Act, for it must be acknowledged there is the usual quantum of obscurity, and we are not satisfied that we have arrived at its true meaning, it would seem that letters sent through any other channels than the "East India mail from the United Kingdom, by Her Majesty's Mediterranean packets" and the Post Offices of the United Kingdom superscribed "via Marseilles," will be liable here in addition to the inland postage to a charge of 8 annas for a single, I ruped for a double, and I rupee 8 annas for a treble lotter; and 8 annas for every \frac{1}{4} tola weight beyond—the respective weights of the above being I tola—  $1\frac{1}{3}$  tola—and  $2\frac{1}{4}$  tola. But letters coming and going through these channels will be subject to no charge in this country, beyond the inland postage. Newspapers, pamphlets, and unscaled packets of printed papers will, as hitherto, be charged only the inland postage, come from where and how they may.

WANT OF CLEANLINESS IN CALCUTTA.—The Hurkaru, Jan. 26, remarks,—. "Wo recently alluded to the organization of a Committee of the inhabitants of Entally for conservancy purposes, and the good effects likely to follow in other suburban districts by the establishment of similar institutions; but it was not our intention to intimate that we were at all satisfied with the state of things within the Mahratta ditch connected with this subject; or that we were not eagerly looking out for the Municipal worthics, to whom the future elegaliness and salubrity of Calcutta is to be intrusted, and by whom "eur ways are te be monded." Indeed musances of all descriptions crowd so thick and fast upon us that it is difficult to say where to begin; and what perhaps renders the notice of them as fruitless as it would be endloss, is the difficulty thrown in the face of all attempts at summary remedy under the orders of the Magistrates in many of the worst cases, as they seem to be of opinien that their powers do not extend to remeve a nuisance committed on private property; and that an indictment in the Supreme Court and the verdict of a Jury are necessary for that purpose. We hope the Lord Mayor, wot is to be, will stand upon no geremony, when he comes into contact with the various abominations which salute our olfactory and visual organs throughout the City of Palaces.

Should we have the good fortune to be appointed to the office of mace bearer, we shall in the first instance certainly guide His Lordship's steps to Fouwick's bazaar, where a colony of mehturs have established themselves to the disgust and danger of the whole neighbourhood.

There, taties and cess-pools fall into the drains of Jann bazaar and Freo School street; and as about 200 feet of the former are not pucka, the filth from these pools becomes statienary, and infects the air so much as to cause serious apprehensions of the health of the children at the Free School, should the drains continue in this state much longer. It is true, we have high authority, that although "such smells may be unpleasant, they are not unhealthy;" but we confess we are sceptical on this point.

In other parts of the town there are similar "horrors" to that of the Fenwick bazaar, and we understand the gentlemen employed on the "Fire Committee" to superintend the erection of new huts, so as te preserve as much space and regularity as possible for the purpose of ventilation and cleanliness have experienced the greatest difficulty from the proprietors of the taties and eess-poels, in effecting their object.

220 NATIVE INFANTRY—NUSSEERABAD.—The 22nd regiment, N. I., under the command of Lieut.-Col. Rich, were inspected at Nusseerabad, on the 22d Jan., by Brigadier Burgh, Commanding the Field Force, whe was pleased to express himself highly gratified with the very soldier-like appearance of the corps, and the steady manner in which it went through its manœuvres.

Cunious Accidents—Merrut.—On the 29th January, some serious accidents occurred at Meerut, in the second brigade of Horse Artillery, when at field excreise. A non-commissioned officer was thrown completely forward from his horse, which falling over him, occasioned his being carried off the plain in a very senseless state.

One gunner had, while in the act of loading, the extremities of his right arm entirely carried away, and the right side of his face shockingly disfigured—he was conveyed to the hospital in a very pitiable state; this accident was, at first, attributed to the injudicious management of the gunner serving the vent, but the wounded appearance of his thumb, must, however, exonerate him from much of the censure justly attached to neglect of duty at his very responsible station.

THE NONEVA.—The Noneva was celebrated at the Roman Catholic Church at Howrah, by Fré Paul do Gradoly. The church was brilliantly illuminated on the occasion, and after service fireworks were exhibited.

Major Pew.—Letters from the westward to the Delhi Gazette, Jan. 21th, mention the arrival of Major Pew, at Nusseerabad, with a nine pounder draw, by camels, on the 30th Dec., having reached Delhi in fifteen marches, without distrossing the camels.

Assam.—We gather from the labours of Dr. M'Cosh, who has drawn up a full account of this country, from official documents and which has been printed at the cost of Government, that the revenue derived from the population of Assam may be fairly estimated at the grand total of 799,519 rupees.

Bank of Bengal, and the question referred to them by the Directors, was: whether the claim of interest against Baboo Rogorám Cossain, upon certain notes of Palmer and Co., bearing the Baboo's endorsement, and unpaid at the failure of that firm, should be remitted; he having discharged the principal—and upon the motion of Mr. Pattle, it was agreed that inasmuch as subsequently to the order of the Privy Conneil reversing the decree of the Supreme Court, in the case of the Bank of Bengal, v. the Assignees of Palmer and Co., which was a cause, respecting certain surplus funds retained by the Bank, the principal had been paid by the Baboo, that the interest on the heavy debt in question should be remitted to the Baboo.

MISMANAGEMENT OF THE COUNT OF REQUESTS.—The Commissioners of the Court of Requests are everlastingly making the most absurd blunders, both against Law and common sense—and what is worse, the present Commissioners appear to be endowed with a forty-horse power of obstinacy. They have taken it upon themselves lately to lay it down as Petty Court Law, that a contract with one man gives a liability on another—and that if an Indigo Planter, engage with a Sarang, for the services of himself and crew, and that the said Sarang like a rogue, cheat his men out of their pay, that then the men may come upon the owner of the boat, who never made any contract with them; and to whom the men themselves never dreamt of looking for their wages, until the Petty Court Commissioners, by a decision worthy of Midas himself, about six months ago put this nonsense into people's heads. How this mode of decision will affect the harbour shipping is a question not unworthy of consideration. The Sarangs of the steamers also, will now have a beautiful example to follow—and owners of ships and boats, and all house-builders, coachmakers, and other individuals who hire their workmen in gangs, making the contract with the headman, are now totally at the mercy of their workmen and the Commissioners, universal consternation is the natural consequence, and thus in the words of the play:—Doth Conscience (Petty Court Conscience) make cowards of us all! 1!—Calcutta Courier, February 3d.

Mn Turton's Last Letter to India.—The Englishman, (Feb. 7.) publishes the following copy of Mr. Turton's last letter to the Secretary to the Black Act

Committee:--

My Dear Dickens,—Things as to the Black Act remain precisely in the state they were three months ago, but I am preparing for my parliamentary campaign, and hope by next month to have something to communicate. I fear it will not be favourable. I am most anxious, as you may suppose, to hoar what you and the committee think of my attempt to get into parliament. I am now going to endeavour to open the return at Worcester, a very radical plact, and think I should be nearly certain of being returned for it, if the present election is set aside. Crawford, you know, has lost his return for Proston. We, the Indians, have been exceedingly unhacky on this occasion. Crawford's return would have been a great thing for us, for he is well acquainted with Indian matters, has taken up the Black Act business con amore, and has helped me without any apparent jealousy and dissatisfaction. I have written to Dwarkanauth, and in it stated rather more fully what I am about at Worcester. But I have been so interrupted, that I have not time to write to you as I had intended. I am much better in health than I was.

Always my dear Dickens, sincerely your's,

Temple, November, 1, 1837.

THOS. E. M. TURTON.

Government Advances on Goods—False Report.—With reference to a report prevalent that the Chamber of Commerce, had lately sent in an application to Government for further advances on goods; and that Government in answer had refused to make any increase upon the advances already made—"upon enquiry we understand," says the Calcutta Courier, (Feb. 10th,) "that a meeting was held by the Chamber of Commerce, on the requisition of some of the mercantile body, but that the Chamber decided against applying to Government for any renewal of their advances, and left individuals in want, to make their own applications. Ollicial letters from Mr. Secretary Prinsep have been received by a house or two here, since the determination of the Chamber of Commerce. We presume they have applied, and have been met by a refusal; and hence the rurnour, that has been current for a willy or two past."

AGRA.—The Ukhbar, Feb 3, says, the weather continues dry, with not a sign of the rain so anxiously and hopelessly lobked for by every one: should this month pass without any falling, the mortality amongst cattle must be considerable, and seriously affect the Rubboe crops. The accounts from all quarters represent the country as labouring under a severe famine.

ALLYGURH RACES.—The races commence on the 5th February, and are expected to be good, though the attendance will be slight. The report in the Delhee Gazette, that rain had fallon lately in this district, is unfortunately unfounded.

Remarkable Government Order-Lieut. M. Kittor.—The following General Order has been published by Sir Henry Fane to the Bengal army. That army may well feel proud of such a tribute from such a quarter; as it holds them out to their country and the world, in colours of the most honourable line, and emanated from one, who himself proclaims the deep interest he feels in their character and welfare, while all acknowledge his own peculiar fitness to stand forth as a judge on the oceasion.

"Head Quarters, Simla, 12th January, 1838.—His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief feels the highest pleasure in making the following communication to the Bengal army, which he trusts will be as gratifying to them to read, as it is to His Excellency to publish.

On the 1st of January, 1838, the number of European commissioned officers, belonging to the Bengal army, was two thousand four hundred and thirty-nine. The number of native commissioned officers was one thousand seven hundred and nino. During the past year, 1837, of this large body of officers, but five European, and four native officers have been charged with such conduct as has rendered courts-martial necessary. Of the cases of European officers, one was most honourably acquited of all moral crime, the crime of another arose from accident, and two of the remaining three, were cases of breach of discipline, chiefly from errors of judgment.

There was but one conviction, comprising any scrious turpitude, amongst either class of officers. His Excellency deems such an absence of crime or misconduct, to be most highly honourable to the officers of the Bengal army, European and Native; and he offers them the tribute of his warmest approbation in consequence. He feels that the circumstances detailed, will fully justify his soliciting, as a boun to himself, the full pardon of Lieutenant M. Kittoc, of the 6th native infantry, recently dismissed by sentence of a general court-martial: and he will immediately make an application through the Supremo Government, to the Honor, ble the Court of Directors, to this effect.

By order, &c., J. Lumley, Major General, Adj.-General of the Army.

Mu. Hongson—Buddhist Literature.—The Asiatic Society of Paris has caused to be struck, and to be presented to Mr. Hodgson, resident Minister at the Court of Khatmandho, a gold medal, with appropriate inscription, designed to testify the Society's admiration of those exertions on the part of Mr. Hodgson to which we owe the discovery and diffusion throughout Europe of the Sanserit Literature of the Buddhists. Mr. Hodgson, it was expected, would early receive from the French Government the insignia of the Legion of Honour.

TEMPERANCE Society.—By a report of a Quarterly Meeting of the Temperance Society at Calcutta, held Jan. 20th, Lieut.-Colonel James, in the Chair, we find the funds of the Society in a bad state, and their labours of little or no utility. Many soldiers had enrolled themselves members, but had shamefully failen off from the rules of the Society. Archdeacon Dealtry, in a speech delivered at the above meeting regretted this fact, but enjoined the Society to persevere in their laudable efforts to superinduce temperate habits. The Rev. Mr. Proby spoke at the Meeting. He thought temperance societies were increasing in India.

Madras.

STEAM PETITION.—The Committee had published (Feb. 16th) the draft of the Petition which it is proposed to lay before Parliament, it is nearly a counterpart of that adopted at Bengal. The Conservative fears the Madras public will never emulate the unity and activity displayed by the City of Palaces, and rival their 6,019 signatures.

STEAM COMMITTEE AND CAPT. GRINDLAY.—We are happy to observe, (salgethe U. S. Gazette, Feb. 10,) by the report of the Madras Steam Committee, that the discussion regarding the conduct of their agent Capt. Grindlay, has terminated satisfactorily to all parties. Captain Grindlay is exonorated from all blame, and the sincerity of his advocacy of the Comprehensive Scheme most fully established.

MR WAGHORN.—The Committee have very properly expressed a hope that the Madras public will afford Mr. Waghorn their support in the registration of their letters through his Agency.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—The Commander-in-Chief purposed quitting the Presidency on a tour about the 5th March.

THE EARL AND COUNTESS OF CARDIGAN.—The Earl and Countess of Cardigan are expected to arrive in a few days at Madras, whence they will proceed across the Peninsula to Mangalore, and from thence to Bombay, to catch if possible the Atalanta Steamer.—Spectator, Feb. 7.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN MOORE.—Letters from Moulmoin received in Madras, Feb.

14th, reported the death of Capt. Moore, H. M.'s 62d regiment.

Mr. Anderson.—Mr. Anderson, late of the Law Commission, and Member of Council (cleet) for Bombay, had arrived in the Charles Grant from Calcutta, and landed under the usual salute. Lord Elphinstone's state-earriage, was waiting Mr. Anderson's landing, when the horses took fright and broke away, dashing the carriage against the flag staff with such violence, that the pole and splinter bar were shattered to pieces. Mr. Anderson re-embarked the same evening, and the Charles Grant proceeded on her voyage.

Military Rumours.—It was bruited, (Feb. 7,) that Capt. Alexander, Fort Adjt., had been relieved by the Court of Directors, from the heavy pecuniary responsibility for which he was held liable. That Capt. Sprye was to receive £500 as a compensation for his loss of allowances, and that Major Rorison was to return taking duty.

Full Batta .- It was reported that the troops stationed at Hyderabad, Nagpore, and Jaulnah, wore to participate in the benefits of full batta.

Vacancies. Jan. 20.—Two lucrative appointments of 4,000 and 3,400 Rs. a month, become vacant by the retirement of Mr. McDonell, late senior Member of Board of Revenue, and the expected transference of Mr. D. Elliott to the Law Commission. Mr. Dent is spoken of as likely to be the new senior Member, and Mr. Maelean as second.

DINNER TO THE HON. G. E. RUSSELL.—The dinner given to the Hon. G. E. Russell, at the Banquoting room, (middle of January,) was of a most enthusiastic character. About 150 gentlomen assembled, amongst whom were Lord Elphinstone, (who presided,) Sir R. Comyn; the Hon. Mr. Sullivan; Major-General Dovcton; Sir E. Gambier; the Hon. Mr. Lushington; Major-General Vigoureux; and the heads of all departments, Civil, Military, and Medical. A spacious tent was creeted in front of the Banqueting room, and a transparency was placed over the entrance to the Hall, displaying Mr. Russell's arms, supported on the one side by the insignia of civil occupation, and on the other by military trophies, amidst which the names of Kimedy and Goomsur were intermingled, and the whole surmounted by the words "Russell, Farewell." Several very neat and effective speeches were delivered in the course of the evening. Mr. Russell's services were commented upon in a manner that could not fail to produce in him a foeling of the proudest gratification.

PRESENTATION OF A PIECE OF PLATE TO MR. McDonell.—A grand Nautch was given (February) by the native friends of Mr. Me Donell, on the occasion of their presenting that gentleman with a superb vase as a token of their osteem and regard.

FAREWELL ADDRESS TO MR. McDonell from the Beach Department .-

An address was presented (Feb. 6) to Mr. McDonell by a deputation from the managers, clerks, and other persons employed in the Beach Departments, expressive of their concern at his departure. To C. Ramasawmy Braminy's speech, dult-vered on the occasion, Mr. McDonell returned an appropriate reply.

THE NEW LIGHT-HOUSE.—The authorities having it in view to creet a new Light-House in some situation better adapted to accommodate mariners than that of the old light-house, a number of commanders of vessels had addressed the authorities, proposing that the site of the new building should be nearly opposite the present place of anchorage. It was deemed very probable their recommendation would be adopted.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CLERGY .- Dr. O'Connor (of the Roman Catholic persuasion) had published (February) an address to the Roman Catholics of Miliapore who are charged with schism for not obeying the Pope's bull, although it appears that the original constitution of the see of Miliapore was founded jointly by the Crown of Portugal and the Pope in 1606, and that it contained a clause that the Pope was not to exercise his claimed plenary power in dispensing with the constltution without the consent of the Crown of Portugal. Notwithstanding the clause in the constitution of 1606, the Pope has now interfered (for the second time) contrary to the constitution. The Portuguese Clergy insist (as they have done before, in 1763) that it is an unlawful interforence and decline to pay resport to the Pope's mandate. For this they are denounced by Dr. O'Connor as schismatics, and the thunders of the Popedom are threatened. The line of argument in the above case taken by Dr. O'Connor and the British Press is that the Queen of Portugal can have no subjects within the British dominions, and that no foreign Potentate can exercise authority therein. Neither has the Pontiff of Rome, says the Conservative, "any plengly power, which an Englishman can allow, to supersede and cancel an agreement of his predecessors. The Miliapore Clergy are doing right in resisting the undue assumptions of the Pope."

MADRAS HORTICULTURAL AND AGRICULTURAL Society.—Amongst the resolutions of the Meeting of this Society, held 7th February, was one to the effect, that as the present state of the funds will not admit of a greater monthly expenditure in the Experimental Garden than 120 Rs., the Garden Committee be requested to reduce it to that sum. It was also resolved, that certain subscribers be applied to for the amount of outstanding subscriptions to the amount of 1,503 Rs.

The Spectator and Herald allude to the funds of this Society as being in a decidedly low condition, and the system of management pursued by the Committee open to much censure; "The funds have been mainly exhausted upon the experimental garden, and this, inclusive of a late grant of money (2000 Rs.) from Government, which the repeated applications of the Madras Council Board, could alone induce the supreme authorities to confer." With reference to the Society's mismanagement, where, asks the above journals, has ever been the invitation to the members at large to visit and inspect its condition and products? where is the report of the Committee specially named for its superintendence, communicating all the experiments tried in it, and their issue, upon which people generally calculated as promising to form a manual of instruction to Horticulturists? whore is even the annual shew of vegetables so fully expected at the late meeting of the Society? The Society is evidently drooping, and if improvements do not take place, will assuredly disgust the subscribers, and sink into nothingnoss.

Madras Races.—The Races this year have gone off with great spirit, and the expectations of right good sport been fully realized. A greater number of first-rate horses have seldom been brought out on any course in India, and the glove of sportsman-like defiance may be thrown down to our neighbours of Bengal and Bombay to rival the time recorded for Maiden, Match, and cup. A series of sweop-stakes, was announced for the Madras Spring Meeting of 1839. It was deemed an earnest of good sport in prospect, that would keep alive the spirit and character of the Madras Race Course. Independent of the sport promised, there will be of course the usual cups and plates, and Lord Elphinstone has bestowed his encouraging patronage by the gift of a cup to be run for next year. Fortune partially hid her face from one to whom she has been prodigal of favours, during the present Season's races, "but," says the Spectator, (February 17th) "we expect to see the voteran Mr. Fox at the meeting of 1839, adding fresh laurels to his general career of victory.

THE FAVOURITE HORSES AT THE RACES.—Colonel Lonney's Samulte won the Chamier Cup this season. This horse was the favourite throughout the races. Mr. Smollett's Spanker won a first-rate race against Mr. Fox's Zebie and Xerioa. The Commodore's Fearmought won the sweepstakes against Mr. Smollett's Siley, and Mr. Fox's Wenlock. Mr. Fox has not, it is believed, come off a winner this time, although generally very fortunate.

Government Lorrent.—The sale of Tickets in the Government Lottery has (as usual of late) remarks the Spectator, excited great dissatisfaction. Though there were more speculators than ever, the prizes, particularly the higher ones, strangely shunned the light. It was averred that the competition of the native community for tickets had brought the latter to a high premium. Five thousand is the number of first class tickets for the scheme of the present lottery (Feb.) and their cost price only 63,360; yielding 96 per cent. to Government above the profit desired from the Inquests.—In a single wock half a degen inquests had been held (Feb.) on as many natives, who had died either dead drunk, from drowning, or other natural causes.

DISTRICT SELDOM VISITED—RAMNAD.—A correspondent of the Conservative states that he recently (previously to Feb. 14th) passed through Ramnad. Ho describes the district as healthy, and the country around pleasing. The situation of the Commandant he thought very lonely, as there is no other European resident within many miles; and the necessaries of tea, coffee, and bread, are not even there procurable. The country was wearing a flourishing appearance, and from the copious rains that had fallen, there was every reason to expect cheapness and plenty. A missionary who had quitted Ramnad a little before the above authority's visit, was stated to be held in great esteem by the Rajah and his people; so much so, indeed, that a farewell dinner was given to the rev. gentleman (whoever he may be) and his family by the Zemindar (there styled Rajah) as a mark of respect on their leaving his country. The missionary's departure was very much regretted by the inhabitants of Ramnad generally.

TRICHINOPOLY.—Although it was stated that the troops of this cantonment were in a healthy state, a correspondent informs the United Service Gazette, Feb. 10, that the military in the fort were in a sickly state, and which he attributed to want of ventilation owing to the fort being choked up with buildings, many of which ought (he says) to be pulled down so as to promote a free circulation of air in all directions. He further states, that in the last six or eight mouths, eleven conductors and staff sergeants had been admitted into hospital at Trichinopoly; six of whom had died. "We think, (observes the United Service Gazette,) it would be very conducive to the health of the troops, were committees ordered to inspect and report upon every fort in the country. We can installed a spect near an old mosque in the Fort of Bellary, notorious for the vilest odours, especially at night, and surely it must be injurious to the health of troops to inhale such a tainted atmosphere.

REV. MR. DEANE.—The departure of the Rev. Mr. Deane ou sick certificate, appears to have caused very general regret at Trichinopoly.

BANGALORE FANCY BALL .- Preparations were making (Feb.) for a fancy ball on an unusually grand scale, in honour of Lady Gough, to take place on the 19th Feb. Theatrical amusements were prosecuted with much gusto.

The Fancy Ball, given by Her Majesty's 54th, on 8th January, is stated to have gone off admirably; another entertainment of the same kind took place on the 16th, at the public rooms.

BANGALORE-MILITARY NEWS .- A letter from Bangalore of the 20th January, mentions, that the 20th N. I., marched on that morning for Secunderabad. The detachment 49th regt. escorting Eieut. Hill, had got beyond Oodoghorry in Khoudistan, by latest accounts, all well.

CAPT. CAMPBELL—HUMAN SACRIFICES.—Capt. Campbell was also above the Ghauta, and had rescued no less than eighteen children destined victims for this season's sacrifice.

GENERAL WELSH .-- General Welsh and staff arrived at Berhampore on the 13th January, and the inspection of the 49th was to commence on the 15th; the 43d was expected to arrive by the 20th January.

MADRAS ROADS.—The appointment of Dr. Sanderson with six assistants to the medical superintendence of tho 1,600 convicts who have been assigned for the repair of the roads, was looked upon as a pretty strong indication of Government's intentions on this subject. The Royal Asiatic Society too had begun to interest themselves in road improvements. It is therefore probable, says the Conservative, that the senate of Leadenhall-street will follow their example.

Post Office Rules.—We united with our contemporaries, may the Merald, Jan. 31, in pointing out the great hardship which the public enfered on the list introduction of the New Post Office Act, by a mistaken interpretation of the classes respecting the delivery of letters. We have much pleasure in being now able to say, that the inconvenience which we complained of, no longer exists. We receive our letters at two miles distance from the Post Office almost always before ten o closed Small change can now, we are glad to learn, be procured at the Post Office. This does away with another inconvenience which has caused the consure of the press.

NATIVE JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.—Government has replied (January 23d) to the memorial of Nativo Gentlemen desiring to be enrolled as Justices of the Peace without emolument. The Governor in Council states that he will be improved avail bimself of the aid of the native community in the mode pointed out, as the exigencies of the case may require it.

Unclaimed Lorragy Prize (January 27).—By a notice in the Gasette from the Government Bank we learn that with two or three others of small amount, there is one prize ticket (No. 1041) remaining unclaimed of the sum of Rs. 30,000.

CHOLERA IN ARNEE.—The Cholera was raging in the Town of Arnee, about the beginning of January. 11 deaths had occurred in H. M.'s 63d regiment, and about 80 mon were in hospital. The malady was confined to the Town.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF'S TOUR OF INSPECTION.—The Commander-ins Chief's Tour of inspection and review would comprise the Centre, Mysore, and Southern divisions of the Army. The head-quarters were expected to be established at Bangaloro about the 10th April.

PRESENTATIONS TO THE MADRAS AGRICULTURAL-HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY. At the Meeting of 7th February, the Honourable the President, in the Chair, an abstract of legicrs and presentations received since December last, was read. Mr. Waghorn hall presented the Society gratuitously with a chest filled with the best and latest Maco Cotton-seed in Egypt. From T. Blano, Esq., dated Bellary, No. vember 8, presenting four loads of Sugar Cane in course of cutting, and despatching to Madras. The following presentations were also made; from Messrs. Kerr and Co., of Singapore, six boxes of Pine-apple plants, of the yellow, green, chandelier, and variegated descriptions, grown on the Island. From P. B. Smollett, Esq., of the Board of Revenue, ten ploughs (to be paid for). From the Hon. the President, samples of Cape Wheat. Barley-soed, and a very fine kind of Clover. (The wheat and barley were thriving well, but the clover had not vegetated in the Society's garden on the 1st February. From Mr. Hogg, of Madras, two plants of the Sauighur Orange, which, after many years trial without any success, had at length aprung up and were in a healthy state. From Major Wallace, samples of Sea Island Cottonseed of a trueble kind. Lieutenant Munro had tried some seeds in a hot-bed propared in the Society's garden in January. Seeds from Captain Dalrymple, of Scotland, had been sent, many of them from plants which had been tried at Bangalere without success. Lieutenant Munro put them into the hot-bed and some of every packet vegetated in seven days. He had never before observed such magical effects worked by a hot-bcd. A letter from E. Norris, Esq., Secretary to the Royal Asiatio Society was read, requesting that the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Madras would favour the Society in London with any information procurable with respect to different breeds of Indian cattle (oxen) known for their efficiency in the operations of Agriculture. Mr. Chamier, secretary of the Revenue Department, Madras, had forwarded to the Society certain original papers from the Governor of Bombay, conveying information respecting the measures adopted for the improvement of the breed of sheep on that side of India. The papers to be returned with all convenient dispatch after use. By the quarterly estimate of the state of the Society's funds, we perceive they are by no means in a flourishing state.

ERECTION OF NEW BARRACKS AT SECUNDERABAD.—The Spectator, (Feb. 3) says, "We hope soon to hear that some decided steps are taken for the crection of the new barracks at Secunderabad. The subject has been under the serious consideration of Government, and a few days back Colonel Kitchen gave his testimony before Council regarding the existing barracks, which he denounced in unequivocal terms as most unhealthy to the European troops. If it be true that the Court of Directors have sanctioned the disbursement of a large sum to erect new barracks, and that these new standing require the disbursement of a smaller but still considerable amount to be put in an efficient state, surely the painful but conclusive testimony to the insalubrity of the latter, found in the records of the European eorps stationed there, may make humanity plead to mark where the course of a large economy in expenditure really lies.

RETIRING REGULATIONS AND SUGGESTIONS FOR ACCELERATING PROMOTION IN THE ARMY.—A memorial has been published in Madras which sets out with stating that the lately established retiring regulations are unlikely to produce the effoct on promotion generally, that has been expected therefrom, however beneficial they may be in occasional cases. It then goes on to show that the only effectual mode of producing gradual yet certain promotions in the Indian army is to put an end to the practice of allowing Colonels of regiments to remain effective till the period of their decease. The memorialist then points out that there are at this moment three colonels of Infantry each of whom has screed upwards of sixty, and three others have served more than fifty years respectively, all of which officers stand in the way of those junior to themselves. Further, that half the Colonels of Infantry have already served more than forty years, and may serve upwards of sixty. if the existing system be allowed to continue. The mode which has been suggested as calculated to ensure gradual but certain promotion and increasing advancement to officers of the army, without injury to the individuals whom it proposes to remove from the effective List, and without any additional expense to the state, is for the Court of Directors to fix a period when every officor, be his rank what it may, shall be removed from the effective strength of the army, but to continue in the enjoyment of his off reckoning emoluments till death, and in the event of any officer being thus removed before he become entitled to off reckoning, the interests of such officer to be secured by the Court of Directors. This mode would accelerate promotion in an equitable and general manner. This plan, says the U.S. Gazette, appears a good one, but it would cortainly cause additional expense to Government, since the cost of the effective army must remain as at present, and the officers on the retired List would necessarily be an extra charge to the company.

Overland Mail Despatches.—It had been suggested to the Madras Herald, February 11, that it would be desirable to appoint every fourth Saturday for the despatch of the overland Mail from Madras, and every fourth Wednesday preceding for sending off the Mails from Calcutta, with an understanding that the Steamer should not sail from Bombay until the arrival of the Mails despatched from the other Presidencies on those days. The plan was thought an excellent one.

THE HYDERABAD RESIDENCY.—The Residency is it seems in want of an incumbent, although the appointment seems to be little coveted by those to whom it has been offered. Colonel Alves has positively refused it, and the services of Major Sutherland have been most carnestly desiderated, but as a twithout any prospect of success. Civilians appear to be at a discount for the signation, Mr. Maddock was alone willing to undortake the responsibility of the office, but was not appointed.

Bombay.

The Commander-in-Chief's expected Furlough.—Report says that the Commander-in-Chief, Sir J. Keane, goes to the Cape by an early opportunity, on sick cartificate, His Excellency not having sufficiently recovered, by his late voyage, to stand the fatigues of another Court-Martial campaign, which has already commenced with unusual briskness. We have heard an entertainment spoken of, or hinted at, as a tribute of respect to our able and excellent functionary. Generals Willshire and Salter will, of course, take the lead in such a demonstration, if it is actually intended to take place; and Colonels Baumgardt, Kennedy, and Valiant, as well as sundry other officers, who have been honoured with especial tokens of His Excellency's good will, and had lessons read to them on military discipline, and propriety of conduct, will, as in duty bound, take a part in the festivity. We think, there are but few officers in our army who will not breathe a fervent prayer for His Excellency's safe arrival at the Cape, and as long a stay there as he may find it agreeable.—Bombay Gazette, February.

Commander Lowe, of the Indian Navy, in consequence of the accident which occurred some time since to the Berenice Steamer, while that vessel was under his command. He was honourably acquitted.

CADETS POSTED TO REGIMENTS.—Assured as we are by many of our subscribers, of the interest attached to the Posting of Cadets, we make no further apology for assigning its present conspicuous situation to the following table. The undermentioned Cadets for the Cavalry and Infantry, are parameterized to regiments, to fill existing vacancies, and dates of Commissions are assigned them as follows:—

Rank as Cornets in the

|                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                   |                                                                      | '                        | 1 1 16                                                                                                      |                                                         |                                      |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
|                                                                                      | CAVALRY.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | ,                 | Regiment                                                             |                          | Army.                                                                                                       |                                                         | at regiment                          |
| 23456789                                                 | Froderick Ashworth Edmond Carnac Campbell William Kenyon Charles Erskine Steuart Frederick Joseph Neeld James McKillop Taylor John Crosbie Graves George Carwardine Kemball William Marriott                                                                                                                                                                        |                   | 29th July29th Aug.6th Nov.1837.14th Feb.3rd May. |                          | lessettled hereafter.  1836. 19th Feb. 9th May. 19th June 3rd Aug. 27th Nov. 16th Dec. 29th 1837. 19th Jan. | 2d 1 1st 2d 3d 1st 2d 2d                                | pointed.                             |
| •                                                                                    | William AshburnerLewis Jardon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | _                 |                                                                      |                          | 8th Feb.                                                                                                    | 3d1st                                               |                                      |
| 2.5                                                                                  | •                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                   | s Ensigns                                                            | in t                     | he                                                                                                          |                                                         |                                      |
|                                                                                      | INFANTRY.  Season 1835.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                   |                                                                      | my.835.              |                                                                                                             |                                                         | what Regt.Appointed.             |
| 1* 2* 3                                                                      | Frederick Forbes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 4th4th8th | Sept. 26thNov.Dec.                                           | Ap                       |                                                                                                             | 13t                                                     | Regt. N. I.h ————W. E. Regt. |
| , 5 6                                                                          | Ambrose Edward Saunders 2 William Henry Cobb Lye Arthur Perry Hunt Augustus Cotgrave Honner                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | -      |                                                                      | bereafte                 |                                                                                                             | . 13t                                                   | Rogt. N. h. W. E. Rogt. Gr. N. I.    |
| 8                                                                                    | John Lyrnan Parish Hoarc                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                   | Mar. 5th                                                             |                          | gns in the                                                                                                  | , 3rd                                                   | Reg. N. I.                           |
|                                                                                      | Season 1836.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | ,                 | Regiment                                                             |                   | Army.                                                                                                       |                                                         | what Regt.                           |
| * 10* 12* 13* 14* 15* 16* 17* 19* 21* 22* 23 | Robert Richards William Falconer Charles Robert West Hervey Edward Charles Beale Elliot Follenham Peacock Arthur Sullivan Young Robert Fitzgerald John Arthur Evans Alexander James Alcock William George Arrow D'Oyley Trevor Compton Charles Williams Stephen James Keate White John Turnby Barr Edward Backhouse Eastwick Henry Lodwick Christopher Palmer Rigby | hill              |                                                                      | To be settled hereafter. |                                                                                                             | 13th 2nd R. V 22d 1st C 3rd 12th 14th 23rd 7th 6th 10th |                                      |
|                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                   |                                                                      |                          |                                                                                                             |                                                         |                                      |

| ,;'        | $\frac{1}{l}$ $\frac{1}$ | 1837.                           | 1836.                                   |                                           |
|------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------|
|            | Henry Augustus Adams                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                 | 7th Feb.                                | 13th Regt. N. I.                          |
| 27         | George Alexander Leckie                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                 |                                         | 21st ———                                  |
| 28         | Edward Lockiev James Stannton Cahili                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | -                               | 19th —                                  | 2nd Gr. R. N. l.                          |
| 29         | James Stannton Cahil                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                 | 5th March                               | R. W. E. Regt.                            |
| 30         | Thomas Alexander Cowper                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                 | 9th ——                                  | 22nd Regt. N. I.                          |
| 31         | Charles Ponsonby                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                 | 9th April                               | 17th                                      |
| 32         | George Malcolm                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                 | 10th June                               | lst G. R. N. I.                           |
| 33         | Charles Fortunatus Grant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                 |                                         | 3rd Rogt. N. I.                           |
| 34         | John Snow Aked                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                          |                                         | 4th ————                                  |
| 3 3 | Henry Heyman                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                      | Tark Comb                               | 15th ———————————————————————————————————— |
| 60         | Frederick Forbes Bruce                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                 | 1st Scpt.                               | 12th                                      |
| 27         | Season 1837. Francis Edward Woodhouse                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 18st July                       | 9th Dec.                                | Lt. W. E. Regt.                           |
|            | Charles Stephon Whitchill                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                 | 10th                                    | 5th R. N. I.                              |
|            | Henry Aloxander Taylor (not                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                 |                                         | 1                                         |
| O,         | arrived)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 4 1                             |                                         | 9th                                       |
| 40         | James Edward Taylor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | -                               | -                                       | 18th ———                                  |
|            | William Papillon Coles                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                 | 29th ——                                 | 14th ———                                  |
|            | •                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                 | 1837.                                   |                                           |
| 42         | Charles Barrow                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | *                            | 19th Jan.                               | 19th ———                                  |
|            | Daniel Boyd                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                 |                                         | 11th ———                                  |
|            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1838.                           |                                         |                                           |
|            | Nathaniel John Newnham                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                 | 8th Feb.                                | 23rd ———                                  |
| 45         | Edgar Glennic                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                      |                              | 25th                                      |
|            | James Lane Taylor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | alamata ann Parlamen - ann an I |                                         | 7th                                       |
|            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                      |                                         | 6th ————————————————————————————————————  |
| _          | Francis John Ford                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                 | 12th —                                  | 10th                                      |
|            | Henry Dent                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                 | 1201                                    | 16th                                      |
|            | Jamos Pcter Grant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | *                            | 7th                                     | 13th                                      |
|            | Wilham Eastfield Wilkinson                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 21st                            | 12th June                               | 21st -                                    |
|            | James Bedford                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                 |  | 2d Gr. Reg. N. I.                         |
|            | William Grant Carnac Hughes.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | -                               | -                                       | 8th Reg. N. I.                            |
|            | Christopher Jelinger Symons                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                 | 67                                      | ŭ                                         |
|            | (not arrived)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                 |                                         | R. W. E. Regt.                            |
| 56         | Malcolm Melville Macdonald                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | -                               |                                         | 22nd Regt. N. I.                          |
|            | Henry Lloyd Evans                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                      |                                         | 17th ———                                  |
|            | Edward Cæsar Fanning                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                 | 3.041.                                  | Ist Contact, N.1.                         |
|            | George Frederick Barra                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                      | 13th —                                  | 3rd Regt. N. I.                           |
| 6061   | Augustus Austen Frederick McKenzie Steer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                 | 27th ——                                 | 4th ————————————————————————————————————  |
|            | Edward Lechmere Russell                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                 | 4th —                                   | 12th ———                                  |
|            | Robert William Disney Leith                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                 | *                                    | Lt. W. E. Rogt.                           |
|            | The state of the s                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                 |                                         |                                           |

The Cadets marked thus*, whose rank has not been received from the Hon. the Court of Directors, are placed according to the rank assigned them in the East India Register, corrected to the 22ud May, 1837; a publication which is considered authentic, leaving the dates of their army rank to be adjusted on receipt of the requisite information from the East India House.

Mr. J. L. P. Hoare, Cadet for the Infantry, is ranked from the 5th December, 1835, next above Mr. Robert Richards, agreeably to the Honourable the Court of Directors resolution, contained in the Memorandum subjoined to the list of Cadets, No. 2 of 1836, dated East India House, the 30th March, 1836, published to the army on the 13th July, 1836.

LADY GRANT AND THE BERENICE.—Lady Grant inspected the Berenice on the 7th February; her Ladyship was highly pleased with all that she saw on hoard. Preparations had been made for three previous promised visits, in anticipation of all of which the Steamer had been duly set in order. The Berenice would be perfectly ready for sea whenever the new piston arrived and it was thought that she might have been got off by the 28th February, instead of the Atalanta.

THE NEW BISHOP.—The Lord Bishop was installed on Sunday, 25th February, according to the usual forms, during the performance of the forenoon service in St. Thomas's Church, which it is presumed is now to be considered a Cathedral. His Lordship was introduced in his stall, by the acting Archdeacon, the Bev. H. Jeffreys, and the acting Senior Chaplain, the Rev. W. Ward, attended by Mr. Patch. Registrar of the Consistory Court; after which, the acting Archdeacon, addressing his Lordship, stated that he had the honour, by order of the Governor in Control, to announce his Lordship as the Bishop of the Diocese of Boundary. Agreeable to the form of worship observed in Cathedrals, the Jubilate. Dec. was chanted instand of being rehearsed. After the communion service, the Bishop ascended the pulpit, and delivered his charge to the Clergy, which was marked by a spirit of humbity, christian charity, and benevolence, for which his Lordship is so eminent, and a tone of genuine liberality, kinduess, carnostness, and good will, which could not fail to touch the hearts of the congregation, which was one of the fullest ever seen in St. Thomas's Church.

THE BUEELS.—RUMOURED INSURBETION.—The Gazette, (Feb. 14), and nounces with an appearance of much importance, "that the Bheels had mustored in formidable force to the northward, and that in consequence several companies of the troops stationed at Baroda, which have been out on detachment, have been ordered back to hoad quarters, that an attack might be concerted against the mannaders. We have not as yet heard any particulars."

CAPT. BURNES—PURCHASE OF SHEEP.—Capt. Burnes had been purchasing on account of Government several large flocks of valuable sheep from the countries to the westward of the Indus, which were soon expected in the Docean. From these the quality of Indian Wool will be very much improved and a new impulse given to the commerce of the country.

MAJOR SPRATT (February 19th).—It was rumoured that Major Spratt, of the 4th N. I., intended to resign. This would promote Capt. Crawloy, Lieut. Smythe, and Ensign Watkins.

Bombar Bank.—It was rumoured that a charter for the Bank would not be waited for; but that a Joint-Stock concern would be forthwith set agoing, as recommended by the Gazette of January 14th; (see report; Bank of Bombay, page 436.)

BYOULLA CLUB (February 12th).—"The Committee of the Byculla Club having taken into consideration the resolution passed at a general Meeting held on the 25th January, for the admission of strangers to the privileges of the Club, are of opinion, that the said resolution has not been passed in accordance with the Rogulations of the Club, are having moreover been found to be productive of very serious inconvenience to the discontainers of the Ciub generally, the Committee direct the Secretary to adopt proper measures for enforcing Rule XXVI, whereby it is laid down that no stranger shall be admitted to the Club privileges excepting as provided for hardine XXXIX, which bears reference to Members of the Bengal and Madras Clubs, being Honorary Members of the Bombay Club without ballot."

MILITARY BOARDS OF BOMBAY AND MADRAS.—In the new Military Boards of Bombay and Madras respectively one of the members is to be a stipendiary. The late Capt. Pringle had he lived would have been appointed Secretary, with a junior officer to act under him, and it is expected the appointment will be given to the individual who would have succeeded Capt. P. in his late office, which is now to be abolished.

IMPORTANT MEETING FOR REFORMING THE MARITIME LAW OF INDIA.—At a meeting held in the reom at the Town Hall, on the 24th February, 1838, at 3 R. M.; to consider the propriety of petitioning the houses of Parliament for a revision of the maritime laws, having special reference to the discipline and good conduct of British Seamen: Admiral Sir C. Malcolm in the Chair:

The following Resolutions were moved and seconded by Messrs, L. Grant, C. B. Skinner, R. L. Leckie, M. F. Brownrigg, D. Robertson, W. Edmond, Capts, Vaux and Biden.

1. That this meeting is fully impressed with a thorough conviction that the defective state of discipline throughout the Merchant service has reached an alarming crisis, tending to degrade and demoralize the character and conduct of seamen, and involving in imminent danger the shipping and commercial interests of the British Empiro.

2. That all experience within this and other parts of British India, affords abundant proofs that the crews of ships exhibit a turbulent spirit of insubordination, and in some cases of open mutiny, and that these serious consequences are neither sufficiently guarded against, nor provided for, by the present code of maritime laws, which are ill defined in theory, and inefficient in practice, for all purposes of naval government.

3. That the evils which prevail throughout the Mercantile Marine are progressive; that in some instances they are caused by the appointment of masters and mates who are not competent to the charge and responsibility devolving on their respective duties; but in general these evils are attributed to the absence of all effectual remedy or redress through the medium of the present maritime laws, and therefore it is absolutely necessary for the welfare and preservation of the merchant service, that those laws, should be amended and revised.

4. That this meeting declares the urgent necessity of an immediate appeal by petition to both Houses of Parliament, praying that they will enquire into and reform the existing laws relating to merchant seamen, and by the enactment of a just and vigorous code of laws, effectually prevent the recurrence of evils which have degraded the conduct and reputation of British scamen, and have thereby involved in corresponding disgraco the national character.

A draft of a petition to the Houses of Parliament having then been read to the meeting, was unanimously agreed to.

The Chairman took the opportunity of drawing the attention of the meeting to the zeal displayed by Capt. Biden in bringing forward this subject, and a vote of thanks to Capt. Biden was unanimously agreed to. Capt. Biden was requested to take charge of the petition to England, and to use his best endcavours to secure its success.

The Chairman moved the 5th resolution, that a letter be addressed to Lord Minto, and G. F. Young, Esq., requesting they would lay the petitions before the Houses of Parliament, and that a letter be addressed to them by the Chairman to this effect—seconded by Mr. Gordon, and carried unanimously.

A vote of thanks having been carried to Sir C. Malcolm, the meeting dissolved. The above meeting, says the Gazette, was very numerously and respectably attended; and there appeared to be but one opinion entertained by all present, as to the nocessity for extensive alterations and improvements in the maritime law. The resolutions which were unanimously approved of, went to the very root of the evils that exist. Sir Charles Malcolm gave his testimony to the present state of the mercantile marine, contrasting the former character of the British sailor for orderly conduct and obcdience to discipline, with the degrading and demoralising habits now so generally prevalent among scamen. Capt. Biden succeeded in satisfying the meeting that the extant laws, so far from repressing or correcting the excesses of scamen, had the effect of encouraging them in their habitual disobedience to lawful authority. Mr. Grant said, that the object of the meeting, to his view was not to cocree the sailors by harsh and arbritary measures, but to adopt laws which might be equally appealed to by all those under command, as well as by those exercising authority. Mr. Brownrigg thought that much of the insubordination complained of so much, was mainly owing to the want of education in officers of ships.

New Schooners.—Two schooners were building in the Port under instructions from the Court of Directors, which, when completed, promised to be perfect models of that mode of construction. The rivalry of the master builders of England is brought into play, the model on which one of them is to be built having been furnished by Sir Robert Seppings, and of the other by Captain Symonds. As these vessels are described, they will eclipse almost any thing of the kind which has yet appeared in the Bombay Docks, and are intended for running up and down the Coast.

IRON STEAM BOAT.—There had been imported by the Aliquis, from Liverpool, a small Iron Steam Vessel. There had also come out eight or ten English artificers to put her together. [This Iron Steam Boat was intended for the Ameers of Sinde, but it was expected it would be thrown upon the Government. When the order for this vessel was sent home it was represented to the Ameers that 20,000 rs. would pay the expenses of her construction at Liverpool. This has turned out to be a very insufficient estimate, 80,000 rs. having been the real expenditure. Under these circumstances the Ameers would probably reject a bargain which has turned out so costly.]

Passage Money to Retiring Officers.—A correspondent of the Bombay Gazette, (5th Feb.) states that a friend of his had experienced a hardship in claiming the usual passage money awarded to officers ebliged to leave the Company's service. The case is simply this. A security was demanded that the money was intended, bond fide, for the purpose of procuring a passage to England, the friend of this correspondent brought forward a young officer in his behalf who was objected to on the ground of his being an unposted Ensign. The latter, on hearing this offered to obtain any one out of ten or twelve officers as security, when he was told that the security of a tradesman (or something to that effect) would be taken in pro-ference. Now the question is, whether an officer in the Company's service is not in cases such as the above, considered a sufficient security to Government? The Gazette answers, "decidedly;" but we have heard of cases in which a receipt from the captain of the ship in which a passage was taken was all that was necessary.

Bombay Races.—First Day (5th February). First Race. The Manham Stakes, Rs. 500 from the Fund, and 2 gold moliurs each: Education for all horses that never started for plate, purse, cup, match, or sweepstakes; 2 miles; 3 stone 4 lb. Mr. Etrick's Metrose the winner in an easy race against 4 other horses. Second Race.—A welter of Rs. 600, with sweepstakes Rs. 150; 14 miles, 11 stone 7 lb. Gentlemen riders. (Messrs. Forster to Camel; Daly, to Sir Robert; Chiffings to the General). Mr. Forster's Camel, winner. Mr Etrick's Exile was the winner of the third Race (sweepstakes Arab horses, 8 st. 4 lbs.) The remaining running days were the 7th, 9th, 13th, 15th, and 17th February. Letteries on the day preceding each day's running. In the course of the six days sport, Mr. Etrick's Lochinvar, Mr. Forrester's Foung Governor, Mr. Chiffney's General, Major Daly's Robert, &c. became winners of handsome stakes. In a race between Little Rover (8 stone 7 lbs.) and Pig (9 stone 7 lbs.) for 1000 Rs. (last day); Pig won in hour-tiful style.

AQUATIC SPORTS.—The Amateurs of Aquatic Sports at Bombay experienced a treat in December, in witnessing a trial of sailing between the Yacht Sandwich, and the Schooners Emily and Pearl. The sailing was excellently contested, and displayed, to peculiar advantage the powers of either vessel. After five hours aport the vessels anchored, the Pearl coming in first, Emily second, and Sandwich last being considerably behind, but she laboured under great disadvantage, having all her stores and heavy ballast on board.

A FAULTLESS MONSTER. (February)—An extraordinary monster was ushered into the world the other day, in the native town—A cow gave birth to a calf having the usual number of limbs, but with two heads and a double set of all the et ceteras thereunto appertaining. The owner immediately handed over the curiosity to a Brahmin with a pious gift of five rupees.

Signor Mutti-The Growth of the Mulberry in India.--The Chamber of Commerce, with its usual liberality in all matters connected with the improvement of the country, has presented Signor Mutti with the sum of 500 rs., in testimony of the estimation in which that gentleman is held for his persevering and successful exertions has the introduction of Silk culture in the Decean. Many years of toilsome, and until lately, unaided exertion (observes the Gazette, 5th Feb.) have at length enabled Signor Mutti to tell the world that he has proved, beyond a doubt, the capabilities of our territory for the growth of the mulberry on a much more fayours like scale than it can be reared in other countries, in most of which, he informs us, the leaves of the tree can only be gathered once a year whereas here they can be gathered thrice a year without injury to the tree. The soil and climate of the Decean has been satisfactorily proved to be fully adapted for the growth of the standard tree. The bush has been found not to prosper so well from its want of perpetual irrigation. There are fourteen species of mulberry in the gardens under Signor Mutti's management. He says, the expense attendant upon the production of silk is exceedingly trifling. A current outlay of 1000 Rs. produces to Signor Mutti a return of 2724 Rs. But an expense of 4000 Rs. for building, had been previously incurred by him, which of course any speculator must expect to bear. An ultimate and early profit of 75 per cent., however, would satisfy the most avaricious.

back, remarks the Gazette, of February 9, a letter from a correspondent on the subject of Thuggee, in the Southern Maliratta Country, in which it was asserted that about seven hundred people had disappeared from the district of Bagulcote, the greater number of whom were supposed to have fallen victims to these wretches who have carried the worst of crimes into a system, and spread their atrocities from one end of India to another.

There was upon enquiry found to be no ground for the suspicion that the people who so mysteriously disappeared from the district of Bagulcote, were carried off by Thugs. The attention of the authorities was of course attracted by the disappearance of so large a number of people, and enquiries were instituted by the Judicial Commissioner as to what might be the cause of it; when it was found that the majority of the persons said to be missing, had left that part of the country, during a year of almost universal famine, in order to seek elsewhere a subsistence, which mature denied to them in their native district. Nearly five hundred had since returned to their former homes, about one hundred and thirty were known to be located in the districts in which they had sought a temporary refuge, some had died by natural death, in few cases, perhaps ten at the very utmost, was there the slightest shadow of suspicion as to what had taken place, and that not in a single instance, was there positive proof of foul play having been committed.

THE COTTON CROSS—The Gazette, February 2nd, says, that the cotton crop in Guzerat this season, would be almost all ready for shipment to Bombay early in that month. The amount of the crop this year is stated to be 80,000 candies, apportioned as follows:—Sarat, 25,000; Broach, 15,000; Kattiwar States, 40,000.

TRIMUL RAO.—It having been brought to the notice of Government, says a late Durpun, that the son of Rao Bahadoor Venkut Rao, principal Sudder Ameen of Dharwar, who was at the Prosidency to gain the advantages of superior education, had in a short time distinguished himself in European Literature and Sciences, and passed a satisfactory examination at the General Assembly's school; the Right Hon, the Governor presented the young man with a handsome Khilut on the 21st December, as a mark of his approbation.

Baroda Affairs.—There was some prospect of the affairs in which the residency of Baroda has been involved with the petty state of Rajpeopla, being thoroughly investigated, and it was expected that the present resident, Mr. Sutherland, when he returned from an excursion with the Guicowar, would give his attention to the subject. The officers of the residency have, it seems, found reason to be dissatisfied with the banking house of Hurry Bhugtey, which would not produce its books for examination. Motey, a relation of Sarrabhoy, who had been raised to the office of Karcoon under the Rajah of Rajpeepla, by the influence of a former resident, had been taken into custody, and another person, named Baba Fudkia, elected in his room. It was said that Purbhoodass, the minister of Rajpeepla, at the Court of the Guicowar, had been asked to give information as to the corruptions which had been practised, and the defalcations which had taken place, but that he had declined to do so, although the Rajah had declared his belief that he was fully acquainted with what had passed. In consequence of this refusal, the books of Sarrabhoy and Vizial have been ordered to be produced; and the Enam village, held by the former, has been seized. It seemed highly probable that the bribery alledged against Sarrabhoy would be distinctly proved, and it was thought, that on the matter being minutely investigated, other parties now only distantly suspected, would be found to have been implicated to a considerable extent with that potorious individual.

Force in Kattiwar.—The Population.—The Roms.—By a letter from Rajkote of the 3d Feb., the Loft Wing 20th Regt. had arched from thence to Baroda, and it was supposed that the force in Kattiwar was to be reduced to the 12th Regiment N. I. and half of the 1st Regiment Cavalry. The population of Kattiwar oxeeeds a million; scattered in the proportion of about 70 to a square mile over a vast district which is almost insulated from Guzerat in the Mouseon. The wisdom of this reduction of ferce will soon appear, remarks the Guzette (Feb. 19); and the additional duty which will devolve on the troops will soon be found to operate; but in the meanwhile, let us ask what are the troops doing in the Dekhan -over-worked every whore no doubt, but still not to the same extent as in Guzerat -if two additional regiments cannot possibly be raised by augmentation, what is the regiment doing at Asseerghur? but an increase of at least two regiments to the Bombay Army is indispensably necessary for Guzerat alone. The roads were never so unsafe as at this period, and gang robbery seems becoming common to an extent that will soon require very energotic measures for its suppression. The evil that results is incalculable, and the impression most seriously injurious to the British Government.

IMPROVEMENT IN THE BREED OF KATTIWAR Horses.—A correspondent of the Gazette speaks in the highest terms of the Kattiwar breed of horses as being the finest, and best adapted for cavalry service in India. He recommends to Government the most careful attention to the breed of these horses, as likely to repay largely the expense and trouble that may be so incurred.

A MILITARY LUNATIC.—An unfortunate gentleman in Poonah, observes the Gazette, very lately connected with the army, has addressed to us two letters of a very extraordinary nature. We had little expected to find in this country an aspirant to the honours of Captain Goode, and should any officers be aware of the state of mind of the gentleman in question, whose name, from the above allusion, will at once occur to the officers one of Her Majesty's regiments, we recommend measures being taken to put the individual referred to immediately under restraint. The letters we have received furnish the most incomtostible proof of a mind that has wandered from reason.

Ceplon.

CHANGES IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE.—The following changes in the public service are rumoured. Mr. A. Walker (about to proceed to England), is to be assistant agent of Ruanwelle, (Mr. Oswin to act during his absence). Mr. Waring to replace Mr. Walker as assistant agent and superintendent of the cinamum department; and Mr. Dinwoodie, Fiscal of Colombo, uniting therewith, it is said, the superintendence of police.

MR. JUSTICE STODDART.—It is the intention of Mr. Justice Stoddart to resign, and return to England almost immediately.

Assistant Surgeon Blake.—The officers of the 90th Light Infantry, enter-tained at dinner on the 11th of January, their late assistant-surgeon Mr. Blake, on which occasion, Licut.-Colonel Arbuthnot, in an appropriate speech, presented him with a splendid breakfast service of plate in the name of the 90th. A short time previous to this occurrence, the non-commissioned officers and privates of the 90th, also presented Dr. Blake with a very handsome silver cup; in allusion to which, Colonel Arbuthnot remarked, that however assiduous Dr. Blake's attention to the men in hospital might be, as it really ever was, still, this as being a matter of duty, did not call forth the enthusiastic admiration which the men of the regiment felt for him; but it was the readiness and pleasure with which he always afforded his professional assistance to their wives and children, equally as he did to the officers' families, that demanded that tribute of gratitude which they had unanimously offered to him.

The Colombo Ladies' Branch Society for Native Female Education.—A Society with this designation has been ostablished in Ceylon, under the patronage of the Honourable Mrs. Stewart Mackenzie. In the schools connected with this Society, the end chiefly kept in view, will be to bring the pupils to an acquaint suce with Scripture Truth, and to a belief in Christ as their Saviour; all other useful knowledge, which circumstances may render desirable, being, at the same time, imparted. A committee of twenty-five ladies, to act as visitors, has been appointed; and subscriptions and donations to some amount have already been received. The higher classes of the natives of Colombo and its vicinity, are most anxious that their damaters should receive a liboral and Christian Education.

STEAM COMMUNICATION.—An advertisement appears in the Ceylon papers containing the number of shares which would be taken by persons resident in that colony, in the event of a woll-organised and properly estimated plan for establishing Steam Communication from Calcutta, Madras, and Ceylon, to England, being established. A company so established, it appears, might count upon nearly 500 persons, taking in all 2,000 shares, from Coylon itself. The natives would appropriate no small portion of such shares. Surely whon Ceylon is thus forward in the field, the presidencies of Calcutta and Madras will not be deficient in public spirit.

LAUGHABLE ADVERTISEMENT.—The following advertisement appears in the Ceylon Chronicle. "Reward of £30. Whereas an effigy was hung up at the Pettah Library on the night of the 2d instant, for the purpose of bringing contempt and disrespect upon the said institution; a reward of Thinty Pounds Steating is hereby offered to any person or persons giving information so as to lead to the discovery of the offender or offenders therein.—Committee, J. B. Misso, J. Ball,

B. Thomas, C. N. Schubrik, and J. C. Oorloof."

Address to C. R. Bullen, Esq.—Mr. Buller having been appointed District Judge to the South Court of Colombo, upon his leaving Nejombo, a complimentary address was presented to him, at the hands of Mr. Vanderstraaten, from individuals representing the inhabitants of the Nejombo district, over which Mr. Buller had presided for the last four years. On this occasion Mr. Buller concluded his speech thus: "You have alluded to the works which have been completed under me in the most pleasing and gratifying manner; I had hoped to have completed all that I had begun, I had hoped to have commenced several others, which I consider of nearly equal importance with those which you have mentioned, these, however, must now be left for others to complete. I regret it has not been in my power to establish the school for girls previous to my resigning this office, but it is now in a fair way of being established, and it will give me no small gratification to hear that its progress in numbers and in improvement is equal to that of the boys' school, and that its value is as fully appreciated; it will, I am certain, conduce to the happiness of your children, and I trust are long to hear that all are receiving the benefit of an English education. I shall always retain the deepest interest in the welfare of this District, and the peaceful and happy time that I have passed amongst you, will ever be associated with the most pleasing recollections."

FANCY FAIR.—A barear of Fancy Articles, sent out from England by the ladies of the Indian Frmale Equication Society was held at the Raco Stand, Galle Face, on the 14th of December, for the benefit of the Female Schools, to be established in Colombo, under the superintendence of the Colombo Ladies' Branch SOCIETY.

THE ADDRESS OF THE HINDOOS OF MADRAS TO SIR R. WILMOT HORTON.— Perhaps there never occurred a circumstance more gratifying to a Governor of a Colony than the presentation of an Address to him from the Natives of an Indian Presidency, for the benefits conferred on mankind by liberal and enlightened principles of Government. The Address of the Hindoos of Madras, to Sir Robert Wilmot Horton is on the whole of so exalted a character that we cannot do botter than extract it at length.

To His Excellency the Right Honorable Sir Robert Wilmot Horton, BART., G. C. H.

Right Honorable Sir,

The times are gone by when those who wielded the destinies of India regarded the welfare of us, Inhabitants, as an object of secondary importance, if indeed they considered it at all worthy of their serious attention. The views of the former were opposed to the interests of the latter, and thus the Rulers sole reasons, arising out of the unnatural position which they occupied with respect to tho governed, to induce them to suspect the attachment of a conquered people, while to give additional magnitude to the evil, they looked upon them as to signorant to desire and too contomptible to deserve any consideration. A change has come over the spirit of the times; other men have succeeded these monopolists of power, and better measures have been substituted in the place of a system of exclusive boucfits, so that a more liberal policy has at longth begun to identify the interests of Government with those of the millions committed to its protection. The principles of Government in operation are some of the causes of this alteration in the sentiments of those entrasted with the administration of the affairs of India, but the country is chiefly indebted for the improvement which has already in part taken place in the condition of the people, to the good will and exertion of his collightened statesmen, who, liberating their powerful minds from the shaeklos of preconceived notions, justly base the stability of this portion of the British empire on the attachment of the people, and the prosperity of Government, on the elevation of all charges of their Indian subjects to an equality with themselves in the possession and exercise of political privileges.

As Hindoos of this part of India, we exult in the prospect which opens before us, and rejoice to number your Excellency among the benefactors of our country though not immediately affected by the liberal principles brought under your Government into beneficial operation as regards the wolfare of the inhabitants of Ceylon, yet we know that their influence cannot be limited to that Island, and that the moral effect of your noble example will extend beyond it, and affect the councils of the Legislative authorities of this part of the country, and thus, by its indirect influence and necessary tendency, ultimately carry forward the final emancipation of India. the foundation of which is already laid in the recognition of the liberties of the people by the Legislative provisions of the country; but in you the natives of India have had a zealous defender of their privileges, and one memorable occasion at which you prominently stood forth as the champion of these privileges in the Island of Ceylon shall never be forgotten.

Thus being endeared to the native community, you are justly regarded as one of the best benefactors of an ancient and numerous people who, lamouting your approaching departure from this country, have adopted this method of expressing. however feebly, their sincere regard for your person, and respect for your virtuewe, the Hindoos of Madras, cannot of course represent the whole body of the Natives of India, but we are confident that we are not alone in the expression of the attachment and gratitude to which you have entitled yourself-we do not, therefore, scruple, in the name of the community, to wish you a safe return to your native country, and the enjoyment of every possible happiness and prosperity.

HERE FOLLOW FIFTY-THREE SIGNATURES.

Singapore.

Orium—Trade of Singarore and Penang.—Mr. Prinsep, the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, has replied to the petition of the merchants of Singapore, stating that the Indian Government cannot comply with the request made to it to ro-open the Opium questions lately finally disposed of in Council. In reply to the letter of the Chairman of the Penang Chamber of Commerce, claiming the same oplum remission as had been granted to China, the Secretary to Government observes "The Government has allotted the same remission to the Straits merchants as has been granted to the China speculators, upon all opium shipped to the Straits from Calcutta after 1st May, 1838."

ATTACK BY PIRATES.—We observe, by the Singapore Free Press, of the 20th of Dec., that a raft, on which were seven persons, was attacked by pirates off Pagseris, a village situated a mile or two beyond the Red Cliffs on that Island. The pirates, on their first approach, called out for some tobacco, and being told there was none to give, discharged several blunderbusses at the raft, and killed two of the people. The rest attempted to escape in sampans, four going in one, and only one in the other. The latter was soon overtaken and murdered by krisses, notwithstanding his earnest supplications for mercy, which were heard by his companions, who were enabled, however, to reach the shore and conceal themselves in the jungles. All their property was plundered.

SALE OF LAND.—A number of small lots of ground on building leases under the new land regulations, had been sold in January by the local authorities in the neighbourhood of the Town.

SHIPWERCK AND SUCFERING.—The Singapore Chronicle (Jan. 18) states that it had just received the following news from Rhio. A small junk from some place on the Coast of China, had been driven on shore (Jan.) on the east coast of Bintang, with six men on board of her nearly dead from starvation, and in such a state of debility that they could neither walk nor were capable of speech. The crew had originally consisted of nine men, and the bodies of three, who had died two days before, were found on board in a state of putrefaction, and emitting an odour which must have aggravated to sufferings of the survivors, but whose united strength was insufficient to east their overboard.

NEGLECT IN THE DELIVERY OF LETTERS.—The instances (observes the Singapore Chromocle) in which captains of vessels touching at this port have given rise to just complaint for noglect in delivering letters, are numerous. We have often (adds the Journal) received Bombay papers after a voyage to and from China; and Cauton and Sydney papers, after having twice navigated the Bay of Bengal; and we believe there is not a single moreantile house in the Settlement that has not repeatedly had proofs of similar acts of negligence.

MURDER AT MANILA.—CAUTION TO COMMANDERS OF VESSELS.—Captain Biden addressed the Singapore Free Press on the 6th Jan., to the effect that on the 21st December, a seaman (an Italian) belonging to the John Gilpin (American brig) was barbarously murdered in the suburbs of Manila. The fact, says Captain Biden, may operate as a caution to all commanders of vessels trading to that port, who should never permit any of their crew to remain on shore after sun-set. It was during a quarrel between some sailors of the John Gilpin, ashore on leave, and some Manila men, that the scaman above alluded to was murdered (in a scuffle) by being stabbod in various parts of the body. By the test mony of a Creole, a sailor of the Gilpin, it appears that he it was who instigated the quarrol with the Manila men and exasperated them to the scuffle which cusued. Indeed there appeared every reason to presume that this Crople was the actual murderer of the deceased, from what he himself said, with the most hardy indifference, on the subject. He averred that he had participated in many such quarrels as the above. Capt. Bideu, at the close of the letter, in which he communicated the foregoing particulars, gives it as his opinion that Temperance shops ou shore at Manila and elsewhere, ought to be generally instituted as preventives of drunkenness, which vice superinduces the broils in which scamen so frequently involve themselves when ashore.

Wenang.

Grand Jury of Prince of Wales' Island.—The presentment to their Recorder of the Grand Jury of Prince of Wales' Island, is in every respect, an intoresting and important document. In the first place the Grand Jury are averse to the abolition of the Supreme Court established by charter. They represent their population as consisting of little short of one hundred thousand inhabitants; with an annual export trade amounting to one million five hundred thousand pounds sterling. They recommend the disposal of the minoreoffences at the sessions, and are averse to the introduction of insolvency laws into the colony. And they present their police courts and courts of request as inefficient, incompetent, and discreditable. It appears that the colonists are sadly in want of an increase to this branch of the Periang establishment, and that they are anxious that a larger sum should be expended by Government in order to increase the efficiency of these departments. How far their wishes are reasonable, and likely to be acceded to by the Supreme Government, our information at present does not enable us to say.

China.

OPIUM RESTRICTIONS-PLAN FOR COLONISING THE BONIN ISLANDS.-By the January intelligence received at Calcutta, from China, we learn that the restrictive moasures against the opium trade were as severely in force as ever, without any prospect of their being slackened. Meantime it appears that although the Lintin trade continues suspended, unusually large deliveries have been made on the East Coast, and inside the Bogue! The attention of the superintendents had been directed, in consequence of the difficulties so frequently thrown in the way of commerce, to the colonization of the Bonin Islands, which seem to be considered as calculated to afford an excellent depôt for trade with India, from the facilities presented by their position for the intercourse with Formosa, Japan, Loo Choo, and the Eastern coast of China. A pamphlet had been drawn up on this important subject, by Mr. G. F. Lay, agent to the British and Foreign Bible Society, which notwithstanding that the views expressed in it, are said to deprecate in strong terms a continuance of tho traffic in opium, is considered as containing a pretty fair estimate of the advantages to be derived by commerce from such a measure as that proposed by H. M.'s Superintendents. Certainly if permanent arrangements could be made for the location of Indian commerce in a spot where it would be free from interruption, an incalculable benefit would be conferred on the Indian and British communities.

CHINESE EDICT.—An edict from the Government against foreigners presenting petitions at the city gates, (13th Dec.) had been published.

answer from the Governor relative to the enormous debts due to them from Hing Tae, had determined upon sending a petition to the British Government to assist them in obtaining payment of the debts due to them. Certain Merchants of China who were about embarking for Europe (end of December) had promised to present the petition to the British Authorities. It appears, that the Hong Merchants had made an offer to pay the debts within twelve years by annual instalments, which the Creditors refused, but indicated that they had no objection to a liquidation in six years. The Hong merchants said that they might as well stop payment altogether as agree to this proposition. The Governor thought their offer of payment by instalments in twelve years, quite equitable and fair.

Hospital Ship—Deficiency in the "Budget."—Two odicts from the Governor wore published (end of December)—the one concerning the Hospital Ship. The Viceroy refuses altogether a petition requesting to have a Hospital Ship at Whampon, and tells them that their saying the ship is the Queen's property is a more evasion and arrant nonsense. The second chop complains of a prodigious deficiency in the "Budget," and threatens to make the Hong merchants answerable for it; foreigners, they say, load their ships clandestinely outside, and thus evade duty.

Statement of Imports and Exports to and from China under the Dutch Colors, from 1st of January to 31st of December, 1836.

IMPORTS.—Rice, peculs 102,392; Rattans, ditto $181; Tin, ditto 1,822; Sam-dalwood, ditto 2,736; Iron, ditto 1,500; Bird's Nests, ditto 261; Gold and Silver Thread, ditto 4; Pepper, ditto 2,100; Skins, pieces 3,400; Gin, cases 130; Cotton, bales 599; Opium, chests 10; Camlets, pieces 3,000; Sundries, valued at 1175. 50,800.

Exports to Holland and Java.—Bohea and Congo, chests 2,200; Campey, ditto 1,454; Souchong, ditto 3,012; Pekoe, ditto 203; Hyson, ditto 705; Hungmuey, ½ chests 1,188; Twankay, ditto 884; Hyson Skin, ditto 90; Imperial and Gunpowder, ditto 300; Raw Silk, peculs 54; Cassia, ditto 1,552; Joss Paper, ditto 110; Hartall, ditto 250; China Root and Galangal, ditto 3,607; Anisesced, ditto 530; Writing Paper, ditto 711; Cassia Oil, ditto 12; Nankeens, pieces 13,550; Empty Bags, ditto 180,000; China Umbrellas, ditto 28,050; Silk Piece Goods, ditto 815; Tiles, (for floors) 14,000; Tsa for Java, chests 4350; Lackered Wure, boxes 1,000; Sweatmeats, ditto 2,651; Crackers, ditto 270; Joss Sticks, ditto 36; Opium, chests 72; Paint, tubs 440; China Ware, bundles 4,000; Trunks, sets 300; Chinese Medicines and Sundries, valued at Drs. 75,000.

Exchange Tea.—The Honorable East India Company's Agents have reduced the exchange at which they granted advances on shipments of Tea and Silk, from 4s. 7d. to 4s. 6d., thereby giving a hint that people were not so anxious to avail themselves of these advances as had been expected. A very few chops of Tea only had been advanced upon, and unless advices of the English market should improve very much, it is doubted whether, even at the present reduced exchange, the Company will be able to get rid of the dollars now collected in their Treasury, and a further reduction may be expected. People have found out that the privilege of trading on the Company's money is a very expensive one.

Chinese Festival.—On the 22d December was held the Chinese Festival, Tung-che, on which all accounts are settled, preparatory to their being finally paid on new year's eve. Dr. Morrison in his "View of China," has the following notice of this day:—"11th mean. The shortest day, or Tung-che, is called Chang-chetsee. All officers of government, both civil and military, repair to Wan-show king, the Imperial hall; one of which is in every Provincial city, and make their prostrations to the Winter Solstice. Many make cakes, &c. with which they congratulate the Solstice on the returning sun. In the streets and markets there is a great concourse of people. The Term is otherwise called Tung-tsee. People settle their accounts."

Chamber of Commerce was convened December 22d, when How-qua, Mow-qua, and Pwankeh-qua called at their office, to state that rumours were affeat of smuggling being carried on at Whampoa, which, if true, would expose them to considerable risk. They informed the Chamber that, owing to these rumours, it would be necessary in future to have recourse to stricter measures in securing of the ships, and that the more tedious way of going through all the prescribed forms, many of which have hitherto, for the sake of dospatch, been relaxed, would henceforth be resorted to. If the Hong merchants adhere to this resolution, ships arriving at Whampoa, will be delayed sometime ere they can begin discharging.

New South Water.

SYDNEY.

EXTRAORDINARY FIRE.—On Tuesday last, (close of November,) the weather was rendered very disagreeable and oppressive, in consequence of the prevalence of a hot wind from the northwest. The heat was so intense, that it was found impossible to hold a stone taken from the prevent in the hand for more than a few seconds. Towards three o'clock, the sky became gradually obscured by immense volumes of smoke, proceeding in a S. E. direction from the North Shore, and continued in this state until evening. About six the wind suddenly changed a point or two, and became cool and agreeable, but was accompanied by some of the thickest clouds of dust which we ever beheld; even the gravel was raised from the road and whirled about with the velocity of feathers. When the shades of night rendered the flames of the different fires more visible, the scene became inexpressibly grand and beautiful. From the point where we were standing, we distinctly saw the whole of the bush towards Botany, the North Shore, and several portions on the Paramatta road, in one continued blaze. It was impressively awful to see the unbroken line of fire which presented itself in the direction of Mr. Lord's manufactory, and George's river. On the North Shore the innumerable fires, rising one above another, gave us a vivid idea of a vast amphitheatre splendidly illuminated. When the wind altered, the scrub near Mr. Tucker's residence took fire, it is supposed, from the sparks being blown across the water from the opposite shore. The fire raged with such fury that this gentleman's house was supposed to be in imminent danger for a considerable period. Fortunately, however, it gradually died away without doing any damage further than destroying the trees around. The fences on the estates of Messrs. Berry, Miller, and Walker, on the North Shore, were entirely consumed by the devouring element; and it was for a time a matter of considerable doubt whether the houses of these gentlemen would not also fall a prey to the same ruthless destroyer. The house of G. Lavender, the Ferryman in Hulk Bay, was entirely consumed, together with the whole of his household furniture, wearing apparel, &c. Lavendor and his wife were absent from home at the time of the catastrophe, having been in Sydney on business during the greater part of the day, from whence they had returned by Billy Blue's point, the residence of a relative. The house of a shipwright named Luke, also caught fire. By much exertion, however, the flames were got under, and the house preserved, but some detached premises were entirely consumed. 'Mr. Sharp's residence also caught fire, but owing to the prompt measures immediately adopted by the inmates, it was soon extinguished. The fire on the North Shoro alone ranged with unexampled rapidity over a distance of little more than twenty miles. The bush at South Head was also on fire, but no damage took place there. At Botany Bay the fire was extensive, and did considerable damage; among others destroying the fence and outer premises of Mr. D. Goodsir, the Custom-house officer, who resides at the Botany Tower. Mr. Kellet's establishment at the same place likewise sustained a disaster of a similar nature, the whole of the femcing with the buildings being entirely consumed. The residence of Mrs. Bunn, on the west side of Darling Harbour, had a narrow escape of entire destruction, the bush in that quarter being also on fire; but by a providential shifting of the wind, the flames were diverted to an opposite courso. The fire apparently spread to such a distance in all directions, that it is impossible to ascertain yet with any degree of accuracy, the extent of damage sustained. On the Paramatta road the fire also caused considerable damage to property, and amongst others to that belonging to Mr. Ireland of the Plough Inn.—Australian, Dec. 1st.

THE TUNNEL.—The Committee of the Legislative Council appointed to enquire into this subject has made its report. The total expense of the tunnel has been £22,971 10s. 94d. About £600 more require to be expended to secure the shafts and other trifling matters. No water from the swamp has yet been admitted into the tunnel, the supply being merely the drainage of the country through which the tunnel passes, and Major Barney is of opinion that the water to be derived from the swamp will not afford a permanent supply for the town. The Committee is of opinion that the reservoir in Hyde Park, proposed by Major Barney, and estimated at £30,000, ought not to be commenced until this point is ascertained. The Major thinks that it might be practicable to convey the water from the stream running into Cook's Rivor by means of a steam-engine. In the mean time the Committee strought recommends that with the present supply, the water should be conducted to fifteen or twenty different parts of the town, and cocks opened under regulations to prevent waste, which would be of great advantage to the poor. As it appears evident that the supply for the tunnel will entirely depend upon the fall of rain, and, consoquently, that in seasons of drought, when the greatest searcity prevails in obtaining water from other sources, the supply will be at its least quantity, an immediate and careful survey of the neighbouring districts is recommended, for the purpose of ascertaining what ultimate resources may be rendered available for the supply of an element so essential to the prosperity and advancement of the rising Capital of Australia. Taking all the circumstances of Mr. Busby's claim into consideration, the Committee recommends that the sum of £1000 be paid to him by way of gratuity, in addition to the salary authorised by Her Majesty's Government. A salary of £150 per annum is also recommonded to be paid to Mr. William Bushy for six years while he was acting as an assistant to his father.

PORT PHILLIP.—The Cornwall Chronicle (Dec. 30) states that the John Dungcombe, arrived oarly in the week from this El Dorado, having had, in consequence of the late prevalence of easterly winds, a long and unplusant passage across the Straits. She brings several passengers, from some of whom we learn that the Settlement is progressing most rapidly, and that it already wears the feature of many years establishment. The sheep are reported to thrive beyond the most samming expectation of the owners, and that, save the occasional visits of native dogs-from the consequences of which, however, due caution and watchfulness is only never sary to preserve them, hitherto there has existed no drawback to the success of sheep farming, but it is rumoured, that of late the Aboriginal Natives have been several times detected in spearing the animals. Two gentlemen visited us by the Dunscombe, who travelled with their stock over land to Port Phillip from Sydney. one of whom has given us a most pleasant account of the expedition. This gentleman is on his way to Hebart Town, to take shipping for Sydney, intending to start from thenec, as early as possible after his return, with another flock of sheep, and a number of eattle and horses. He describes the country passed through, with little exception, as most fertile and pieturesque; but, four rivers delayed their usual rapid travelling, over each of which the slicep were conveyed in a boat. A tribe, counlyting of some sixty natives, were fallen in with, when within about sixty or seventy miles of the Township of Melbourne, who behaved very friendly.

Colonel Snodgrass is expected to be appointed Governor of Port Phillip, after the arrival of Sir George Gipps, at Sydney. From the known and approved charactor of the Veteran Colonel, a doubt eannet exist of the success of the Colony under his control

We are informed by a gentleman just arrived from the Township, that some stranger Natives had been in, a few days prior to his departure, and stated, that they had discovered the remains of Messrs. Gellibrand and Hesse on the banks of the big Lake; a party of friendly Natives from the Township immediately accompanied the strangers to the place, and had not returned when our informant left.

Mail overland between Sydney and Port Phillip.—It is arranged by the authorities at Sydney to run a mail overland regularly once a fortnight to Port Phillip, and the stationing a steam boat on Government account at the latter place, to run across the Straits to Launceston with the mail upon its arrival, is seriously talked of. The Government of this Colony cannot too soon, for the general welfare, complete the line of road from George Town to Launceston; thereby affording the means of a regular and expeditious conveyance of information between the sea-port towns of the two colonies

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH OF SIR JOHN JEFFCOTT.—The Advertiser publishes the following account of the melancholy accident that befel Sir John Jeffcott and most of his boat's crew, off the River Murray. "We have received the only authentic particulars yet known in the Colony of the death of Sir John Jeffeott. They are contained in a letter from Captain Hindmarsh to a gentleman in this Colony, a relative of the deceased Judge. It appears that Sir Jehn Jeffcott had left Adelaide on the 19th November, in the Harbour Boat for Encounter Bay, where he embarked on board the South Australian for the purpose of coming on to Van Diemen's Land. On the 8th December, and while, as we understand, the ship was still at anchor, a heavy gale came on from the S. W., and the ship was driven on shore and bilged. The crew were fortunately all saved. Sir John, however, unhappily only escaped one danger to meet his death a few days afterwards. Disappointed in his immediate departure for this Colony, Sir John, who was an ontorprising character, joined a party consisting of the Colonial Secretary and some others, to examine Lake Alexandrina. On the 12th, an attempt was made to go out by the passage in a whale boat that had previously come in by that channel, for the purpose of coasting to Captain Blenkinsop's establishment, a distance of about twenty miles. Sir John, Captain Blenkinsop, and five seamen were in the boat. It appears that they had imprudently taken about 500 lbs of whalebone, which they had found on the beach, into the boat; and it was thought that this and some other weighty things which they had brought on board, prevented her rising to the rollers. It was in the midst of them that she was upset, and Sir John Jeffcott, Captain Blenkinsop, and two of the seamen were drowned.

South Austractar News.—By the barque Hartley, Capt. Fewson, from Port. Adelaide, a Gazette, dated 11th November, came to hand, (says the Cornwall Chronicle, Dec. 30,) the last number, we understand, published of that journal. It is made up, as each of its predecessors has been, of malignant and scurrilous attacks against the servants of the colonization commissioners for South Australia; who, it would seem, severally and individually are hunted down by the renowned editor, George Stevenson, Clerk of the Council, Private Sceretary, and Grand Adviser to his Excellency, Capt Hindmarsh, and a magistrate of the territory—with all the ferocity of a ruffian, and the ignoble triumph of a bully. In reading over the soweral numbers of the South Australian Gazette, we find little information calculated to Shipping Disasters.—The company's whaling ship, South Australian, went on shore at Encounter Bay, in a gale of wind, where she lay bilged, after having beaten over a reef of rocks. Some hopes were entertained that she would be got officially but it is feared the injuries she received are too extensive to be repaired with the means afforded at the settlement.—The brig, Sir Charles M'Carthy, was sold for the benefit of the underwriters, as she lay on the shore in Holdfast Bay, and was purchased by Mr. Wright, master of the hired cutter William, for about £600, (her hull £200, and her masts, sails, rigging, &c., about £400). Mr. Wright having got her off, and found her uninjured, fitted her out immediately, and sold her to the Company for the sum (we hear) of £2,000. The fact of this vessel having been abandoned to the underwriters—without having received the most trifling injury, will, we fear, cause some litigation in settling the policy of insurance effected on her.

THE WEATHER.—The heat of the weather at Adelaide, is said to have been most oppressive during the summer. The thermometer having been for a considerable period in the mid-day sun 160° Fahrenheit, and 135° in the shade. The face of the country is, as must be the consequence of the heat, dried up, and we hear some little whispering about the staple of the wool on the sheep's backs indicating a deterioration. Men accustomed to tropical climates will not be much surprised at this.

Price of Provisions,—The price of imported provisions is about the same as at Launceston. Fresh beef and mutton 7d. and 8d. per lb. Emigrants are arriving very fast; no less than five vessels full of passengers arrived within the space of a few days at Port Adelaide. The population exceeds 3,300 souls.

CAPTAIN AND MRS. DUFF.—Capt. and Mrs. Duff may be expected shortly, having taken their passages for Hobart Town in the Company's ship John Pirie.

Official Bickerings.—Since writing the above, the arrival of the Industry, Capt. Trundle, which vessel left Kangaroo Island on the morning of Christmas-day, confirms the above stated information. Mr. Stephenson, the editor of the Gazette, and Mr. Strangeways, the gentleman appointed by Capt. Hindmarsh to fill the situation of Colonial Secretary, from which Mr. Gonger was thrust by the Governor, issued a warrant to arrest the persons of Mr. Stephens, the Manager of the South Australian Company, and Mr. Wright, the master of the hired cutter, William, on the affidavit of Capt. Blenkinsop, upon a charge of capital felony. The case is made out in the Gazette most deplorably bad, and the prisoners, as they are denominated by the editor, were bound over in recognizances to appear when called upon, but as the prosecutor, Capt. Blenkinsop, lost his life by the upsetting of the boat, with Sir John Jeffeott, it is probable the matter will not be more heard of, particularly if some of the new crowing officials are relieved from their duties by the home autho-The name of Mr. Edward Stephens, brother to the above named gentleman, Mr. Samuel Stephens, and Cashier at Adelaide, of the South Australian Company's Bank, has been omitted from the new Commission, of the Peace. This is another mark of petty party oppression.

VAN DIEMEN'S LAND.

Hobart Town.—Sir John Franklin.—His Excellency's intention to make a leaves Hobart Town, on 1st January. It is his Excellency's intention to make a complete tour of the located portion of the island. He will visit Circular Head, and also Swan Port. It is expected that he will not return to Hobart Town for two months.

THE BUSSORAH MERCHANT - SMALL-Pox. - The Bussorah Merchant from

London, with upwards of three hundred passengers on board, having lost above fifty by the Small-Pox, on the passage out, was permitted to another in the river, before it was known that so dangerous and virulent a distemper was her attendant. But for the promptitude of his Excellency, the Lieutonant Governor, the mest intal consequences would, in all probability, have resulted from this most culpable negligence on the part of those whose duty it was to have accertained all particulars as to the health of those on board. By the Governor's order the vessel was sent to the mouth of the Huon to perform quarantine.

Windfalls.—We understand a gentleman holding a high situation in the Hobart Town police, is in expectation of shortly receiving a hundred thousand pounds, to be let cut on security in this Colony. A gentleman high in the liquid profession, is also in expectation of receiving about two thousand pounds for the same purpose. These odds and ends, with the new Bank, will make money plenttiful.—Colonial Times.—December.

RICHMOND RACES.—The Richmond Races went off remarkably dull; we understand Mr. Bayton's Sancho won the Town Plate, boating Mr. Kearney's Sir Peter; in consequence of which a challenge was given and taken, and Sancha and Peter are to run at the New Town Moeting for a large sum.-Ibid.

PROPOSED BANK.—We understand that several of the leading tradespeople are again discussing the propriety of establishing a bank, more especially suited for affording accommodation to that wealthy and respectable body. The great inconvenience suffered by them, in consequence of the whims and caprice of the present bank directors, has induced them to endeavour to establish a trades-bank. There never could be a better opportunity than the present, for starting such an establishment.

Mr. Hone.—Mr. Hone, for so many years the ruling sovereign of the Court of Roquests—known more commonly as the "little go," has resigned that situation, and is to be appointed sole Commissioner of the Caveat Board, before whom and two assessors, all disputed cases relative to land are to be heard.—Colonial Times.

Disastrous Excursion.—A numerous party of ladies and gentlemen, says the Colonial Times, (December,) taking advantage of the tent being fixed at the summit of Mount Wellington, for her Excellency Lady Franklin, lately determined to form an expedition to that elevated spot on the following day. Consequently one morning at an early hour, away started a fashionable party of our Hobartonians—having, as we understood, made arrangements to return the same evening. Friday night passed, and Saturday went by, and yet no intelligence was heard respecting them. During Saturday evening the alarm became general, and as, among the explorers, there were some of the officers of the 21st regiment and their ladies, it was deemed advisable, that the military should be sent in scarch of the fugitives. Several these were drafted on the expedition, and towards sun-down on Sunday, the whole of the exploring party were safely conveyed back to Hobart Town. It appears that the whole of the party for want of a guide, had, on their return, missed their way; that thereupon, a difference of opinion existed as to the right route, whereupon the party deployed into three distinct companies, each taking a different route, and cach becoming more and more bewildered. After a fatiguing march, one party was fallent in with by the military, and presented a truly miserable spectacle. There were three or four gentlemen looking the picture of misery, dripping with wet, and scarcely a decent covering over them, standing and sitting near a large hollow gum tree, in which an officer's amiable lady was thrust to protect her from the torrents of rain which were then falling. The second party was in much the same condition, the ladies having been placed into hollow trees. As to the third party, we have not heard how they were discovered. The clothes of both ladies and gentlemen were in such a pickle, that they could not have been disposed of at rag-fair. In all, this exploring expedition, we fancy, has quite satisfied each and all of the party. The most extraordinary part of it is his, the Surveyor-General was one of the explorers, and with all his knowledge of land surveying, trigonometry, and right lines, he could not discover what was a straight line; but he certainly did discover that it tooks from Friday morning to Sunday ovening to form a circle, the extremes of which wero Secheron and Mount Wellington.

THE WEATHER.—The heat has been oppressive, the thermometer standing as high as 128, it reached 132 at one period. In consequence of this oppressive weather, most of the gardens have suffered very considerably; the gooseberries and apples look half boiled or toasted, and the raspherries are blighted, and the currents drop off half ripe. On Saturday, the weather was also extremely oppressive, and towards evening the atmosphere threatened a tempest. During the evening, the lightning was most clarming, and a little after midnight the rain poured down in torrents. Never, in the recollection of the oldest settlers, was the heat so oppressive as on Friday—business of all kinds was at a complete stand still.—(Close of Dec.)

CAPT. FORSTER.—By the Gazette, we learn that his Excellency has been pleased to appoint Captain Forster as Chairman of the Bench of Magistrates. We are sorry to say, that in this colony-the magistracy are not allowed to have a will of their own, and that even a nomination of their leader is not permitted to them.

LAUNCESTON.

LOYAL ADDRESSES.—Public Meeting.—A few of the inhabitants assembled at the Court-house, December 26th, for the purpose of considering Addresses to her Majesty and the Queen Dowager. William G. Sams, Esq., Under Sheriff, in the chair; who, in stating the purport of the meeting, read a letter received by him from the Committee at Hobart Town, accompanying copies of the Addresses adopted there, and put it to the meeting, whether or not such Addresses should be adopted as there of the people of Launceston. They were adopted.

THE COLONIAL SECRETARY.—The Colonial Secretary, Mr. Montague, is on a visit, we understand, (says the Corn. Chron. Jan. 6,) to Mr. Thomas Reibey, of Entally.

LAUNCESTON SHIPPING TRADE.—There are, (says the Cornwall Chronicle, Dec. 23rd,) now in the river upwards of seventeen hundred tons of shipping, bound for the Port of London alone, besides others trading to places of nearer proximity. This fact, taken in connexion with the still advancing trade of Hobart Town, must, we are sure, create a feeling of surprise, capable only of addition, by considering, that this immediate difference, which only a few years has made in our commercial importance, is unproductive of that increase of prosperity, so naturally to be inferred as the inevitable consequence. Upon a little reflection, however, our staprise will in a great measure subside—we shall perceive that the "vampire" system to which we have been exposed—and the erooked policy by which we have been governed, is the sole eause of a phenomenon so monstrous and unnatural. Great Britain appears to be treating us as Saturn treated his children—begetting, and then devouring them. Every year brings with it some additional demand made by its KIND PARENT on the exhausted resources of this ill-fated colony. We are scarcely recovered from the panic into which we were thrown, by being saddled with the expense of the police department, before we are petrified with the intelligence, that four or five thousand pounds more, will for the time to come. be annually extracted from the pockets of the colonists, for the maintenance of 268 convicts employed upon the roads;—we hope that gangs of them will not now, as formerly, be lent to gentlemen residing near the scene of their labours, for weeks or months together, to forward the improvement of their private estates.

Colonial Marine.—A report was very current about town during the past week, that orders have been received from home, that the expense of the Colonial Marine shall in future be borne by the Colonial Fund. We hesitate not to declare, that in the absence of a Local Legislature, such a charge amounts to nothing short of the actual plunder of the Colonists, if the present system is to be continued, and the numerous scions of accursed patronage are to be maintained in idleness.—Cornwall Chronicle (January 6).

MEETING FOR ELECTING CHURCHWARDENS.—Towards the end of December last a Vestry Meeting was held at St. John's Church, for the purpose of electing Churchwardens for the ensuing year. Dr. Browne was called upon to nominate the gentleman whom he was entitled by the Act to name as one of the three Churchwardens, to which the Rev. Gentleman replied that he wished the popular election to be first decided. Several gentlemen were variously proposed, but declined the office, and Dr. Browne being again solicited to name some person, requested Mr. Prianks to accept office as one of the required number furnished by his appointment. Mr. Underwood was then unanimously elected as another, and Mr. William Henty as a third.

Benevolent Society was holden, December 28th, at the Infant School-house. W. E. Lawrence, Esq., was in the Chair. The Report read by the Secretary informed us of the increasing usefulness of the Institution; but we regret to find that the treasurer is again in advance about £90. Several gentlemen addressed the audience. A collection was made after the meeting, towards the liquidation of the debt, which amounted, we understand, to £37, and lists are to be left at the Banks for the same purpose.—Advertiser.

Charges against the Port Officer.—In the last number of this Journal, (the Cornwall Chronicle, Dec. 30th,) we acknowledged the receipt of a document from Mr. Corthwaite John Colpoys Ommanoy, purporting to be a copy of a patition from that individual to his Excellency Sir John Franklin, upon the subject, as we supposed it to be, of his incarceration in Her Majesty's Gaol, for the want of sureties required from him for his good behaviour. Upon a perusal of the document we find it to contain charges of a most scrious nature against the Port Officer, the whole of which we trust are groundless. It is not our province to judge any Public Officer charged with violating the trusts reposed in him—we think, however, that a gentleman conscious of rectitude, would rather court the strictest investigation latter his conduct, than avoid it, and understanding that his Excellency is in possession of the document, addressed to him by Mr. Ommaney, we shall not further interfere in the matter.

NEW COURT HOUSE.—The foundation has been commonced laying for a Court House, at the corner of Wellington and Patterson-streets, noar to the Gaol and Military Barracks. This building will be completed in about fifteen or cightness months. A few houses adapted for the accommodation of private families, and wanted in the town at present.

Cape of Good Mope.

Insurfection.—Murder of Lieutenant Crows.—We are happy to state, says the South African Commercial Advertiser, March 10, that the mutineers (Cape Regiment—sixteen in number) who, after murdering Lieutenaut Crowe, had fled into the bush, or into Cafferland, have been nearly all apprehended. and that after a minute investigation by the Lieutenant-Governor into the circumstances connected with this horrid transaction, no connection or understanding between any of the Caffor Chiefs and the Mutineers has been proved. Umkays and Eno's white Son, were the chiefs suspected, and though it would be premature to conclude that such a suspicion was wholly groundless, yet as it has been ascertained that the statements on which the suspicion rested at first, such as their having destroyed their gardens and prepared for war, turn out to be untrue, we think the Licutenant-Governor acted wisely in receiving Umkaye's denial of all participation In the acrocious design, and his premise to seize the deserters if found in his territory, as satisfactory in the meantime. On the trial of the mutineers the whole truth will probably come to light. It is in Umkaye's favour that he came to the Lieutenaut-Governor at the Military Post as soon as he was sent for, though he knew that the affair was there undergoing an investigation; and that though the news had spread through Cafferland no excitement whatever had been observed at any of the krashs. Umkaye, by himself, is nobody, and it can scarcely be supposed that he would be ac mad as to make war without communicating with the other chiefs. Not the slightest indication of any such communication, however, has been discovered. Had any of the chiefs been prepared to act with the mutineers, as soon as the news spread that the mutiny had commenced, some movement would infallibly have taken place. To this we may add that the mutineers, though pressed by hunger, and vigilantly pursued within the Colony, did not think Cafferland a safe place of reluge. They intended to have plundered a Colonial farm, and then to have forced a retreat beyond the Orange River.

We learn farther that the Lieutenant-Governor, after dismissing Umkaye, proceeded to visit the different chiefs bordering on the frontier, accompanied by Mr. Shepstone, the interpreter, and two orderly dragoons. This mark of confidence at such a moment, will not be thrown away on these men. Every one of them expressed their abhorrence of the mutiny, and spoke with contempt of "Bushmen" taking an English post. The Caffer Chief Stock said that some of the deserters had come to him and told him that the whole regiment was in arms against the Government; but he said to them, "my Kraal is an English Kraal. If you are against the English, you are against me:" upon which they went away. Macomo and Type expressed the same sentiments. We understand that Macomo, in conclusion, thus addressed the Lieutenant-Governor:—"You are a Caffer, I am an Englishman. We are now one. Our hearts are one, and so it must remain." We trust it will results. It will lead to a review of the service on the Frontier, which is unquestionably a severe one—we use an one that subjects the discipline and morals of the soldier to a severe test.

4 p 2

CAFFRE DEPREDATIONS.—By the Graham's Town Journal (March 1st), we find that depredations on the cattle of the farmers were still increasing, though no serious robberies had latterly been effected.

RUMOURED CALAMITY TO THE EMIGRANT FARMERS.—Letters had been received (March 7) in Cape Town, stating that a rumour which had reached the Colony some time ago, respecting a calamity which had befallen the Emigrant Boers, had been confirmed, but the particulars have not yet been ascertained. The rumour amounts simply to this, that a division of the Emigrants on their way to Port Natal, has been cut off by some of the Native Bribes. The place where this occurred is not mentioned, but one letter states that they were defeated by the "Caffers." As letters from Cafferland make no mention of the affair, it may be suspected that the powerful and warlike tribes beyond the Kei must have turned their eyes towards the tempting carayans. There is, however, another report affoat, that Dingaan, himself, has attacked the main party under Retief. In whatever point of view (says the Advertiser) we have been able to regard this irruption of the Colonists into the Interior, we have never had the slightest doubt as to its immediate effects. Bloodshed and devastation must mark its progress, and it can end no otherwise than in the ruin and dispersion of the unhappy people who have so wantonly renounced the support and protection of their lawful government.

THE EMIGRANT FARMERS, (Jan. 7).—We learn that nearly all the emigrant farmers have safely crossed the Draakberg, and are now in the country of Natal. The cavalende is described as most imposing. The number of sheep, horses, and cattle which they have with them, is said to be quite incredible. They are treating, it is said, with the Amaponda Chief, Fach, for the purchase of the extensive and beautiful tract of unoccupied country, lying between the Umzimvoobo and Umzim-eoolu.

Operations of the Emigrant Farmers.—(Extract of a letter from Graaff-Reinet, Jan. 23d, 1838.)—"Andries Pretorius and his party have returned from Port Natal, and are so pleased with every thing they saw, that they intend taking leave of us finally in as short a time as will be possible to get their affairs in order. It is pretty certain that a considerable part of our burghers will go with them, and we begin to apprehend that the district will become exposed to the easy prey of our privilegod travellers, the vagrants. We have also news from the Winterveld and Middenveld, that more than half the inhabitants have already moved off over the Great River, and that there is very little probability of their returning. Valuable farms are sold or offered for sale in that direction for mere trifles, and where they cannot find purchasers, they will be left to be occupied by whoever may choose to do so. Fears are entertained that as soon as our northern frontiers shall be thus abandoned, hordes of Bushmen, Bechuauas, and other foreigners will close in upon us, and that emigration will soon become general throughout the district.

"I find in Mr. Fairbairn's Paper, that we may seen expect some emigrants from England to fill up the vacancies made by our farmers! Pray tell him to get them sent here forthwith, lest they may find those vacancies occupied by the time they arrive by the favourites of the land, who may perhaps be disposed to dispute with them—if not the possession of land—at least that of live stock of whatever nature." From another hand we have the following important intelligence, under date Graaff-Reinet, 23d Jan., 1838 :- " The whole of the district is set in commotion by the return of the deputation of boers from Natal, (Messrs. Pretorius and others), bringing such accounts of prosperity and peace that the whole population here is mad to join them; and no one can doubt that a more extensive emigration will commence in three months' time than can beginnagined. These men are all epulent and influential, and it must be a serious loss to the colony whenever such men take their departure. They spent new year's day in boats upon the Bay of Natal, and arrived at their homes on the evening of the 18th, thus performing the journey in horse waggons in seventeen days. They had the gratification to meet Retief returning with the cattle stolen from Dingaan by the Mantatee chief, whom he took prisoner; so that, in all probability, friendly relations are by this time established between the emigrants and Dingaan."—(Graham's Town Journal, Feb. 1st, 1838.)

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.—We find that by a Proclamation respecting the Legisalative Council, the former Executive and Legislative Council are extinguished, and revived with some alterations by Letters Patent. In March, the new Sunday Ordinance was read a second time.

OFFENCES BEYOND THE FRONTIER.—Decision. In the Supreme Court, (Feb.) the Judges gave their decision on this important question at law. (See Cape Symmesis) page 451). The Court decided that cases of offences beyond the frontier cannot be brought to trial before the Court of the Colony. The act on the subject will therefore have to be amended.

STOCKENSTROM v. CAMPRELL, (for Libel; Supreme Court, March 10.)—The Cape, papers to this date were filled with the details of this trial, which was of some importance. The defendant having accused the plaintiff of shooting a Caffer twenty-five years ago. The trial was not over by last accounts.

Missionary Institutions.—On 12th February, the Annual Meeting of the London Missionary Society (Auxiliary) in Cape Town, was held in Union Chapel, Church-square, the Rev. Dr. Adamson in the Chair. The Report contained a statistical account of the numerous Stations supported by the Society in South Africa. It is to be regretted that Government has never yet favoured the public with a similar review of the state of Education in the establishments under its charge, this been done annually (says the Advertiser) as the Colony had a right to capel, we should not have been obliged to blush at the humiliating contrast now exhibited between the Government and the Missionary Schools, nor have heard it affirmed without the fear of contradiction, that there are twice as many more pupils at the Missionary Schools in Kat River Field-Cornetcy alone, than in all the Public Schools of the Colony!

The meeting was addressed by Mr. Read, the Rev. Dr. Adamson, Mr. Poars, Mr. Locko, Mr. Elliott, Jan Tzatzoe, and Dr. Philip, and we searcely recollect a similar meeting where the great cause of Christian Missions among the Heathen was more effectively illustrated and maintained.

THE NATURAL HISTORY OF THE CAPE.—Mr. John Bell, the Secretary to Government, had forwarded to the Public Library a code of directions for selecting and preserving specimens of the Natural History of the Colony, which latter had been applied for by the Trustees of the British Museum, through the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

DR. MURRAY.—The Civil Medical Practitioners of Cape Town, have presented Dr. Murray with a nandsome Snuff Box, as a token of their esteem and regard, previous to his departure from the Colony.

ASIATIC REGISTER.

Calcutta.

ABSTRACTS OF DRAFT ACTS READ IN COUNCIL.

TOLL AT BHORE GHAUT—LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT. (March 5.)—Enacting, that toll (on every Palanquin 1 rupee,) (on every laden bullock, 6 Pice) shall be levied at the Toll Gate, of the Bhore Ghaut, (read 1st time.)

Powers of Zillah Courts—(March 5.)—Enacting, that it shall be lawful for a judge of any Zillah or City Court, within the territories of the Presidency, to exercise the powers vested in a single judge of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, (read first time.)

Fines.—Legislative Department, 12th March.—On the 12th March, 1838, enacted, that it shall be competent to the session judges within the Presidency of Bombay, in adjudging a sentence of fine, to award such fine or any part of such fine, in compensation to the party who may have been injured; in like manner as it competent to magistrates to award fines, under clause 1st, section XIII. regulation XII. of 1827, of the Bombay code, for general information. To be re-considered the first meeting of the Legislative Council of India, after 24th of April next.

Functionaries of Kumaoon. (12th March).—Enacted, that regulation 1817, of the Bengal code, shall be repealed.—And enacted, that the functionaries who are or may be appointed in province of Kumaoon, be henceforthe placed under the control and superintendence, in civil cases, of the court of sudder dewanny adamlut at allahabad, in criminal cases, of the court of nizamut adamlut at Allahabad, and in revenue cases, of the sudder board of revenue at Allahabad; and that such control and superintendence shall be exercised in conformity with such instructions as the said functionaries may have received, or may hereafter receive, from the Government of the North Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William. To be re-considered at the first meeting of the Legislative Council of India, after 24th day of April next.

GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATIONS.

PARTING TRIBUTE FROM GOVERNMENT TO SIR C. METCALTE.—General Department, 12th March.—The right honourable the Governor-General has suggested, and the honourable the President in Council concurs in the opinion, that the time is arrived (Sir C. Metcalfe having departed from India) for paying a parting tribute of applause to the public services of that distinguished officer. It would be specifications to enter into an enumeration of the several situations filled by one so long and so well known to the Indian community. It is sufficient to state, that at a very early period of his service, he was selected on account of his merits alone, for the discharge of the most important and difficult duties; that the mode in which he acquitted himself of such trusts, amply justified the implicit confidence reposed in him by Government, and that by a long and uninterrupted careor of zealous, able, and honorable exertions, he attained the highest office in the state, and was honored by a conspicuous token of the favour of his sovereign.

QUEEN'S TROOPS—RESTORATION OF SERVICE.—Head Quarters, Simla, 15th February.—For the information of Her Majesty's troops in India:—Horse Guards, August 30, 1837.

The General Commanding in Chief desires, that all recommendations for the restoration of service, forfeited by either non-commissioned officers, or soldiers, may be accompanied by a correct transcript of the record of the service of the individual, on a separate sheet, according to the form issued by the 'War Office, on the 21st March, 1837. By command, &c.

(Signed) JOHN MACDONALD, A. G.

PAY OF PRIVATES—LETTER TO THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.—War Office, 30th September, 1837. Sir,—It having been ascertained that sums of money paid to soldiers on their discharge for arrears of pay, or advance of pension, are frequently squandered before the men arrived at their places of residence, I am directed by the Secretary at War to acquaint you, that arrangements have been made, with the concurrence of the General Commanding-in-Chief, for deferring the payment of such sums until the men shall have reached their destinations, and to suggest, that similar directions should be given to the agent of the regiment under your command, in regard to any payments to be made to discharged men, either on account of family remittances, or out of any regimental fund which may exist, from which contributions are made to men on their discharge. I have, &c.

(Signed) L. SULIVAN, &c. OUDE AUXILIARY FORCE—GENERAL ORDER BY THE RESIDENT AT LUCKNOW. -Lucknow Residency, 27th January, 1838.-It having been decided upon by the Government of India, in concert with His Majesty the King of Oude, that a force shall be levied within the dominions of the latter, to be denominated "the Onde Auxiliary Force;" the orders and instructions, founded upon resolutions already passed in the Political and Military Departments by the Right Honorable the Governor General, are issued by the Resident at Lucknow to give immediate effect to the measure.

[Here follow the names of officers onrolled in this Force, already published in our Register; as they will continue to be whenever gazetted in India. Also abstracts exhibiting the numerical strength of corps, with various other particulars of an unimportant nature. The Force is modelled on the same general principle observed in the British army.

ORDER FOR PROVISION OF OFFICERS, &c. (COMMISSIONED AND NON-COM-MISSIONED,) FOR THE OUDE FORCE.—Head Quarters, Simla, 6th January, 1838.— The Commander-in-Chief authorizes volunteers being called for, for the purpose of providing commissioned and non-commissioned officers for the Oude Auxiliary Force, about to be raised. 2. It is to be distinctly explained to the men who may volunteer, that they are to consider themselves, from the dato of their being struck off the strength of their present regiments, as servants of the King of Oude; and that the privilege allowed to soldiers of the Company's regular army, of preferring complaints through their officers to the Resident at Lucknow, respecting their village affairs or disputes, will not be granted to any persons of the Oude Auxiliary Force; but that all such matters must be adjusted by the native Government, as in the cases of other Oude subjects in His Majesty's military service: 3. The pay of the troops of the Oude Auxiliary Force will be the same as that fixed for the local corps in the Bengal army. 4. The native officers and privates will be entitled to the benefit of the pension establishment, after a service of not less than twenty-nine years, if pronounced by a committee of modical officers unfit for further military duty. The scale of pension to correspond in amount with that granted to local troops on this establishment. 5. The men who may volunteer from corps of the line, for promotion into the force, if they have already served fifteen years, will receive, where invalided, either the pension to which they would now be entitled if transferred from their present corps to the invalid establishment, or to such pension as they would acquire if in a local corps, whichever may be the highest. Volunteers who have not served fifteen years in the line, will count their first service in respect to pension, as locals. 6. Commanding officers of corps, from which volunteering is permitted will be eareful to transfer only such men as may be fit for the advanced rank was the they are about to attain, giving preference to old and deserving officers and soldiers, 7. Descriptive rolls of native officers, non-commissioned officers and privates, to be prepared. 8. The volunteers are to be paid up, and struck off the strength of their respective regiments, from the date of the publication of this order at the head. quarters of their corps; and are to be directed to assemble, the drafts for the cavalry, golundauze, and 1st regiment of infantry, at Sultanpore; and for the 2d regiment of infantry, at Scetapore.

The Jungle Mehals.—Head Quarters, Simla, January 20th, 1838.—The Civil Officers of Government having represented that distress and inconvenience have been occasioned in the country called the Jungle Mehals, in the vicinity of part of the new road from Burdwan towards Benarcs, by demands having been made, by troops marching through it, for coolies and hackeries, his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief has directed that in future Officers in command of regiments or detachments will take care to supply themselves with the requisite means of transport at Burdwan and Sheerghally respectively, so that no demands may be made on the villages in the newly settled country referred to.

STAFF Nominations to Detachments.—Head Quarters, Simla, January 30th, 1838.—Notified that whenever a detachment is sent from a regiment, the strength of which renders the services of an adjutant requisite, the nomination is to be made by the officer commanding the regiment previous to the departure of the party.

SALT DUTY.—Separate Department, January 24th.—Declared that exporters of this article from any port or place of manufacture in the Bombay Presidency, for import at Calcutta, will be allowed credit in settling for the import duty at Calcutta, for any amount of duty duly certified to have been paid on such salt at Bombay.

PILOTS—ADDITIONAL RULE.—General Department, January 24th—The allowances stated in the rules, 3rd January, as to be drawn by members of the Pilot Service, will be paid in sices rupces to those members only who were in the Service before the 17th June, 1835, and to those who entered the service after that date they will be passed the same amount in Company's rupees. The passage-money to members of the Pilot Service, of both the above classes, will be passed in Company's rupees.

Colonel Roper's Memorial for Retiring Advantages.—Head Quarters, Simla, February 2nd.—The Hon. the Court of Directors have declined to comply with the prayer of the memorial from Colonel V. Roper and other officers, of the 29th Docember, 1836, (praying that the three years granted for furlough might be included in the periods prescribed by the Court, as entitling their officers to pensions); but have at the same time granted additional advantages to the senior officers of the army, in respect of retiring pension, as announced in General Orders, No. 258.

ENTITLED TO FRANKING. (Feb. 14th.)—Additions to the list of public officers entitled to frank official correspondence appended to the Post Office Rules. Joint remount Agent, Bombay; Officers appointed by Government to conduct Special Inquiries or Researches; Registrar of Shippiny, on Her Majesty's Services Opium Agent, Deputy, and Sub-Deputy Opium Agent; the Archdeacon of either Presidency.

COURT MARTIAL.

Conner E. Roche, H. M.'s 3nd L. D. (16th Fcb.)—At a general Courtmartial held at Fort William, on the 22nd of January, 1838, Cornet E. Roche, of H. M.'s 3d L. D., was arraigned on the following charge: -- "For conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, in having, on the night of the 12th of October, 1837, grossly insulted Mr. Henry Pownall Sawell, third mate of the ship Thomas Grenville, by striking him a blow which knocked him down. Finding-" Guilty of the assault, but the Court taking into consideration the great and continued provocation received by Cornet Roche, fully acquit him of the remainder of the charge. Sentence-"To be severely reprimanded in such manner as His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief may be pleased to direct." Approved, &c.

Remarks by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.—The sentence of the Court martial being, that the prisoner Cornet E. Roche should be severely reprimanded he is to consider himself reprimanded by me accordingly. At the same time, however, that I issue this reprimand, I must remark, that the interference of Mr. Sawell, the third mate of the ship Thomas Grenville, with Cornet Roche, and the gross and vulgar language used by him, both with reference to the Irish generally, and to the Cornet personally, (which language formed the probable ground for the subsequent proceedings,) go far to extenuate the Cornet's misconduct. To be released from arrest, and to return to duty.

APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS, CHANGES, &c.

Civil.

Nov. 21.—Mr. F. Arrouch to be dep. coll, in zillah Sarun.

Dec. 9.—Cornet E. J. Robinson to be assist, to agent to Commr. at Delhi.

11. Lieut. A. Ramsay, 34th N. I., to be an assist. to Commr. in Kumaoon.

13. Mr. W. R. Timins to officiate as magistrate and collector of Budaon.

- Mr. R. Montgomery to officiate as mag, and collr. of Allahabad.

- Mr. H. C. Tuokor to take charge of Mr. Montgomery's late office till further
- Mr. E. T. Colvin to be assist. under commr. of Meerut division.

- Mr. J. J. W. Taunton, to offic. as mag. and coll, of Ghazeepore.

— Mr. M. Smith, to officiate for Mr. Taunton, in his late duties.

16. Mr. E. H. C. Monekton, to be an assistant under com. of Rohilcund, div.

- Mr. E. P. Smith, to continue to officiate as com. of Benares div. during absence of Mr. Currie.

19. Major Cameron, 1st assistant to resident at Hydrabad, to receive charge from Lieut.-Col. Stewart, and to officiate as resident until further orders.

29. Mr. R. N. C. Hamilton, to officiate as com. of Agra division.

Jan. 3.—Lieut. Dobbs, 3d Assist. to Com. for Govt. of Territories of H. H. the Sajadah of Mysore to be superint. of Nuggur div. v. Mr. H. Stokes resigned. Lieut. Dobbs to continue to officiate as superint. of Chittle droog div. till further orders.

4. Lieut. R. Morrieson, 52d N. I., to be assist. to agent to Gov. Gen. for states of Rajpootana, v. Lieut. Conolly.

10. Mr. H. Aubert to officiate v. Adam, for Mr. J. B. Marrige, as clerk to Committee for controlling stationery expen diture.

15. Capt. J. W. Douglas to be 2d assist to Resident at Indore, from date of Maj. Johnstou's resignation.

16. Mr. A. Ogilvic to be collr. of zillah Nuddea, v. Mr. H. P. Russell, (to England on furlough).

— Mr. J. A. F. Hawkins, to be regr. of Courts of Sudder Dewanny, and Nizamut Adawlut, from 10 Jan., v. Mr. J. F. M. Reid.

- Mr. J. F. Catheart, to be civil and session Judge of Purneah, v. Golding.

- Mr. B. Golding, to be ditto ditto of Jessore, v. Cathcart.

 Mr. D. Pringle, to officiate as com. of revenue, of Jessore div. till relieved by Mr. Dämpier.

- Mr. A. E. Campbell, to be dep. coll.

in 24 purgunnahs.

18. Mr. J. Dunbar, furl. to Cape for health.

20. Second Lieut, S. Pott, who was appointed in general orders 16th Oct. last, assist. to superint. of Feroze Shahs Canal, re-app. as assist, to the supt. of the Burdwan and Benares road.

- 2d Lieut. C. L. Spitta, eng. to be acting assist. to superintendent of canals west of the Jumna.
- 24. The Hon. W. H. L. Melville, retired from the service.

— Mr. C. R. Martin, ditto.

- Lieut.-Col. Burney, resident at Ava, two months' leave of absence.

29. Mr. R. Cathcart, to officiate till further orders as an add. Judge in Rokilcund, and to hold the sessions in zillahs Shahjehanpore and Dudaon.

30. Mr. J. R. Hutchinson, to be a temp. jud. of cts. of Sudder Dewanny and Nizamut Adawlut, in room of Mr. D. C. Smyth.

31. Lieut.-Col. Caulfield, superint. of Mysore Princes, to be agont to Gov.-Gen. at Moorshedabad, v. the Hon. Mr. Melville, resigned.

— Capt. Ouseley, to take charge of office of superint. of Mysore Princes, retaining his present office till furth. orders.

— Mr. G. Gough, furl. to Cape, or N. S. Wales for two years, for health.

— Sir C. D'Oyley, Bart., retired from the service.

- Mr. John Masters, ditto.

Feb. 5.—Mr. G. Alexander, to act for Mr. J. F. M. Reid, as postmaster-general during his absence.

- Mr. H. Armstrong, to officiate as judge of zillah Etawah.

— Mr. E. H. C. Monckton, to officiate as mag. and coll. of Futtehpore, during absence of Mr. H. Armstrong at Etawah, or till further orders, — Mt. G. D. Raikes, to be an assistant under commis. of Allahabad division.

10. Mr. R. E. Cunliffe, to officiate till further orders as coll. of Patna, v. Mr. J. S. Dumergue.

13. Mr. W. B. Jackson, to be com. of rev. of 14th or Moorshedabad division.

14. The Hon. Sir E. Ryan, Kt., has taken his scat as president of the general coin. of public instruction.

- Mr. D. Scott, retired from the service from 1st Feb.

Mr. G. R. Berney, do. from 10th do.
Mr. G. Adams, furl. to Europe.

— Mr. G. Edmonstone, Jun., to proceed to Mirzapore and study the Oriental Languages, under Mr. W. Woodcoek.

20. Mr. R. P. Harrison to exercise powers of joint mag. and dep. collr. in zillah Chittagong.

- Mr. T. R. Davidson, Com. of Rev. of 18th or Patna, div. furl. for two years, to proceed to Cape of Good Hope, on med. cert.
- 21. Mr. A. Cumming, employed in N. W. Prov. furl. to England, med. cert.

22. Mr. J. J. W. Taunton to be mag. Oriental Herald—Vol. 1.—No. VI.

and collector of Hamserpore from 29th

22. Mr. G. P. Thompson to officiate as judge of Goruckpore, during absence of Mr. Jackson or till further orders, and to retain charge of his present app. of special commissioner.

In consequence of the certified itiness of Mr. R. C. Glyn and the heavy press of business now pending in the sessions court in his jurisdiction, Mr. M.
J. Tierney is appointed to officiate as judge at Meerut, till Mr. Glyn is able to resume charge of his office, or till further, orders.

as mag. and coll. of Boolundshuhar Tierrey's absence ring Mr. Tiorney's absence.

- Mr. J. Neave to try the commitments at Boolundshuliur.

24. Mr. W. Crawford, mag. and coll. of Moozuffernuggur, leave for six months on medical cortificate.

— Mr. H. W. Deane to officiate as mag. and coll. of Moozusternuggur, during Mr. Crawford's absence on leave, or till further orders.

— Mr. G. Paton, M. D., officiating civil assist.-surg. at Allyghur, to be civil assist.-surgeon at that station.

27. Mr. W. H. Tydd to be dep. coll.

in Midnapore and Hidgellee.

- Mr. G. W. Pitt to be do., do., do.

— Mr. C. J. H. Graham, mag. and coll. of Rajeshahy, &c. leave for a month prep. to sea on furlough.

— The Hon. H. B. Devereux, assist. to com. for Government of territories of the Rajah of Mysore, leave five months to soa; sick certificate.

28. Mr. R. B. Thornhill, writer, reported qualified for the public service.

Mar. 1.—Mr. G. Alexander, assumed charge of the general post-office.

2. Brev.-Capt. 11. Huddleston, 7th N. I. to officiate as an assist, to com. in Kumaoon, during Lieut. A. Ramsay's absonce on medical certificate.

— Lieut. J. Duncan, 26th N. I., to be assist. to agent to Gov.-Gen. in Sauger and Newbudda territories, v. Cornet C. G.

Fagan, permitted to resign.

6. Mr. R. B. Thornhill, to be au assist, under com. of Jessore division.

- Mr. R. P. Singor, to be dop. coll; in Midnapore.

7. Mr. Ja H. Astell, confirmed in appropriate of the C. in finance.

pointment of sen. member of H. C. sinanacial agency at Canton, from date of Mr. Jackson's resignation, viz. 18th Nov.

— Mr. H. M. Clarke, confirmed in approintment of 2d member of do., do., do.,

9. Mr. J. Davidson to officiate an agent to Gov. Gen. at Bareilly.

Ecclesiastical.

Nov. 3.—The Rev. J. Vaughan, Chaplain, to be surrogate at Dinapore, in the archdeaconry of Calcutta, for granting episcopal licences of marriage.

Jan. 15.—Rev. H. S. Fisher to officiate as junior pres. chaplain.

Rev. J. C. Proby, furl. to Europe. 27. The Rev. J. J. Tucker, Chaplain of Saugor, leave 12 months to visit the hills on medical certificate.

Feb. 14.—The Rev. H. S. Fisher to be senior pres. chap., chap. to the gaul, and district chaplain, at Berhampore from 6th Dec. last, and to continue officiating as junior pres. chaplain till further orders.

— Mr. M. A. Bignell to perform duties of registrar of archdeacoury of Calcutta for Mr. W. H. Abbott, on leave,

2 months, private affairs.

17. The Rev. W. Palmer, Chaplain, of Nussecrabad, placed at disposal of Hon. dep. Governor of Bengal.

- The Rev. A. Hammond to be chaplain of Ghazeepore.

- The Rev. Mr. Etcson to be assistchaplain of Cawnpore.

- The Rev. Mr. Brooke to officiate as chaplain of Mhow.

28. The Rev. J. Bell, dist. Chaplain of Mhow, reported his return to the Bengal pres. from Singapore on the 27th Jan.

March 3.—Rev. J. Bell, Chaplain on the Bengal estab., to Europe on furlough, from date of sailing of the ship Zenobia.

Military.

Dec. 29.—Ens. C. G. Wash, 14th N. I., leave 6 months, from 26th Jan. to 25th July, 1838, to visit Calcutta and Cherra Poonjee, on priv. affairs, prep. to furl.

— Licut. and Adj. W. Smith, 19th N. I., leave for 3 months to visit Pres. on mod. cert., prep. to furlough.

Jan. 7.—Lieut. R. Waller, acting Adj. to 1st brig., to perform duties of adj. to div. in room of Lieut. and Brev. Capt. G. J. Cookson, resign. (Sirhind div. ord. confirmed.)

— Lieut. A. Stewart, European regt., to charge of a detachment of recruits for that corps, and to proceed with it by water to Agra, (confirmed.)

— Capt. R. Aitken, invalided, is permitted to reside in the hills north of Deyrah, and draw his pay from Meerut office.

9. Capt. S. P. C. Humfrays, 36th N. I., to be brig. maj. to troops serving under command.

10. Capt. J Hewett, of 52d N.1., to officiate as dep. judge adv. at an European court-martial, assembled at Nusseerabad. (Rajpootanah dist. ord. conf.)

10. Lieut. W. L. Mackeson, 19th N.I., to act as adj., v. Smith, on loave of abs. (confirmed.)

- Lieut. F. Gaitskell, from the 3d bat. art., to be adj. and quarter-mastr.,

4th bat. v. Cardew, dec.

— Major-General Sir R. Stevenson, K. C. B., command. Cawnpore div., leave from 1st Jan., 1838, to 8th Dec., 1838, to visit Simla, on med. cert.

- Lieut. and Adj. F. E. Smith, 69th N. I., leave in extension to visit Pres., on med. cert., prep. to furlough.

11. Lieut. W. Master, 7th L. C., furl.

to Europe, private affairs.

— The Pres. div. order of 29th Dec., directing the undermentioned Cornets and Ensigns, lately admitted into the service, to join and do duty with the corps specified opposite their names, is confirmed:—

Cornet J. J. Golloway, with the 5th regt. L. C. at Cawnpore; Cornet J. Munro, ditto 5th ditto; Cornot R. Christie, ditto 8th ditto, Sultanpore, Benares; Ensign J. P. P. T. Hawkey, ditto 65th regt. N. I., at Berliampore; Ensign W. Mayne, ditto 4th ditto, Goruckpore; Ens. A. Robinson, ditto 65th ditto, Berhampore; Ens. J. C. Fitzmaurice, ditto 51st ditto, Dinapore; Ens. R. J. Farre, difto 62d ditto, Cawnpore; Ens. O. Cavenagh, ditto 31st ditto, Allahabad; Ens. W. W. D. Voyle, ditto 5th ditto, Secrole, Benares; Ens. D. C. Shute, ditto 65th ditto, Berhampore; Ens. A. Carrington, ditto 1st ditto, Sungor; Ens. A. Turnet, ditto 1st ditto ditto; Ens. B. M. Loveday, ditto, 31st ditto, Agra.

12. Capt. G. R. Crawford, from 3rd comp. 3d bat., to 4th comp. 3d bat.

— Capt. W. J. Macvitie, from 4th comp. 3d bat., to 3d comp. 3d bat.

- 1st Lieut. E. H. Ludlow, (on furl.) from 4th comp. 1st bat., to 1st comp. 4th battalion.

— 1st Lieut. F. B. Boileau, (on furl.) from 3d troop 3d brig., to 6th comp. 7th battalion.

— 1st Lieut. G. T. Graham, from 1st comp. 4th bat., to 1st comp. 2d bat.

— Ist Lieut. F. C. Burnott, (on furl.) from 6th comp. 7th bat., to 4th comp. 1st bat. 4.

— 2d Lieut. W. K. Warner, from 3d comp. 3d bat., to 1st. comp. 6th bat.

— 2d Lieut. C. Boulton, from 1st comp. 6th bat., to 4th comp. 1st bat.

- 2d Lieut. E. Kaye, from 1st comp.

4th bat., to 3d comp. 3d bat.

— 2d Lieut. Kaye will do duty at Qum-Dum, until the conclusion of the practice season.

- Ens. J. I. Mainwaring at his own request, removed from R. W. Eur. reg.,

to 42d rog. of N. I., at Bareilly.

- The following Ensigns, to whom rank was assigned in Government General Orders, of the 29th Dec., are posted to corps specified opposite their respective names, and directed to join:-

Ensigns R. W. H. Fanshawe, R. W. Eur. reg., at Agra; W. Mayne, 49th reg. of N. I., at Neemuch; O. Cavenagh, 32d reg. of N. I., at Dacca; T. Cole, 2d reg. of N. I., at Barrackpore; A. Turner, 1st reg. of N. I., at Sauger: J. Pattulia (not arrived,) R. W. Eur. reg., at Agra; D. C. Shute, 19th reg. of N. I., at Cuttack; J. C. Lamb, 52d reg. N. I., at Nusseerabad; C. P. Trower, 23d reg. of N. I., at Agra; A. Carrington, 24th reg. of N. I., at Midnapore; H. J. W. Carter, 66th reg. of N. I., at Hussingabad; R. J. Farre, 72d reg. of N. I., at Mhow; B. M. Loveday, 15th reg. of N. I., at Barrackpore; J. K. Forbes, 10th reg. of N. I., at Lucknow; W. W. D. Voyle, 9th reg. of N. I., at Chittagong; J. C. Fitzmaurice, 2d reg. of N. I., at Lucknow; J. S. Paton, 14th reg. of N. I., at Agra; T. Spankie, B. A., 48th reg. of N. 1., at Delhi; J. Robinson, 69th reg. of N. I., at Saugor; P. H. K. Dewaaf, 34th reg. of N. I., at Futtehgurh; H. A. Sandeman, 49th reg. of N. I., at Neemuch; A. C. Plowden, 50th reg. of N. I., under orders for Mirzapore; A. Skene, (on leave to V. D. L.) 68th reg. N. I., at Allahabad; M. B. Whish, 29th reg. of N. I., at Bandah; W. Smith, 58th reg. N. I., under orders for Barrackpore; E. Close, 62d reg. N. I., at Dacca; P. Drummond, 22d reg. of N. I., at Nusseerabad; J. G. Stephen, 60th reg. of N 1., at Mhow; D. C. Alston, 26th reg. of N. I., at Mecrut; W. Hooper, 12th reg. of N. I., at Barrackpore; F. Mills, 54th reg. of N. I., at Meerut; J. P. P. T. Hawkey, 74th reg. of N. I., under orders for Nusscerabad; J. Clarke, 1st reg. of N. I., at Saugor; R. H. Hieks, R. W. Eur. reg., at Agra; C. P. White, 38th reg. of N. I., Delhi; A. Robinson, 19th reg. N. I., at Cuttack; and W. H. Williams, (not arrived,) 67th reg. of N. I., at Khyouk Phyoo, in Arracan.

13. Lieut.-Col. H. Hall, on furlough, posted from 13th to the 52d regiment of N. I.

- Lieut -Col. G. B. Bell, from 52d to 13th reg. N. I.

- The following officers app. to do duty at convalescent depôt at Landour, during approaching hot season:

Capt. and Brev. Maj. Squire, H. M.'s

13th L. I.

Lt. and Brev. Capt. Meredith, do., do.

Lieut. C. Sawyer, H. M.'s 3d R. or

Capt. C. Mudie, ditto, 6th ditto.

Capt. G. H. Boisragon, 74d reg. of N. I.

These officers will join the depot at Landour by 1st of April, and officers commending divisions from which convalescents are proceeding, will avail thumselves of their services in taking charge of men under orders for the hills.

15. Lieut. W. Kennedy, to act as itsterp. and quart.-mast., 38th N. I., v.

Hollings, on duty (confirmed.)

- Lieut. G. P. Brooke, to act as adj. to L. W. of 68th N. I., during its sep. from head quarters of the reg. fconfirmed.)

- Capt. R. Roberts on furlough, removed from 1st troop, 2d brig., to 4th eomp. 3d bat. art.

- Capt. G. R. Crawford, 4th comp

3d bat., to 1st troop, 2d brig. art.

- Brev. Capt. J. B. Backhouse, H art, from 2d brig., to be adj. and quartm. v. Anderson promoted.

- Major Gen. W. Hopper, art., furl.

to Europo private affairs.

— Lieut. W. Smith, 19th N. I., furl.

to Europe, health.

- Lieut. G. Abbott, 15th N. I., to ho Capt. of a comp., and Ens. G. Sharp to be Lieut. in suc. to Capt. Evans, retired on half pay of his rank.

17. Capt. J. Saunders, 50th N. I., to act as interp. and quar.-m., v. Robortson on duty, (temp. arr. confirmed.)

— Capt. A. M'Kinnon, 42d N. I., leave to pres. prep. to retiring,

— Lieut. F. C. Brooke, to act as adj. to 4th comp. of 7th N. I., during separation regimental H. Q.

- Lieut. V. Eyre, art., to act as adj. and quart.-in. to R. W. 4th bat., v. Graham on duty.

Brev. Capt. and quart.-m. McNair, 78th N. I., to act as detach, staff to 70th and 73d regts.

- Lient.-Col. J. Cheape, engineers. to be exec. eng. of Kurnaul div. of dopt.

of public works.

- Cornet G. R. Budd, 3d L. C., furl. to Europe, health.

20. Col. V. Dundas, furl. to Europe, private affairs. - Lieut. T. Wallace, 3d N. I., to do duty at convalescent depôt at Landour, during ensuing hot season. — Col. W. C. Faithfull, C. B., 29th reg. N. I., furl. to Cape, two years, med.

eert.

- Maj. G. D. Stoddart, Still L. Oh. pres. pay-mast, furl. to Cape, two years, med. ecrt.

19. Capt. H. W. Bellew, 56th N. I., dep. assist. quar.-mast. general, furl. to N. S. W., two years, med. cert.

— Capt. T. S. Burt, corps of eng., returned to his duty without prejudice to his rank.

20. Lieut. H. H. Lloyd, to be Capt. of a comp., and Ens. C. H. D. Spread, 72d N. I., to be Lieut. from 7th Feb., in suc. to Capt. C. H. Boisragon, deceased.

22. Capt. P. Craigie, 38th N. I., and 1st assist. to adj. gen., to be dep. adj. gen. of army, with official rank of major,

v. Lieut.-Col. Anquetil.

- Brev. Capt. F. Thomas, 73d N. I., furlough to Europe, health.

Lieut. R. G. Grange, 10th N. I., ditto.

- Capt. H. Patch, 73d N. I., ditto,

(via Bombay.)

— Brev. Capt. R. W. Fraser, 45th N. I., to be Capt. of a comp.; and Ens. H. C. Jackson to be Lieut. do. in suc. to Capt. W. Ellis, retired on half pay of his rank.

— Lieut. S. R. Bagshawe, 7th N. I., to have rank of Capt. by Brev., from 18th Jan.

23. Lieut. J. Marshall to act as adj. to L. W. 61st N. 1., during its separation from head quarters of corps.

- The following removals and postings made in regt. of art,

— Lieut.-Col. S. Shaw, Ist to 7th bat.; Lieut.-Col. R. Powney, (staff employ) 7th to 1st bat.; Major G. Everest (on do.) 1st to 7th bat.; Major G. N. C. Campbell, 7th to 1st bat.

24. Brev. Maj. H. Sibbald, 41st N. I., to officiate as major of brigade at Barrack-pore, on dep. on duty of Capt. Ludlow, as a temp. arrangement till arr. of Brev.

Major C. E. Davis, 58th N. 1.

Lieut. and adj. C. Prior, 64th N. I., to act as stat. staff at Sangor, during absence on duty of dep. assist. adj. gen.

26. Lieut. J. Anderson, 44th N. I., to act as adj. to C. W. of corps, during its separation from Hd. Q. of reg.

— Capt. W. Geddes, removed from 2d troop, 3d brig., h. art., to 1st comp., 5th bat., and Capt. C. McMorine removed from latter to former corps.

- Lieut. C. Wright, 1st N. I., to be interpreter and quartermaster.

— Lieut. C. Boulton, to act as adj. to 47th N. I. during absence, on leave, of Lieut. and Adj Corfield.

29. Maj.W. Burroughs, Inf., to be Lt.-Col. from 21st Jan., 1838, v. Lieut.-Col.

J. Watkins, retired.

— Capt. J. A. Thompson, L. W. Eu. reg., to be maj.; Lt. and Brev.-Capt. T. Lysaght, to be capt. of a comp.; and Ens. E. Magnay, to be lieut. from 21st Jan., 1838, in suc. to maj. Burroughs, prom.

29. Capt. F. Abbott, Eugrs., exec. eng. 12th or Kurnaul div. department of public works, furl. to Europe; Lieut. G. T. Greene, Engrs., exec. engr. 7th or Cawnpore div. of public works, ditto; Lt. N. A. Parker, 58th reg. N. I., ditto; Lieut. T. C. Walker, 26th reg. N. I., ditto.

— Brev.-Capt. E. Brace, 48th reg. N. I., furl. for one year without pay, on urgent private affairs.

Feb. 1.—Capt. H. Templer, 7th reg. N. I., to officiate as maj. of brig. at Cawnpore, v. Holmes, resigned, (confirmed.)

— Capt. P. Mainwaring, 33d reg. N. I. (doing duty with Sylhet L. I. bat.) who was prom. in Gov. gen. ord. of 18th Dec. last, directed to rejoin corps to which he belongs at Jubbulpore.

— Lieut. E. T. Tierney, to be interp.

and quartermuster, 28th N. I.

— Lieut. Interp. and Quarterm. G. Pott, 3d N. I, reported qualified in nativo languages.

7. Brev.-Col. W. Battine, art., furl. to Europe, private affairs.

- Capt. E. Herring, 57th N. I., ditto.

- Lieut. Z. M. Mallock, art., ditto. — Lieut. J. Turton, 3d N. I., ditto.
- Lieut. J. Higginson, 58th N. I., do. — Cadet of cav. A. J. Galloway, admitted on estab! and prom. to cornet.

— Cadets of Inf. W. H. Williams and

J. Pattullo, ditto, ditto.

- Lieut.-Col. H. Burney, 16th N. I., furl. to Europe, health.

Lieut. F. E. Smith, 69th N. I., do.
Capt. W. J. Symons, art., ditto.

- Eus. C. F. M. Myndy, 34th N. I., furl. to New South Wales, health.

12. Lieut. A. Ramsay, 34th reg. N. I. was appointed on 11th Dec. last, assistant to commissioners in Kumaoon.

- Lieut.-Col. J. Stewart, delivered over charge of residency of Hyderabad to Major Cameron on 1st Feb.

15. Lieut. A. C. Rainey, 25th N. 1., to officiate as an assist. to polit. agent at Suhathoo till further orders.

— Lieut. W. K. Warner, 1st comp. 6th bat. art., to do duty with 4th comp., 3d bat. art., (Benares order confirmed.)

— Col. G. Pollock, C. B., 6th bat. art., leave from 2d March to 2d Sept., to visit Simla, private affairs.

16. Ligut. W. Kennedy, to be interp. and quarterm., v. Hollings, appointed to Oude auxiliary force, 38th N. I.

- Ens. C. Hasell, 48th N. I., to be adj. v. Troup, appointed to Oude aux. force.

- There being no qualified officer present with the 37th N. I., Lieut. J. G. B. Paton, of the 47th N. I., is appointed, from 3d Feb., to act as interp. and quarterm. to that corps, during the absence, on leave of Lieut. Curtis, or until further orders.

17. Lieut. A. Ramsay, assist. to com. in Kamaoou, leave, from 1st. Fcb. to 1st May, to visit pres. prep. to the Cape of Good Hope, on med. cert.

19. The appointment of Ens. M. E. Sherwill, 69th N.I., to serve with Oude aux. force, cancelled, it appearing to be at variance with gen. ord., 24th Sept., 1832.

Maj. R. Hawkes, 9th L. C., permitted, at his own request, to resign command of 3d local horso, and to join 9th L. C., to which he belongs, at Nusscerabad.

20. Lieut. G. P. Whish, 60th N. I., to officiate as dep. assist. quarterm.-gen., during Capt. Bellew's absence on med. cert., or until further orders.

— Ens. A. M. Becher, 61st N. I., to be an assist. in office of quarterm.-gen. of the army.

21. Lieut. G. J. Montgomery, to act as adj., v. Abbot, placed at disposal of hon. the Pres. in council, confirmed.

— Licut. H. Palmer, 48th N. I., to officiate dep. judge-adv. at a native court-martial to assemble at Delhi, confirmed. 22. Capt. J. Welchman, 10th N. I., and 2d assist. wlj.-gen., to be 1st assist. adj.gen., v. Craigie, appointed dep. adj.-gen. of army, in general orders of 22d Jan.

— Capt. P. Grant, 59th N. I., and commandant of Hurrianah L. I. bat., to be 2d assist. adj.-gen. of army, v. Welchman.

— Capt. R. Campbell, 43d N. I., to command Hurrianan L. I. bat. v. Grant.

- Capt. J. Scott, 55th N. I., to be maj. of brig. to the troops in Oude, v. Sturt, appointed to the Oude aux, force.

26. Col. (Brig.) John Tombs, removed from the 8th to 4th L. C.

— Col. S. Smith, new prom. to 8th L.C.

- Lient.-Col. J. Caulfield, C. B., (on staff employ) from the 1st to 8th L. C.

- Lieut.-Col. J. W. Roberdeau, new prom., to 1st L. C.

- Capt. J. Frascr, 2d L. C., returned to duty.

-- Brev. Capt. E. H. Ludlow, art., do. — Lieut. O. Campbell, 43d N. I., do.

— Ens. F. Maitland, 4th N. I., ditto. - Mr. W. Fisher, admitted as cadet and promoted to cornet on this estab.

- Licut. J. Phillott, 10th N. I., furl.

to Europe, on med. cert.

- Capt. R. Bayldon, 71st N. I., assistant adj.-gen. of Benarcs div., comitted to retire from the service, on pension of a lieut.-col. from Jan. last.

- Lieut. McGeorge, 71st N. I., to be eapt. of a comp., and Ens. C. M. Bristow, to be lieut. from 1st Jan., 1838, in suc. to Brev.-Maj. R. Bayldon, ret. on pension of a lient.-col.

27. Lieut. & Adj. G. H. Edwards, 13th N. I., to act as station-staff Nusseerabad, during absence on duty of Capt. La Touche, confirmed.

- Cornet M. Ward, brought on effective strength 12th instant, posted to 4th reg. and directed to joln.

28. Capt. W. Mactier, 4th L. C., to officiate #5 "dep. judge-adv.-gen. to Mirhind div. of army, during absence on loave of Capt. Angelo, or till further orders.

March 5.—2d Lieut. W. Timbrell, art., to be 1st lieut. v. Istlicut. G. J. Gookson, deceased.

- Supern. 2d Licut. J. Elliot brought on effective strength of reg.

- Cornet W. Fisher, to rank from 5th

October, 1837.

- Lieut. A. Turner, of the let N. I. furi, to Europe, on med, cert.

— Capt. C. Wilson, of left wing mar.

reg. invalided.

– Capt. W. Prescott, Madras N. I., to be a temporary aide-de-camp on his Honor's personal staff v. Caine.

9. Capt. J. Drummond, commanding Khoordah Pack comp., leave for 11 months on med. cert.

12. Lieut. A Stewart, L. W. Eur. reg. to be capt. of a comp., and Ens. H. B. Walker to be liout., in suc. to Capt. U. Wilson, invalided.

— Capt. J. S. Hodgson, of the 12th

N.I., to Eur. furl. med. cert.

— Capt. A. Charlton, 74th N. I., 2d in command of the Assam 1.. 1., ditto.

— Lt. A. Ramsay, 34th N. I., assist, to the com. in Kumacon, to the Cape of Good Hope, (2 years leave) med. cert.

- Capt. C. H. White, 8th L. C. inv.

Medical.

Jan. 11.—Assist.-surg. G. E Christopher, 2d L. C., to deliver over medical charge of the 30th N. I. to assist, surg. T. Russell, L. C., and to perform med. duties of 28th N. I., during its march toward Mynpoorie, (Neemuch stat. order confirmed.)

12. Assist.-surg. A. Henderson, 50th N. I., to relieve assist.-surg. J. Anderson, M. D., from med. charge of troops in Singbloom, confirmed.

19. Assist.-surg. W. Gordon, M. D., to afford med, aid to detach, of 68th N. I., at Mirzapore.

20. Assist.-surg. J. Stokes, M. D., med. department, furl. to Europe, private aff.

22. Assist.-surg. A. W. Stuart, 45th N. I., to be surg., v. Surg. W. Thomas. retired, with rank from 31st Dec., 1837 v. Surg. J. Swiney, M. D., retired.

26. Superintend.-Surg. C. Campbelli offic. 3d memb. med. board, removed from Sirhind division to Agra circle of superintendence.

26. Superint.-surg. A. Halliday, posted to Benares division.

- Offic. superint. surg. G. King, appointed to Agra circle.

— Assist.-surg. J. Menzies removed from Hurrianah L. I. bat., to 62d N. I.

- Assist.-surg. L. Holmes, from 62d

N. I., to the Hurrianah bat.

— The Saugor div. order of 11th Jan. directing Assist.-Surg. W. Jacob, of the 66th, to proceed to Sangor, and afford med. aid to the 64th reg. of N. I., conf.

29. Surg. J. Grant, apoth. to E. I. C., returned to duty.

- Surg. J. Jackson, med. dept., furl.

to Europe, private affairs.

Assist.-surg. E. Tritton, med. dept., attached to station of Allyghur, furl. to Europe, med. cert.

30. Surg. R. Grahame, civ. ostab., permitted to reside at Saugor for one year, and to draw his pay fr. Benares pay-effic.

31. Surg. R. Brown, 37th N. I., to act as garr. assist.-surg. at Chunar during absence of Surg. G. King.

Feb. 1.—Assist.-Surg. D. Mac Nab, M. D., to med. charge of 41st N. I., and Surg. J. Row, to that of the 3d N. I., (confirmed).

- Surg. J. Hutchinson to act as priv. soc. to the President of the Conneil, till further orders.

- 7. Surg. J. Forsyth, 45th N. 1., stat. at Shahjehanpore, to take mcd. charge of civ. station, v. Assist.-Surg. J. F. Bacon, transf. to civ. station of Moradabad.
- Assist.-Surg. H. Maclcan, furl. to Europe, private affairs.
- Surg. E. I. Yeatman, M. D., ditto, for health.
- 12. Assist.-Surg. W. Spenecr, furlough to Europe private affairs.
- Assist.-Surg. R. J. Brassey, ditto. for health.
- Assist.-Surg. H. J. Tucker, M. D., officiating eiv. assist.-surg. at Moozuffurnuggur, at his own request, placed by Licut.-Gov. N. W. P. on 16th Dec. last, at disposal of Commander-in-Chief.

— Assist.-Surg. R. Christie, gar. assist. surg. at Allahabad, was nominated in political dep., on 11th Doc. last, to officiate till furth. ord. as surg. to Res. at Nepaul.

-- Assist.-Surg. H. M. Felix, of Madras estab., placed at disposal of officiating resident at Hyderabad for employ in Nizam's army.

16. Assist.-Surg. H. J. Tucker, M. D., officiating as civ. surg. at Mooznifur-nuggur, app. to med. charge of L. W. 61st N. I. in Kumaoon, to which he will proceed and join on being relieved from present duty.

19. Assist.-surg. J. Smyth, M. D., 63d N 1., to the med. charge of a detach. of Eur. recruits, proceeding to Agra by water, under command of Lieut. A. Steward, confirmed; Assist.-surg. J. Smyth, M.D., in addition to the duty abovementioned, to afford mod. aid to a detach. of volunteers for H. M.'s reg. proceeding to Allahabad by water, under command of Capt. Thompson, confirmed.

20. Assist.-surg. A. McD. Stuart, on furl. removed from 5th L. H. to 2d N. I.

- Assist. - surg. J. B. Macdorfald, from 3d. L. C. to 5th L. H.

- The following assist. surgeons, now at the general hospital, to do duty under superin.-surgeons at stations specified opposite to their names:—

Assist.-surg. L. T. Watson, Meerut.

G. S. Cardew, Agra.
J. Arnott, M.D., Cwnpre.

21. Assist.-surg. T. Leekie, to be postmaster at Bhaugulpere.

— Surg. J. H. Serrell, 53d N. I., to receive med. charge of L. W. 44th N. I., confirmed.

— Assist.-surg. F. Anderson, M. D., doing duty with 63d N. I., to proceed to Bhopawar, and afford med. aid to 5th L. H., and Surg. B. Bell, 60th to perform med. duties of 63d reg., confirmed.

22. Surg. J. Turner, 69th N, I., leave to remain at Pres. prep. to retiring from the service

23. Assist.-surg. A. Brycc, M. D., removed from 2d to 1st brigade H. art., and directed to join its head-quarters at Kurnaul.

26. Surg. T. M. Monro, 35th N. I., lcave to visit Pros. prep. to retiring from the service.

— Assist.-surg. C. C. Egerton, med. dep., to be surg. from 19th Feb., v. Surg. J. M. Todd, deceased.

— Surg. T. Munro, med. dep., retired from the service, from 1st March.

Camp Somalka, 27th Feb.—T

Camp Somalka, 27th Feb.—The following appointment was made on the 24th instant, in the gen. dop., N. W. P.:

Mr. officiating eiv. assist.-surg. G. Paton, M. D., to be civ. assist.-surg. at Ally Gurh, v. Tritton.

Mar. 5.—Assist.-surg. J. Monzies to be surg., v. Surg. T. Munro retired.

12. Surg. J. Turner retired on pension of his rank from 1st March.

- Assist.-surg. B. Wilson to be surg., v. Surg. U. Turner retired, from March 1.

HER MAJESTY'S FORCES.

Dec. 7.—Ens. H. W. Stisted, 2d foot, to be lieut. by purchase, v. Moodie, who retires; Lieut. Speedy, 3d foot, and Lt. Holcombe, 13th L. I., entitled to the usual allowance having passed the prescribed examination as interp. 11.—Lt

J. Mockier, 17th foot, furl to Europe, private affairs; Lieut. J. H. Shadforth, ditto, ditto. Jan. 6.—13th Foot. Lieut. A. Wilkinson, to be Capt. by brevet (in the E. Indies only) from 24th Dec. 1837, confirmed; Cornet and adj. J. Sullivan, 3d dragoons, to perform duties of regimental quart.-master till further ord., confirmed; the leave of absence granted by Sir J. Keano, to Lt. Morris, 40th food, to proceed to England, for two years from date of embarkation, on med. cert., confirmed.—The undermentioned officers have leave of absence:—17th Foot. Lt. J. Stawell, to England, for two years from date of embarkation, on urgent priv. aff.; 44th Foot. Lt. H. Downes, do., do.; Jan. 22. — Eus. Brockman, 49th, to remain in Fort William to take charge of volunteers from 15th foot, expected to arrive from Madras, for that corps, confirmed; the regimental orders, 14th light drags., directing the embarkation of Capt. Roynolds, Brev. Capt. Tucker, Capt. Roebuck, Lt. Parker, Lt. Forrest, Cornet Forrest, with the 1st div. under command of Major Jonkins, confirmed; Lt. G. D. Dalbiac, 4th L. D., furl. to Europc, priv. affairs; Lt. C. B. Codrington, 16th L. D., ditto. Feb. 15.—The furloughs to England, two years, granted to the following officers, confirmed: Lieut. E. G. Swinton, 3d lt. cav.; Lt. J. O. Burridge, 16th lancers, Ens. W. B. Park, 26th foot; Ens. T. J. Bourke, 31st foot. Feb. 22.—The commander-in-chief has been pleased to make the following promotions until Her Majesty's pleasure shall be known: -- 62d Foot. Lieut. Colin Buchanan to be captain without purch., vice Mooro dec., 15th Jan. 1838; Ens. Grant to be lieut. without purch., vice Buchanan prom., 15th Jan. 1838; His Excellency the Commander-in-chief has been pleased to promote the undermentioned officers to the rank of captain, by brevet, in the East Ind. only. 4th Foot. Lieut. J. Cameron, from 24th Dec. 1828 -39th ditto. Liout. A. R. Marshall, from 15th August, 1830. The leave of absence granted by Lt. Gen. Sir J. Keane, K. C. B. to Lieut. and Adj. D. Cooper, 17th foot, to proceed to England, for two years from date of embarkation, on med. cert., confirmed. The regimental order app. Lt. G. Forbes to act as enterp. to the regt., until its arrival at Cawapore. confirmed, as a temporary arrangement. Brev. Maj. Barnwell, Capt. C. Douglas, Brev. Maj. Hartman, Capt. J. Hammil, Capt. M. Smith, Lt. W. B. Farrant, Lt. J. Dunne, Lieut. & act. Adj. Robinson, Assist.-surg. J. Robertson; the station and regimental orders directing tho officers of 9th foot, named above, to proceed on duty, to Fort William, by water, and to return in 1988 manner after its completion, in conformity with div. ord. by the officer commanding presidency division, are soverally confirmed. Ath Foot. Lt. J. Espinasse, to England, for purpose of retiring on half pay. Afarch 1st.—57th Foot. Capt. T. Shadforth, to England, for two years from data of emi barkation, on priv. atlairs. The division orders by Major Gen. Sir Willoughby Cotton, C. B. and K. C. H., of the following dates, confirmed. Feb. 14th,.... App. Lt. Hadfield, 3d L. D., to command of a detach, of that, and other corps, proceeding to Cawnpore, by water. 18,000 Granting leave of absence to Capt. D. Mac Androw, 49th reg., to proceed to England, for two years from date of embarkation, on med. cert. The leave of absence granted in div. orders to Ens. T. J. Bourke, 31st foot, to proceed to England, on mod. cert., and confirmed in general order of the 15th Feb., can celled at the request of that officer. The leave of absence granted to Lt. J. H. Shadforth, 57th foot, in the general order of the 14th Dec., 1837, to proceed to England, for two years, on priv. affairs, is cancelled.—3d L. D. Liout. J. Martin. to proceed to the presidency, and eventually to England, for two years from the date of embarkation, on private affairs.

Medical.—Jan. 6.—Asst.-surg. Knox, 3d dragoous, to proceed on med. charge of sick, of that and other corps ordered to Cawnpore by water, confirmed; Assist, surg. Chapman, 16th lancers, to do duty with detach. ord. to march, confirmed. Feb. 15.—The leave granted by His Excellency Lieut. Gen. Sir T. Maitland, K. C. B. to Surg. Mc Donnell, 57th foot, to proceed to England, for two years, on incd. cert., confirmed.

OUDE AUXILIARY PORCE.

Jan. 6.— Cornet C. G. Bucher, to be adj. of 1st cav. reg., v. Hailes, resigned.

— Ens. R. Hill, removed from 1st inf. to 1st cav. reg., as 1st subaltern, v. Becher.

20. Ens. M. E. Sherwill, 69th N. I., to be 2d subaltern to 1st regt. of inf., V. Ens. R. Hill posted to cavalry.

26. Capt. F. St. J. Sturt, 10th N. I., to officiate as brig. maj. on departure on duty of Capt. W. M. N. Sturt, as a temp. arrangement.

BIRTHS.

Dec. 21.—At Allipore, the lady of J. 11. Patton, Esq., C. S., of a son. 29. At Calcutta, the lady of R. D. Mangles, Esq., of a daughter.

— At Sumbulpore, the lady of C. L.

Babington, Esq., of a son,

Jan. 2.—At Meerut, the lady of Capt. Abbott, artillery, of a son.

8. At Lucknow, the lady of Major C. W. Lane, commanding 2d N. I., of a son, since dead.

10. At Hissar, the lady of A. M. Anala, Esq., Assist.-Surg., of a daughter.

— At Nussecrabad, the lady of Surg. Dalrymple, 9th L. C., of a son.

14. At Allahabad, the lady of Surg. J.

Johnstone, M. D., of a daughter. 21. At Meerut, the lady of H. T.

Owen, Esq., C. S., of a son.

27. At Lucknow, the lady of Lieut.-Col. J. Dow, of a son.

— At Kidderpore, the lady of Capt. W. Boothby, of a daughter.

30. In Chowringhee, the lady of G. C.

Plowden, Esq., C. S., of a son.

Feb. 2.—At Calcutta, the wife of Mr. Thomas Bartlett, Hon. Company's Marine, of a son.

— At Loodianah, lady of Capt. J. Halkett Craigic, 20th Reg., N. I, of a son.

3. At Calcutta, the wife of Capt. Mc Dougall, of the ship, Edmonstone, of a daughter.

— At Calcutta, Mrs. G. Galloway, of a daughter.

4. At Shahabad, the lady of S. H. Batson, Esq., Civ. Assist.-Surg., of a daughter.

— At Mhow, the lady of Licut.-Col.

J. Tulloch, of a daughter.

6. At Kurnaul, the lady of Brev.-Capt. Stehelin, Interp. to H. M.'s 13th L.I., of a daughter.

7. At Calcutta, Mrs. S. Smith, of a son. 13. At Benares, the lady of Liout. F. R.

Ellis, 41st N. I., of a son.

— At Birdpore, Gorruckpore, the lady of Hugh Gibbon, Esq., of a son.

15. At Calcutta, Mrs. F. G. Stewart, of a son.

16. At Calcutta, the lady of the Rev. James Bowyer, of a daughter.

18. At Howrah, the wife of Rey. J. D.

Ellis, of a son.

— At Garden Reach, the lady of C. J.

Richards, Esq., of a son.

- 19. At Sultanpore, Benares, the lady of Lt. T. B. Studdy, 8th L. C., of a son.
- At Kidderpore, Mrs. C. Brownlow, of a son.
- 20. At Calcutta, the wife of Mr. Chas. F. Cormere, of a son.
- 21. At Calcutta, the wife of Mr. John Currie, of Cossitollah, of a daughter.
- At Calcutta, Mrs. T. K. Crosby, of a daughter.

22. At Kurnaul, the lady of Capt. H. Garbett, Art., of a daughter.

23. At Futtyghur, Mrs. C. Sutherland, of a daughter.

27. At Allipore, the lady of the Rev.

J. Lincke, of a son.

March 2.—At Dinapore, the lady of Lt. Dunbar, H. M.'s 31st, of a daughter, still born.

5. At Benares, the lady of Maj. Sibbald, 41st N. I., of a daughter.

- At Purneah, the lady of G. Walker,

Esq. of a daughter.

6. At Calcutta, Mrs. F. T. Fergusson, of a son.

7. At Esplanade Row, the lady of J. F. Leith, Esq., of a daughter.

— At Calcutta, the wife of Raja Apurvakrishna Bahadur, of a son.

8. At Calcutta, Mrs. A. V. Da Costa, of a daughter.

- At Benarcs, the lady of C. C. Pigott,

Esq., 18th N. I., of a son.

12. At Calcutta, the lady of L. A.

Richy, Esq., of a son.

- At Calentta, the wife of Mr. M.

Rodrigues, of a daughter.

15. At Calcutta, Mrs. A. Smith, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

Jan. 29.—At Lucknow, by the Rev. F. A. Dawson, M. A., Lieut. C. Campagnae, in H. M. the King of Oude's service, to Miss Eleanor Hill.

30. At the Old Clarch, by the Ven. the Archdeacon, Mr. William J. Twenty, man, to Miss Sarah Montgomery.

— At Howrah Church, Capt. Thomas Viall, of Essex, Com. of the Barque Sylph, to Miss Charlotte Maria Hudson, the eldest daughter of Mr. C. Hudson.

— At Lucknow, Major C. Hamilton, 22d reg., to Eleanor, eldest daughter of Brig. Johnston, and widow of the late Capt. Nicolson.

Feb. 1.—At Delhi, Capt. A. Ramsay, to Harriett, 2d daughter of Lieut.-Col.

Moseley, 38th N. I.

2. At Saugor, by Maj.-Gen. Sir T. Anburey, C. B., com. the Saugor div., Lt. W. Bignell, 69th N. I., to Miss M. Kyd.

14. At Gorruckpore, D. T. Timins, Esq., Cin. Serv., to Mary Anne, cldost daughter of F. Todd, Esq., of Peckham, Surrey.

17. At St. Andrew's Church, Lt. J. A. Macdonald, R.N., son of Col. Macdonald, of F. Inckenneth, in Argylesh., to Martha, daughter of the late S. H. Greig, Esq.

19. At Caloutta, E. D. Barwell, of the Inner Temple, Esq., Barrister at Law, to Anna Maria Louisa, eldost daughter of N. J. Halhed, Esq., B. C. S.

19. At Calcutta, Mr. Peter Smith, to Miss Charlotte Ann James.

— At Calcutta, Mr. G. H. Huttmann, to Olivia, daughter of James Horsburgh, Esq. of Firth, Roxburghshire, N.B.

23. At Chinsurah, C. D. Quinton, Esq., to Mrs. M. T. Barber.

— At Fort William, Mr. W. Martin, to Mary Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Capt. R. Smith.

27. At Calcutta, Mr. A. F. Langer, to Miss S. Colgan. •

28. At Agra, A. H. Mathews, Esq., to Mary Eleanor, eldest daughter of the late Capt. J. C. Carne, Bengal Artillery.

March 1.—At Benarcs, R. Nicholson,

Esq., to Miss E. Watson.

At Calcutta, Capt. W. Prescott, Madras N. I., to Eliza Jane, oldest daughter of the Hon. A. Ross.

— At Calcutta, P. P. Carter, of Bhojepore, to Sarah Adeline, eldest daughtor of the late J. W. Ricketts, Esq.

3. At Calcutta, Mr. R. Godfree, to Miss

A. M. Hamilton.

5. At Dacca, G. H. Lamb, Esq., to

Miss G. Ma Lamb.

8. At Cawnpore, Cornet H. Y. Bazett, 5th L. C., to Louisa Young, daughter of the late J. Bruce, of E. I. C.'s Med. Serv.

10. At Barrackpore, C. J. Harrison, Esq., 65th N. I., to Mary Ann, fifth daughter of the late Capt. Tritton, H. M.'s 24th Dragoous.

At Calcutta, Werner Cuthrey, Esq., H. M.'s 11th I.t. Drag. to J. J. Hoseason, surviving day ther of the late T. Hoseason, Esq.,

15. At Calcutta, J. Alves, Esq., to Miss F. Lyon.

DEATHS.

Jan. 2.—At Agra, M. W. Tytler, Esq. 23d N. I.

11. At Agra, Richard Meade, son of Lieut. C. Boulton, 47th N. I., aged 10 months.

— At Saugor, Central India, Helen Isabella, infant daughter of Assist.-surg. J. B. Dickson, 69th reg. N. I., aged 4 months.

16. At Delhi, of consumption, Lieut. W. E. Rees, of Engineers, aged 22.

22. At Ghazeoporc, Mrs. S. P. Wharton, widow of the late Lieut. Col. Wharton, 5th B. L. C.

— At Lucknow, the infant son of Major Chas. R. W. Lane, com. 2d reg. N. I., aged 14 days.

27. At Chandernagore, M. Razet, Esq. 31: At Calcutta, Mr. B. McMahon, of the Court of Requests, aged 40.

Feb. 5.—At Calcutta, Mr. John Gill, aged 30.

Oriental Herald .- Vol. I .- No. VI.

7. At Calcutta, Mr. Thos. Hampton, aged 35.

8. At Calcutta, the lady of A. F. Grote, Esq. C. S. aged 18 years, 7 months

12. At Beaugulpore, Mr. Chas. Bidge, aged 35.

18. At Calcutta, Mrs. Clarista Crippe, aged 29.

19. At Calcutta, J. M. Todd, Edg., surgeon, 10th reg. B. N. I. aged 40.

20. At Kurnaul, of small-pox. Brav. Capt. G. J. Cookson, 2d bat H. C. art.

21. At Allahabad, Mrs. Eliz. Breth, aged 29.

22. At Calcutta, Adoline, 3d daughter of C. Queiros, Esq., aged 3.

— At Calcutta, the infant child of Mr.

and Mrs. J. E. Gomes.

23 J. McLeod, the infant son of #.

Hawkins, Esq., C. S. 24. At Mhow, the son of Lieut. W.

Hodgson, B. A., aged 16 months.

26. At Caloutta, Mrs. A. Humphreys, aged 90.

28. At Calcutta, the lady of Capt. G. Hogarth, H. M.'s 26th reg. aged 28.

— At Agra, the infant son of Mr. R. Gray.

- At Kurnaul, the infant daughter of Capt. H. Garbett, art.

March 1.—At Nussecrabad, Maj. H.

Mackenzio, 74th N. 1. 2. At Kishnaghur, E. Dolpeiron, Req., aged 21.

— At Agra, Capt. and Brev.-Major T. Bolton, 47th N. 1.

4. At Calcutta, Mr. C. M. Smith.

6. At Calcutta, Mrs. A. Cox, aged 63. 11. At Barrackpore, E. M. infant daughter of A. Humphrays, H. A. aged 13 months.

12. At Calcutta, Mrs. S. D'Rozario, aged 82.

— At Calcutta, Mr. J. Smith, aged 22. — At Calcutta, Mrs. M. A. Clive, aged 24.

13. At Calcutta, Mr. J. Longdon, aged 37.

SHIPPING ARRIVALE.

February.

14. Cowasjee Family, from China.

16. Eulalie, from Bourbon.

19. Volunteer, from Liverpool.

- Ivanhoo, from ditto.

23. Mona, from ditto.

Drunmore, from Newcastle.
Prevoyante, from Bourbon.

24. John Hepburn, from Moulmoin.

26. Euphrasia, from Mauritius. 28. Earl Grey, from Liverpool.

- Geo. Gardener, from Philadelphia.

March.

- 1. Guyne, from Moulinein.
- 4. Ariel, from China.
- 6. Frasquita, from Bourbon.
- 7. Catherine, from Cape.
- Heywood, from Bombay.".
- 8. Gilbert Munro, from Mauritius.
- 9. Elephanta, from Liverpool.
- Sophia, from Bombay.
- Donna Pascoa, from Mauritius.
- Sultana, from Bombay.
- 10. Diana (S.), from Amherst.
- 12. Olio, from Mauritius.
- 13. Calcutta, from Amherst.
- 15. Krishna, from Akyab.
- 16. Robarts, from London.

EHIPPING DEPARTURES.

March.

- 1. Edward, for Bourdeaux.
- Sulimany, for China.
- 3. Will Watch, for Penang.
- 4. Emerald Isle, for New South Wales.
- 8. Paragon, for Liverpool.
- Bahamian, for ditto.
- Zenobia, for London.

- Cornwall, for ditto.
- Thos. Grenville, for ditto.
- Saml. Baker, for Mauritius.
- Cavend. Bentinck, for ditto.
- Mellekel Behar, for Judda.
- Sumatra, for Batavia.
- 9. Solomon Shaw, for Muscat.
- 10. Corduan, for Bourdeaux.
- Aleide, for Bourbon.
- Courier de Bourbon, for ditto.
- Tinamara, for Liverpool.
- 12. Sir Ed. Ryan, for China. 44. Belhaven, for Bussorah.
- Susan, for Liverpool.
- 15. Ann, for China.
- Futtay Salaam, for Bombay.
- H. M. S. Wolfe, for Moulmein.

Proceeding down the River, 16th March.

London and Euclos, for Liverpool; Royal Saxon and Resolution, for Madras; Francis Warden and John Adam, for Bombay; Futtle Barry, for Judda; Cecilia and Astronomo, for Bourbon; Haidee, for Mauritius; Bright Planet, for Australia.

Madras.

The Hon. G. E. Russell.—Fort St. George, Jan. 19th, 1838. Notified that the Right Hon. the Governor in Council cannot permit the Hon. G. E. Russell, Esq., (retirod from the service) to quit India, without an expression of his deep regret at the loss which the public interest will sustain by the retirement from the service of an officer whose experience and ability; whose zeal, judgment, and temper, in circumstances of responsibility and difficulty, have been repeatedly recognized by the Government. The Right Hon, the Governor in Council requests Mr. Russell to accept his grateful acknowledgement of the assistance and advantage which the Government has derived from his services at the Council board; and his best wishes for his health and happiness in his native land.

Governor's Ball to the Prince of Orange.—Government House, March 5, 1838.—The Governor requests the honour of the company of all gentlemen in her Majesty's and the Honourable Company's Civil, Naval, and Military Services, to a Ball and Supper at the Banqueting Room, on Monday, March 12th, at nine o'clock, to meet his Royal Highness Prince Henry of Orange. John Maitland, A. D. C.

TRIBNIAL ASSEMBLY OF COMMITTEES—EXPENSES.—March 14th. The Right Honourable the Governor in Council is pleased to declare the provisions of G. O. G., dated 19th April, 1836, No. 87, at plicable to all expenses indispensably attending the triennial assembly of Committees to examine Pension Certificates and ascertain the identity of their holders, as directed in paras. 8 and 9. Section 5th (page 71) of the Code of Pension Establishments.

COURT-MARTIAL.

Lieut. T. Osbonne.—Head Quarters, Choultry Plain, December 21, 1838.—At a General Court-Martial, held ht Fort St. George, on 14th December, 1837, Lieut. T. Osborne, 40th N. I., was arraigned, charged First—For having at Madras, on 18th November, 1837, absented himself from the drill of his Regiment without permission. Second Charge—For conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline in the following instances. Ist. In having at the same place, on the 21st of the same month, neglected to correct his report as officer of the day, according to infantry standing orders, when repeatedly returned to him by any order for that purpose; addressing, when called on a third time, a highly impresser and disrespectful letter to the Adjutant of the Regiment. 2d. For having at the same place (23d Nev.) when on duty as officer of the day, appeared out, of his quarters improperly descent, by going to and returning from regimental guard mountage, without has sword, belt, or sash. First additional charge—For conduct to the prejudice, &c., in having, at Madras, on 6th December, 1837, in a letter to the Adjutant of the 40th Regiment, expressed himself towards me (Major Wright) in a highly improper and disrespectful manner. Second additional charge—For having, at the same place, on 7th December, 1837, when officer of the day, failed to repair to regimental guard mountaing. Third additional charge—For conduct to the prejudice, &c., in having at the same time and place when called on by my order to state his reasons for not attending the said guard mounting, addressed in reply to the Adjutant of the Regiment, a highly improper and disrespectful letter.

(Signed) J. WRIGHT, Major: Commanding, 40th Regt. N. 1.

Finding—Guilty, generally. Sentence—To lose two steps in his regiment, by being placed in the list of Lieutenants of said regiment next below Lieut. G. Chance coth and that the date of his regimental commission be one day subsequent to that of Lieut. Glascott; and, further, that he be severely reprimanded in such manner as His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief may direct.

Approved, (Signed) P. MAITLAND, Lieut.-Genoral and Command.-in-Chief. Lieut. T. Osborne, to be released from arrest and to return to his duty.

MOVEMENT OF REGIMENT.

March 13.—The 4th L. C. to proceed to Bangalore, to be there stationed instead of 5th L. C., which will remain at Arcot.

APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS, CHANGES, &c.

Cibil.

Jan. 26.—C. Pelly, Esq., to act as sub. col. and joint mag. of Bellary, during absence of Mr. Blane, or till further ord.

Feb. 16.—P. B. Smollett, Esq., to be assist. judge and joint crim. judge of Rajahmundry; but to continue to act as sec. to board of rev. until further orders.

— W. Dowdeswell, Esq., to be assist. judge and joint crim. judge of Chicacole.

— J. Rohde, Esq., to act as assist. judge and joint crim. judge of Rajahmundry; but to continue in his present charge until relioved by Mr. Dowdeswell.

27. W. C. Gordon, to be dop. assist. com. gen., v. Doveton, England on sick cert.

- Act. sub-assist. com. gen. Capt. H. C. Goshing, to be sub-assist. com. gen., y. Gordon.
- Col. R. L. Evans, C. B., to a temp. soat at military board.
- R. D. Parker, Esq. to be com. for drawing of Government lotteries for 1838.

C. T. Kaye, Esq., ditto.
T. H. Davidson, Lsq., ditto.

28. J. D. Gleig, Esq., princ. coll. and mag. of Salem, received charge of that district on 16th Feb. from W. C. Ogilvie, __ J. C. Wroughton, Esq., coll. of sea eustoms at Madras, received charge of that office on 21st Feb., from W. E. Underwood, Esq.

March 1.—Mr. W. A. D. Inglis, attained rank as a senior merchant, 21st Fob.

- W. Dowdeswell, ditto, 9th Feb.

- 2. Mr. C. P. Brown to act as sec. to the college board, and to the Native Education Committee, during Capt. Rowlandson's absence on tour with comin-chief.
- T. L. Blane, Esq., act. col. and mag. of Masulipatam, took charge of that district from A. Purvis, Esq., on 23d Feb.
- S. D. Birch, Esq., assist. to princ. coll. and mag. of Tanjore, has returned to his duty.
- dep. sec. to Gov. in dep. under chief secretary's immediate charge, during absence of Mr. Sewell, or till furth. ord.

coll. If sea customs at Madras, during employ. of Mr. Underweed on other duty, or till further orders.

6. A Frosse, Esq., to be judge and crim. judge of Chicacole.

- W. U. Arbuthnot, Esq., to be col.

and mag. of Vizagapatam.

- C. Whittingham, Esq., to resume his app. as head assist. to col. and may, of southern div. of Arcot, consequent on his resig. of jun. dep.-secretarythip to board of rev.

- W. H. Bayley, Esq., to act as head assist. to princ. coll. and mag. of Salem.

to princ. coll. and magget Nellore.

J. Orr, Esq., princ. col. and mag. of Cuddapah, leave until the 31st May, 1838, to remain at Madras on sick cert.

— W. Harrington, Esq., acting 2d judge of the Provincial Court of Appeal and Circuit for the southern div., leave in extension for two days, retrospectively.

— Lieut. H. Congreve, act. 2d assist. to civ. eng. in the 4th div., lcave till 31st Aug. 1838, to sea, on sick cert., and to embark from Tutacorin.

9. G. A. Harris, Esq., act. head assist. to col. and mag. of Guntoor, leave for twelvo months, to Neilgherry Hills, on sick cert.

- 13. D. R. Limond, Esq., to officiate as assist. judge and joint crim. judge of Madura, during abs. of Mr. Phillips, or till further orders.
- Major Butterworth to act as a member of marine board, during absence of Lieut.-Cols. Hanson and Strahan, or till further orders.

15. John Orr, Esq., to act as civ. aud. and superin. of stamps, till fort. ord.

— A. F. Bruce, Esq., to resume his duties as col. and mag. of Guntoor.

- The joint mag. at Cochin, to act in execution of Act No. XXXII. of 1837.
- R. R. Cotton, Esq., to prosecuto his studies under ord. of the princ. col. of Tanjore, and to reside at Combaconum.

17. J. C. Morris, Esq., sub. treasr. and superint. &c. of Govt. Bank, leave six months to Neilgherry Hills, sick cert.

20. J. Orr, Esq., has taken the oath of office as act. civ. aud.

- A. J. Cherry, Esq., ditto, as act. sub. treasr. and superint. and treasr. of Govt. Bank (app. on 17th March) during absence of Mr. Morris on sick cert., or till further orders.
- P.B. Smollett, Esq., to be sub. sec. to board of rev., as well as sec.
- R. D. Parker, Esq., to act as sub. sec. to ditto, during employ. of Mr. Smollett on other duty, or till furt. ord.
- S. D. Birch, Esq., to act as cashier of Govt. Bank, and assist to sub. Heasr., during Mr. Cherry on other duty, or till further orders.

- W. H. G. Mason, Esq., to be head assist. to col. and mag. of Vizagapatam.

- J. Silver, to offic. as assist. judge and joint crim. judge of Madura.

Ecclesiagtical.

March 8.—The Rev. W. Tomes, A. B., to act as chaplain at the Mount, during absence of Rev. W. T. Blenkinsop, or till further orders.

Military.

Jan. 26.—Ens. A. J. Greenlaw, 46th N. 1., to be Lieut. v. Pigott, dec., from 16th Dcc.

31. Major W. Drake, 21st N. I., retired from the service, from 31st Jan., on pension of his rank.

- Lieut. J. W. Croggan, 2d bat. art.

furl. to Europe for health.

Feb. 15.—Major J. N. Abdy, removed from 2d to 1st bat. arts, and app. to command art. with Hyderabad subsid. Force.

- Major A. L. Murray, from 1st to 2d bat. art.

16. The services of Capt. W. Prescott, 2d N. I., assist. com. gen., are placed temp. at disposal of President of the Council of India, without prejudice to his situation in commiss, department.

— Lieut. the Hon. G. A. F. C. Graves, H. M.'s 31st Foot, aid-de-camp to Right Hon. the Gov., will be considered on sick cert. from 3d Nov., 1837.

- Ens. W. T. Nicolls, 24th reg. to act as quart.m. and interp. of that corps,

v. Pope, resigned.

23. Maj. R. Alexander, 48th N. I., to be judge adv. gen. of the army—Lieut. T. McGoun to continue in temp. charge of the judge adv. gen.'s depart., till arr, of Maj. Alexander.

- Lient. J. Seager, to be quar. mast.

and interp. 8th N. I.e

26. Capt. F. B. White, 16th reg., to act as cantonment ad. of Palaveram till further orders, v. Lucis.

28. Lieut. R. Mackanzie, 8th regt., to act as adj. to R. W. of that comps, proceeding to Singapore from the date of its march from Palaveram, confirmed.

- Lt. J. Wilton, to act as quar. mast. and interp. of that corps till furt. orders,

v. Martyr, deceased.

— Ens. W. C. Law, of 18th reg., N. I., directed to join his corps at Bangalore.

- Ens. H. Bathurst of 21st reg. N. I., app. to do duty with 35th reg. until its arrival at Secunderabad, when he will join his own corps.

March 2.—Capt. T. B. Chalon, dep. judge adv. gen. from 1st to 9th district.

— Lieut. E. Brice to be adj. of the E. tr. H. art., on march from Bungalore to join the subsid. forco.

— Major Gon, J. Doveton, C. B., command. C div., to proceed for 4 months to the Neilgherries, from the date of his quitting the div. under provisions of Govt. order of Feb. 21.

- Lieut. A. Russell, 46th N. I., furl.

to Europe.

6. Ens. H. A. O. Const, 48th reg., from doing duty with 35th, to do duty with 16th reg.

6. Capt. J. C. Wallace, 8th reg. L. C., returned to duty.

Major J. Crisp, 1st N. V. Bat., ditto.
 7. Major J. Crisp, removed from 1st to Carna. Eur. Vet. bat.

9. Lt. J. C. Boulderson, of 35th N. I., as a temp. measure, to act as assist to super. eng. pres. div.

- Ens. E. Slack, 13th N. I., re-admitted.

Lieut. T. A. Jenkins, 33d N. I., in rev. dep. to the sharge of operations at Pambem and of detach. of sap. and mine stationed at that place.

— Lieut. H. Colbeck, of the 4th N. I., leave extended until the 20th May, 1838.

- 13. Ens. W. C. Law, at his own request, removed from 18th to 21st reg., and will rank next below Ensign H. Bathurst.
- Ens. Law will do duty with 35th reg. till its arrival at Secunderabad, when he will join his own corps.

- Ens. J. Keating, 3d L. I., qualified in native lang.

— Lieut. W. Bird, 23d L. I., doing duty with saps. and mins. to rejoin his corps, at his own request.

— Sen. Maj. W. J. Bradford, 35th N. I., to be lieut.-col, v. Moncrieff, dec., date of com., 5th March, 1838.

- Sen. Capt. W. Macleod to be maj., Sen. Lieut. S. R. Hicks to be capt. and Sen. Ens. S. Flay to be lieut. in suc. to Bradford prom.; date of com. 5th March, 1838.
- The serv. of Haj. W. Macleod, 35th N. I., placed at disposal of Com.-in.Chief for regimental duty; but he will retain charge of present office till the Com. Gen. can make arrangements to relieve him, or till further orders.

- Maj. J. Campbell, 33d N. I., leave to proceed to Ceylon, from 15th March fill 27th April, 1838.

— Statement exhibiting the names of officers and the periods for which they are entitled to share in the anticipated dividends in the saddle contract fund during the year 1837. (Amount authorized to be paid. Vide Minutes of Consultation, dated 27th February, 1838.) Horse Art.—Major P. Montgomerie, for the whole year 7.832 rs. 1st Light Cav.— Maj. J. Buchanan, from 1st Jay. to 15th Dec., 3,748 rs.; Capt. T. A. A. Munsey, from 15th to 31st Dec. 168 rs.; total 3,916 rs. 2d Light Cav. -- Maj. J. Smith, for the whole year, 3,916 rs. 3d Light Cav.—Capt. W. Hyslop, for the whole year, 3,916 rs. 4th Light Cav.—Maj. D. Macleod, from 1st Jan. to 6th Feb. 393 rs.; Lt.-Col. F. L. Doveton, from 7th Feb. to 2d Sept. 2,213 rs.; Maj. D. Macleod, from 3d Sept. to 31st Dec. 1,310 rs.; total 3,916 rs. 5th Light Cav.—Maj. R. L. Highmoor, for the whole year, 3,916 rs. 6th Light Cav.—Lient. Col. G. Sandys, for the whole year, 3,916 rs. 7th Light Cav.—Lient. Col. R. James, for the whole year, 3,916 rs. 8th Light Cav.—Capt. F. Straton, from 1st Jan. to 30th August 2,602 rs; Capt. G. Dunsmurs, 31st August 10 rs.; Capt. J. Robortson, from 1st Sept. to 31st Doc. 3,301 rs.; total 3,916 rs. Body Guard.—Maj. A. Kerr, for the whole year 979 rs. Total Co.'s Rs. 40,139.

16. Lieut. W. L. Boulderson, 29th N. I., to do duty with sap. and min., and will join detach. of that corps at Musuli-patam.

— 2d Lieut. J. W. Tombs, relieved from com. of detach. sap. and min. at Masulipatam, to join H. Q. of that corps.

— Maj. J. Leggett, 3d L. I., leave from the 25th Feb. to the 31st May, 1838. —

Eastern coast en sick certificate.

— Capt. D. Babington, 17th N. I., leave to Pros. prep. to Eur. on sick cort 19. Lient. A. T. Cadell, art., removed from 1st bat. to 4th bat.

— Lieut R. Macpherson, art., removed from 3d bat. to 1st bat.

20. Capt. H. S. Burgess, from let to 2d N. V. B.

- Lieut. G. Broadfoot, 34th L. I., to be capt. and sen. Ens. T. Thompson, to be lieut. v. Sotheby, dec.; date of com. March 14.
- Capt. J. T. Smith, engrs., to be civ. eng. of 1st div. rev. dep.
  - Lt. E. Buckle, do. to be do. 2d div.
  - Lt. E. Lawford, do. do. 3d div.
     Lt. S. Vardon, do. do. 4th div.
  - Capt. A. T. Cotton, do. do. 5th div. Maj. J. Purton, do. do. 6th div.
  - Capt. A. Lowe, do. do. 7th div.
- Capt. C. E. Faber, do. do. 8th div.
  Licut. T. Smyth, do. to be assist.
  to do. 1st div.
  - Lt. S. E. Ludlow, do. do. 2d div. — Lt. C. A. Orr, do. do. 3d div.
  - Lt. W. Birdwood, do. do. 4th div. Lt. F. Ditmas, do. do. 5th div.
- Lt. C. Johnston, do to be 2d assist. to do. 5th div.
- Lt. A Douglas, do. to be 1st assist, to do. 6th div.
- Lt. R. F. Fast, do. to be 2d assist. to do. 6th div.
- Lt. J. H. Bell, do. to be 1st. assist. to do. 7th div.
- Lt. G. C. Collyer, ditto, to be assist. to do. do.

do. 8th div.

20. Lt. A. De Bults, do., to act as civ. engr. of 1st div. during employ of Capt. Smith on other duty, or till further ord.

20. Lt. A. Douglas, to act for Lieut. Vardon, as civ. engrathediv. during his employ on other duty, or till further ord.

- Lt. Bell to act as civ. engr. of 5th div. during absence of Capt. A. Cotton, on leave, or till further orders.

- Lieut. E. Marriott, 45th N. I., leave prep. to Europe, sick cert.

Medical.

Jan. 18.—Assist.-surg. G. W. Scheniman, 46th N. I., to be surg., v. Anpesley, retired.

Feb. 23.—Surg. F. Godfrey, leave to " the Cape of Good Hope, on sick cert. till 1st Sept., 1839.

27. Assist.-surg. W. L. O. Moore, M.D. posted to the L. W. Madras Eu. reg.

- Assist.-surg. S. K. Parson, from doing duty with H. M.'s 55th Foot, to do duty"with Madras Eu. reg.

28. Assist.-surg. C. Kevin, from doing duty with H. M.'s 4th reg. (or King's own) posted to 35th reg. N. I.

— Assist.-surg. E. G. Balfour, from doing duty with H. M.'s 39th, to do duty with H. M.'s 55th regiment, and appointed to afford med. aid to detach. of bat. art., proceeding to Secunderabad.

March 1.—Assist.-surg. W. B. Thompson, to act as super. of eye infirm. and physician to the Durbar of His Highness the Nabob, during absence of Surg. T. M. Lane, on tour with Commander-in-Chief.

— The removal of assist.-surg. J. W. Maillardette, from 38th to 11th reg., cancelled and assist.-surg. J. Arthur, M. D., posted to latter reg.

6. Surg. R. Wight, M. D., to be garr.surg. of Fort St. George, but to remain in his present duty till further orders.

- Assist.-surg. J. Richmond, to act for Surg. Wight, as garr.-surg.

20. Assist.-surg. J. Richmond has resigned med. charge of Guntoor.

- Assist.-surg. J. M. Jackson, to enter on gen, duties of army.

- Surg. J. P. Grant, removed from 18th reg. to 2d bat. art.

BIRTHS.

Jan. 26.—At the Luz, the lady of P.

Melitus, Esq., of a daughter.

J. G. Lugard, of a daughter.

Feb. 12.—At Bangalore, the lady of Lieut. G. J. Walker, H. M.'s 13th Dragoons, of a son.

18. At Nagpore, Mrs. W. Doyles of a daughter.

22. At Ootacamund, the lady of Capt. J. Worthy, Bombay Army, of a daughter. 28. At Jaulnah, the lady of the Kev.

March 3.—At Bangalore, the lady of Lieut. W. G. Woods, 6th Cav. of a son.

3. At Bangalore, the lady of Capt. J. C. Coffin, Paymaster in Mysorc, of a son, still born.

5. At Cannanore, the lady of Capt.

Hayne, 36th, of a son.

8. At Cuddapah, the lady of Major J. Garnault, 47th N. I., of a daughter.

11. At Arcot, the lady of C. C. Linton, Esq., assist.-surg. 5th L. C., of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

Jan. 11.—At Jaggernaikpooram, R. H. D. Towle, Esq., to Henrietta, eldest daughter of H. F. Von Sohston, Edu., late Chief of the Netherland settlements on the coast of Coromandel and Madura.

13. At Vizianagram, W. Poole, Esq., to Ellen, youngest daughter of the late G. S. Hall, Esq., of Pendennis Castle, Cornwall.

 At Collayam, Travancore, A. Allardicc, Esq., med. serv., son of W. Allardice, Esq., of Angusshire, N. B., to Eliza, widow of the late Capt. J. W. Monerieff, Madras Army.

19. At Poonamallee, Capt. R. S. Gledstanes, 16th N. I., to Harriett Thompson, widow of the late C. F. Sturt, Esq., Madras Army.

Feb. 25.—At Madeas, Mr. J. Thompson, to Miss B. Pereira.

26. At Madras, Mr. E. Hequet, to Miss

M. de Magney.

March 15 .- At Veptry Church, Lieut. and Quarterm. Scutt, 52d N. I. to Jemima Elizabeth, second daughter of the late Capt. A. Steward, Madras Army.

21. B. Cardozo, Esq., to Bridget, second daughter of Capt. G. O'Counell,

C. E. V. Bat. Com. of Ord.

DEATHS.

Dec. 9.—At Madras, Capt. G. Jobling, 1st N. V. Bat., and youngest son of the late J. Jobling, Esq., formerly of Newton Hall, Northumberland, aged 35.

Jan. 14.—At Mcrcara, Lieutenant J.

Martyr, 36th N. I.

19. At Arcot, Susannah, wife of Capt.

B. W. Comberlege, 7th reg. L. C. — At Madras, Catherine, wife of Mr.

W. Raulin, aged 51. Feb. 2.—At Cuddaloro, Mrs. E. B.

McCally, aged 50.

5. At Dindigul, of cholera, Elizabeth, lady of Lieut.-Col. Dyce, 45th N. I., aged 25.

9. At Bimlipatam, Capt. R. Mitchell,

Ę

2d N. V., Bat.

16. At Madras, William, the son of the Rev. W. H. Drew, aged 16.

20. At Singaricondah, Mr. James

McGill, Nizam's Service.

27. At Kamptee, Mary, infant daughter of Major Crawford, art.

29. At Madras, the lady of the Rev. W. H. Drew.

March 2.—At Jaulnah, the son of Capt. F. Eades, 39th N. I., aged three years.

5A At Ootacamund, Liout, Col. J. Moncrieff, 51st N. I.

8. At Madras, Mrs. E. Susanna, ag. 30.

SHIPPING ABRIVALS.

February.

- 7. Charles Grant, from Calcutta.
- 12. Isadore, from Vizagapatam.
- 15. Rembauz, from Padang. March.
  - 1. Bellona, from Calcutta.
  - 2. Robarts, from London.
  - 7. Juliana, from Calcutta.

12. H. M. S. Victor from ditto.

— Emms, from Singapore.

14. Adolphe, from Bourbon,

16. Fanny, from Bombay.

Bombay, from Mauriting.
Emerald Isle, from Calcutta.

17. Swallow, from ditto.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

February.

10. Sarah, for Northern Ports.

- Kent, for ditto.

, 14. Colonel Burney, for Rangoon.

24. Mary Anne, for London.

27. H. M. B. Algerine, for Trincomalev.

28. Clarissa, for Penang.

March.

2. Clorinda, for Bordeaux.

16. Emerald Islo, for New South Wales.

17. H. M. S. Victor, for Trincomakec.

20. Adolphe, for Pondicherry.

Bombay.

GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATIONS:

in Council has received, that whenever an individual who may have taken his passage in one of the Hon. Co.'s steamers, shall withdraw his name, after having paid the full amount of his passage money, a moiety of the amount so paid shall be refunded to him; should his place be not supplied by another, the whole amount will be forfeited.

By order, &c.

CURRENCY—TERRITORIAL DEPARTMENT—FINANCE. (March 7.)—It is hereby notified, that from the 1st May, 1838, the Company's Rupee is to be the money of account in supercession of the local currencies, in the following collectorates:—

Surat, Tannah, Rutnagerree, Ahmednuggur.

The Company's Rupee to be generally employed by all public officers. The Bazaar price current to be drawn out and fixed in it. It is, however, clearly to be understood, that though the Company's Rupeo is to be the money of account in the collectorates above enumerated, and to be the money of payment at all stations within the limits of the Hon. Company's territory subordinate to this Presidency, every facility is to be afforded for the receipt, by the Government officers, of the local currencies, since so long as these coins remain in circulation, payment must be received in them, or in the Company's Rupee, at the regulated exchange, as may best suit the convenience of the payers.

MILITARY PENSIONERS. (March 15.)—Considerable inconvenience and trouble having been experienced, by military pensioners of this establishment, having proceeded to stations under the Bengal and Madras presidencies, previous to the requisite authority being obtained; it is hereby notified, that pensioners cannot be permitted to leave this presidency, until the required sanction of the Government under which they may wish to reside, shall have been received, and officially announced.

LETTER FRANKS BY OVERLAND STEAMERS.—Colonel Campbell and Ma. Waghorn.—Bombay Castle, Jan. 23.—Extracts of letters from the Company to the Governor in Council. Ist, dated 8th November, 1837, states that "Instances having occurred of letters addressed by parties in India to the individual members of our Court, being transmitted to this country by the Mediterranean mails under the impression that such letters are exempt from the duty of postage, it is necessary that we should apprise you that the privilege of receiving letters so addressed, free of postage, does not attach to letters sent from the East Indies by packet via the Mediterranean, and we direct that you forthwith take the necessary measures for giving public notice thereof. You will, however, clearly understand that the privilege of franking, enjoyed by individual directors and other public functionaries, so far as respects the Indian duties of postage continues in full force."

2d letter (15th Nov.) "We have appointed Colonel Campbell H. M.'s Consul in Egypt, our agent in that Country. Mr. Thomas Waghorn has been appointed our deputy agent."

TOLL IN THE BHORE GHAUT.—Bombay Castle, Jan. 24th, 1838.—Noitfied that no exemption will be allowed from the toll loviable on the Bhore Ghaut, under provisions of Act 2, of 1837, and that all officors and troops passing the Ghaut must in like manner with private individuals pay the toll according to the usual rates.

COURTS-MARTIAL.

BREV.-CAPT. R. B. HILL, H. M.'s 41st Foot.—Head-Quarters, Simla, 17th Feb. 1838.—At a General Court-Martial, holden at Bellary, on 4th of January, 1838, Lieut. and Brev.-Capt. Richard Bingham Hill, H. M.'s 41st Foot, was arraigned on the following Charges:-

First Charge—" For conduct unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline in the following instances:—First instance. In having, at Bellary, on the 16th of September, 1837, absented himself, without leave, from his regiment, so continuing absent until the 23d of the same month. Second instance. In having, near Guddakul, on 22d of same month, when being brought back a prisoner by an escort of the same regiment, made his escape therefrom, notwithstanding that he had given the sergeant of the escort his word of honour, that he would not ride out of his sight." Second Charge—" For scandalous and infamous conduct, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, in having, at the same place, on the 23d of September, 1837, addressed an official letter to the adjutant of the same regiment, Liput. Eugenc James Vaughan, containing a gross falsehood."

Finding—Guilty of the first instances of the first charge, which, however, the Court does not consider in this instance, as "conduct unbecoming the character of a gentleman." Guilty of the second instance of the first charge. Guilty of the second charge. Sentence-To be Cashiered, &c., &c.

Approved, (Signed) LIEUT. G. E. CUYLER, H. M.'s SECOND ON QUEEN'S ROYALS .- Head-Quarters, Simla, 24th Feb. 1838.—At a General Court-Martial holden in Cantonment, near Poona, on the 22d day of January, 1838, Lieut. G. E. Cuyler, H. M.'s 2d or Queen's Royal Reg. of Foot, was arraigned on the following Charges:-First Charge-" For disgraceful and scandalous conduct, unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, in the following instances; viz., First. In having, in cuntonment, near Belgaum, on or about the 27th June, 1837, and on subsequent days, asserted to Paymaster J. S. Darby, of same regiment, a gross and wilful falsehood, reflecting on the character of his senior and superior officer, Capt. H. D. Keith, of the same regiment, by stating that he (Lieut. Cuyler) had, at the mess of the officers of the regiment, on march from Vingorla to Belgaum, on or about 13th Jan., 1837, addressed most opprobrious language to Brev.-Capt. Keith, reflecting on his honour and honesty, and that he (Capt. Keith) had taken no notice of the same :--- Whereas, no such language had ever been addressed by Lieutenant Cuyler to Captain Keith. Second. In having, at Belgaum, on 28th June, 1837, dictated to priv. Thomas Sinnott, of the 2d or Queen's Foot, a paper containing false and scandalous aspersions against the character of Brev. Capt. Keith, to the effect as set forth in the preceding instance, thereby infamously and falsely traducing the character of Capt. Keith to a private soldior of the same reg., and tending to degrade Capt. Keith's character in the estimation of the said soldier, and the other soldiers of the corps. Second Charge-" For scandalous and disgraceful conduct, &c., in having, in cantonment near Belgaum, on or about 30th June, 1837, asserted a wilful and deliberate falsehood to the aforesaid paymaster J. S. Darby, by stating to him, that Brig. Gen. Salter, commanding the southern division of the army, had, some time previously, gone into his (Lieut.

Cuyler's) tent, when he (Lieut. Cuyler) was under arrest for alleged missenduct at the mess, and that he (the Brigadier General) had then and there intend to the reflections referred to, in the preceding charge, against the character of Capt. Koth; such false statement on the part of Lieut. Cuyler, being derogatory to the profitsional character of Brig. Gen. Salter, his superior officer. Finding—" Cuilty. Sentence—Lieut. G. E. Cuyler to be cashiered."

Gunners Boucher, Horse Art., and Donovan, 2d Bar. Art.—There men had been found guilty of insubordinate conduct (Boucher for brutally striking his Serjeant, &c.; Donovan for drunkenness and brutality) at Courts-Martial, belt on them at Sholapore and Bombay, February 24th and March 22d. Sentences Donovan, six months solitary imprisonment. Boucher, one year's solitary imprisonment.

ment (mitigated punishment).

APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS, CHANGES, &c.

Cibil.

March 5.—Mr. W. Simson, to act as coll and mag. of Tanna.

- Mr. S. Mansfield, to act as 4th assist. to prin. coll. of Poona.

7. Mr. C. E. F. Tytler, to be assist. to prin. coll. of Poona.

8. The Hon. G. W. Anderson, Esq., app. by Hon. the Court of Directors, to be a member of this Govt., has taken the oaths and his seat in the Council of Bombay under the usual salute.

24. Mr. A. W. Ravonscroft, first assist. to coll. of Dharwar, took charge of that collectorate, from Mr. T. H. Baber, on the 28th February.

26. Mr. J. Ogilvy, acting 3d assist. coll. in Candeish, to visit pres. for one month, for the purpose of attending the ensuing exam. in Mihratta language.

27. Lieut. W. J. Monris, 9th N. I., to be Bheel agent in Landeish.

28. Mr. A. Erphinston, act. coll. of Rutnagherry, assumed charge of that eollectorate, on 22d March.

— Mr. G. Malcolm, first assist to coll. of Candeish, is to proceed on dep. to settle the Jummabundy of Talooks of Malcgaum and Chalcosgaum.

— Sir R. K. Arbuthnot, Bt., sub.-coll, of Nassick, to remain in districts, on dep.

— Mr. A. A. C. Forbes, assist to coll. of Ahmednuggur, and att. to sub-coll of Nassick, to proceed on dep. into districts.

Military.

Jan. 10.—Lieut. H. I. Woodward, Eu. reg., furl. to Eu., private affairs.

19. Lieut. J. Tait, 6th N. I., furl. to Europe three years, health.

Feb. 22.—Lieut.-Col. W. D. Robertson, 16th N. I., furl. to Cape of Good Hope, two years, health.

23. Lieut. T. R. Morse, left wing, Eur.

reg., furl. to Europe.

24. Lt. G. H. Bainbridge, N. I., furl.

to Europe for three years, health.

- Ens. C. R. W. Hervey of the R. W. of the Eur. reg., and Ens. J. P. Grant of the 13th reg. N. I., at their own request exchanging, each joining as juntor of their rank.

Oriental Herald-Vol. 1.-No. VI.

24. Ens. J. A. Evans, L. W. Enr. reg. transf. to 22d N. I., as Junior Ensign.

28. Lieut.-Col. G. A. Litchfield, Ad L. C., to retire from H. C.'s Service on pay of Colonel.

March 1.—Lt. T. Edmunds, 3d N.I., to he assistant to Resident in Persian Gulf, subject to conf. of Government of India.

3. Lieut.-Col. P. Fearon, 11th N. I., posted, v. Little, retired.

- Lt.-Col. M. Soppitt, late prom. post.

to 11th N. I., to join.

5. Lieut. J. C. Hartley, senior sub.assist. to be dep. as. com.-gen., v. Scobie, app. to remount agency.

- Lieut. Stockley, 7th N.I., to be sub.-assist. com.-gen., v. Hartley promoted in the Department.

— Lieut. J. Ramsay, sub.-assist., in charge of bazaars at Decsa, to be ant. sub.-assist. com.-gen., to complete estab.

- Lieut, F. Bagshawe, 5th N.I., to be sub.-assist. com.-gen., in charge of bazaars at Belgaum, v. Stockley.

- Lieut R. J. Shaw, of R. W. Eur. reg., to be act. sub.-assist. com. gen., in charge of bazzars at Deesa.

6. Army rank assigned to undermentioned Cornets and Engigns from the dates specified opposite their respective names. Cornet F. Ashworth, 2d R. L. C. 2d Scpt., 1835; Cornet E. C. Campbell, 1st R. L. C., 5th Dec., do., Lieut, A. N., Aitchimon, 13th R. N. I., 12th June, do. Lieut. W. E. Evans, R. W. E. R., do. Lieut. A. E. Saunders, 3d R. N. I., dog Ens. W. H. C. Lye, 13th R. N. I., do.: Ens. A. P. Hunt, R. W. E. R., 13th, do. Ens. A. C. Honner, 1st Gr. R. N. I., do. t Ens. R. Richards, 13th R. N. I., 5th Dec., do.; Ens. W. Falconer, 2d Gr. R. N. I., 11th do.; Ens. C. R. W. Herr vey, R. W. E. R., do.; Ens. E. O. Beales 22d R. N. I., do.; Ens. E. F. Pracock 1st Gr. R. N. I., do.; Ens. A. S. Young 3d R. N. I., do.; Ens. R. Fitzgerald, 12th R. N. I., do; Eus. J. A. Evans, L. W. E. R., do.; Ens. A. J. Alcock, 5th R. N. I.

do: Ens. W. G. Arrow, 9th R. N. I., do: Ens. D. T. Compton, 18th, B. N. I., 21st do.; Ens. C. Williams, 18th R. N. I., do.; Ens. S. J. K. Whitehill, 23d R. N. I., 17th Jan., 1836; Ens. J. Barr, 7th R. N. I., do.; Ens. E. B. Eastwick, 6th R. N. I., do.; Ens. H. Lodwick, 10th R. N. I., do: Ens. C. P. Rigby, 16th R. N. I., do: Ens. C. P. Rigby, 16th R. N. I., 18th, do.

6. Capt. J. W. Chalmers, 413 10 nominated to command detach. over the sidiary Jail at Tannah.

- Licut. Scriven, V. Bat., to act as adj., during absence of Licut. Hogg, on sick cert. (temp. arr. conf.)

— Capt. W. S. Adams, dep. assist. quarter master gen., to take charge of brig. maj.'s office at Poona, from the 14th March, till furt. ord., (temp. arr. conf.)

— Lieut. W. F. Cormack, quar. mas. and interp. in Hindoostanee, 15th N. I.,

to be Mahratta interp.

— An exchange of regts, is sanctioned between Ens. C. S. Whitchill, 5th N. I., and Ens. H. Dent, 10th N. I., each joining as junior of their rank, at their own request.

— Admitted to the service, as cadets of eng. and inf.; the cadet for eng. to be prom. to 2d Lieut.; Mr. W. F. Marriott, eng.; Mr. C. J. Symons, inf.

— Capt. R. Long of the 22d N. I., furl. to Eur. for three years, on priv. aff.

9. 2d Lieut. J. H. Burke, eng., app.

assist, to exec. eng. at Poonah.

— Cornet J. Forbes, 3d L. C., to be adj., v. Licut. Eyre, resigned.—Date of appoint., 20th Feb. 1838.

- Ens. C. R. W. Hervey, 13th N. I., to act as quar. mast. and interp. in Hin-doostance, to that reg.

- Senior Major P. P Wilson, cav., to be Lieut.-Col., v. Litchfield, retired; date of rank, 28th Feb. 1838.

— Capt. D. Cunningham, 2d L. C., to be major; Licut. W. T. Ottley, to be Capt.; and Cornet H. Askworth to be Lieut., in suc. to Wilson prom.; date of rank, 28th Feb. 1838.

cornet to be ranked, and posted to 2d L. C., from the date specified opposite his name: Cornot E. H. Simpson, rank in reg. 28th Feb., 1838; rank in army, 7th March, 1838.

The undermentioned officers, cadets of the season, 1822, prom. to brevet rank of Capt., from dates spec. opp. to names:—

- Lieut. G. G. Malet, 3d L. C., 4th Jan. 1838.

- Lieut. J. Whitmore, 11th N. I., 26th Feb. 1838.
  - Lt. F. G. Fraser, R. W. Eur. regt.
  - Lt. J. B. Bellasis, 9th N. I.
    Lt. G. Wilson, 26th N. I.
  - Lt. J. Jackson, 25th N. I.

12. Major H. Dunbabin, Inv. estab., furl. to Cape, and eventually to Europe, for three years, for health.

- Lieut. T. L. Jameson, 3d N. I., to take rank, v. Hughes, deceased.

- Lieut. F. Forbes, ditto, to tako rank, v. Maleolm prom.

— Lt. T. D. Fallon, 7th N.I., to act as major of brigade at Sholapoor, till further orders, temp. arr. confirmed.

— Lieut. W. B. G. Blenkins, 6th N. I., to act as adj. to detach. at Broach, consisting of upwards of 300 rank and file, ditto.

— Lieut. R. W. Horne, 8th reg. N. I., to resign app. of Mahratta interp. to that reg.

— Lieut. R. H. Young, 2d reg. N. I., to perform duties of staff officer to field detach. under command of Major D.

Forbes, until the arr. of Lt. Hart, temp.

— I.t. H. Franklin to act as adj. to 2d N. I., during absence of Lieut. Young, on field service, temp.

15. Capt. G. J. Mant, 19th N. I., to be a dep. judge adv. gen. on estab., v. Woodhouse, to Europe; date of app. 13th March, 1838; and is attached to Poona division of the army.

17. Liout.-Col. J. G. Griffith, removed from 1st to 2d bat. art.

19. Lieut.-Col. E. Jervis, removed from 2d L. C., to 3d L. C., v. Litchfield, retired.

- Lient.-Col. P. P. Wilson, late prom., posted to 2d 1. C.

23. Lieut. G. C. Shickley, 7th N. I., to act as adj. to that regt., during absence of Lieut. Lloyd on leave, temp. arr. conf.

— Lieut. J. C. Auderson, line adj. at Rajcoto, to act as interp. to 12th regt. N. I., till arrival of Lieut. W. J. Eastwick, temp arr. conf.

- Brev. Capt. G. Wilson, 26th N. I., to act as interp. in Hindoostance language, to L. W. 1st L. C., v. Capt. J. Pope, 17th N. 1.

- Ens. E. B. Eastwick, 6th N. I., to act as quartm. and interp. in Hindoostance and Mahratta languages to the Marine bat., v. Hervey.

- Ens. H. Lodwick, 10th N. I., to be

2d or Mahratta interp. to that regt.

— Capt. Stuart, 14th N. I., to assume charge of office of assist. commis. Gen. Ahmedabad, consequent on death of Capt. Payne, confirmed.

- Capt. J. Hale, 22d N. I., a furlough to Europe, for three years.

— Lieut. H. B. Rose, app. interp. in Hindoostance language to Eur. regt., v. Stiles, prom.; date of app., 6th Dec.

- Lieut.Col. Gibbon, is app. to command troops at Sholapore, from the 9th March.

26. Lieut. II. B. Salmon, to act as sub-assist. com. gen., in charge of bazaars and police at Poona, during absence of Ens. Browne, on duty at pres., confirmed.

26. Army rank assigned to Lieut. U. T. North, eng., from 11th June, 1833, instead of 26th April, 1835, assigned to him in gen. ord. of 7th June, 1835.

28. Capt. M. M. Shaw, of 9th N. I., furl, to Europe for three years, priv. all.

Naval.

Jan. 20.—Mr. Draper, mate, to be act. lieut. of the Tigris, (temp. arr. conf.)

- Midship. Leeds, to be act. mato of ditto.

*March 1.—Act. Com. Nott, proceeding in Hugh Lindsay steamer, to assumo command of Euphrates, to be accommodated at Commander's table, 23d Jan.

— Lt. Sharp, to charge of the Emily, schooner, from 9th Jau., (temp. arr. conf.)

- Mr. Midship. J. Lang, from the Bheoma to the Margaret, from 1st Jan.

- Lieut. A. H. Gordon, to perform duties of purser on board the Elphinstone, during abs. of Mr. Todd, on sick cert. from 30th July, to 3d. Oct. 1838.

6. Acting Commander Rogers, from the Amherst to the Elphinstone; 15th

Jan., (temp. app. conf.)

 Licut. J. P. Porter, from charge of the Elphinstone to that of the Amherst, 15th Jan. (ditto).

— Mr. Mate Grainds, to the Amherst, to do duty of acting lieut. in addition to that of mate, 15th Jan. (do.)

🧨 --- The leave granted in general orders under date 19th Jan. last, to Commander McDowall, of the inv. estab. of the I. N., cancelled.

17 Mr. Purser Charlton, clerk of the cheque, furl. to Capo for two years for health.

Medical.

Feb. 22.—Super.-surg. A. Henderson, furl. to Eur. 3 years, for health.

23. Assist.-surg. J. Scott, sec. to med.

board, furl. to Eur. 3 years.

— Surg. J. Glen, to be sec. to med. board in suc. to Assist.-surg. Scott; and Assist.-surg. Brown, to act for Dr. Glen, till his arrival at presidency.

March 6 .- Surg. A. Tawse, med estab.

returned to duty.

9. Sen. Surg. F. Sheppoe to act as super.-surg. on estab. v. Henderson to Europe, from 1st inst.

- Super.-surg. R. H. Kennedy, M. D. removed from N.W.D. of Guzerat and

app. to pres. div.

9. Act. Super.-surg. F. Shoppee, app. to the N. W. D. of Guzerat, v. Kennedy, and directed to join.

21. Surg. W. Green, removed from ma-Surg. J. Burnes, M. D. K. H. posted to marine bat. W. Gray.

– Surg. McMorris, 26th N. I., to paceive med charge of detail of 3d commi Golundause pat., confirmed.

23. Assist surg. Keith to join the Myher kanta field force, confirmed.

Assist.-surg. Ritchie to perform depart. of Assist.-surg. Taylor, conf.

ssist.-surg. S. Frasor, dep. anany mast. furl. to Eur. health.

27. The medical officer attached to Residency at Baroda, to be exempted from performance of military duties involving his departure from that station, so long as his corps may remain there.

DIATHS.

Jan. 29.—At Mangalore, the lady of M. Lewin, Esq., C. S., of a daughter.

Feb. 23.—At Pharwar, the lady of Lit.

W. C. Stather, of a daughter.

- At Malligaum, the lady of Licut.

Lewis Brown, 5th reg., of a son.

March 7.—At Dhoolia, Mrs. B. do Miranda, of a daughter.

10. At Tamuuh, Mrs. R. Folker, of a son.

11. At Colaba, Mrs. F. Martimant, of a son.

16. At Colaba, the lady of F. Shepped, Esq., act. sup. surg., N. W. D., of a sun.

- At Ahmedunggur, the lady of H. A. Harrison, Esq., C. S., of a daughter.

24. At Tannah, the lady of J. M. Davin, Esq., C. S., of a son.

25. At Bombay, the lady of Capt. G.

J. Jameson, of a daughter.

26. At Bombay, the wife of Kessowjee

Runsordjeo Sett, of a son.

28. At Bombay, Mrs. Kenderdine, of a son.

美学的TTVU程度

Feb. 20.—At Doesa, H. C. Tylor, Baq., 40th reg., to S. Wolff, youngest daughter of Dr. McAndrew, 40th reg.

March 8 .- At Belgaum, R. H. A. Hunter, Esq., 2d or Queen's Royals, to M. Van Batenburg, only daughter of Capt, Gilland, of the same corps.

10. At Byculla, P. M. Dalzell, Esqu to Jane Laura, youngest daughter of Lieut. Weeks, R. N.

22. At Byculla, W. E. Frero, Estimate C. S., to Eliza Jane, eldost daughter af Maj.-Gen. Osborne, of this petab.

28. At Bombay, Mr. P. Kelly, to Mills

Eleanor Kilkenny.

DEATHS.

Feb. 3.—Mr. P. White, aged 28, March 6.—At Bombay, of Cholera, Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. D. Buchanan, aged 15.

10. At Ootacamund, D. Geddes, Esq.,

aged 24.

14. At Poona, the infall daughter of Mr. H. Lawless, aged 2.

18. At Bombay, of cholera, Mrs. Rosa

Maria Bocarro.

24. At Byculla, of cholera, Mrs. 8. McAulay, aged 29.

25. At Bombay, Capt. F. McGille.

ray, Engineers, aged 37.

27. At Bombay, of cholera, Many Redwood.

Lately, at Cambay, the infant daughter of the late Lieut. A. H. Williams, 13th, N. I.

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

March.

1. Lady Grant, from China.

5. Thomas Harrison, from Maculla.

- H. M.'s S. Raleigh, from Colombo. 7. Charles Grant, from Beng. and Mad.
- 8. Barbara, from Llanelly.
- William, from ditto. — Elizabeth, from Mauritius.
- Allalevie, from Calcutta. 11. Georgiana, from Llanelly.
- Competent, from Liverpool.
- 13. Burong, from Calcutta. 19. Emilia, from China.

22. Cestrian, from Liverpool.

- Sir H. Compton, fr. Bush. & Muscat.
- 26. Cacador, from Macao. 30. Vansittart, from China.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

March.

1. Tartar, for Bushire.

8. Relianco, for Liverpoel.

- May, for Liverpool.

29. Buckinghamshire, for Cape & Lond.

APPOINTMENT.

Dec. 1.—C. R. Buller, Esq., to be district judge of Colombo, No. 1, South.

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

February.

- 7. H. M. S. Raleigh, from Bombay.
- 2. Eleanora, from Liverpool & Cape.
- Eleanor, from Swan River. 5. New Grove, from Mauritius.

SHIPPING DETARTURES.

February.

24. Fairie Queene, for London.

March.

7. Fortfield, for Penang and Singapore.

8. Tigris, for London. Valleyfield, for ditto.

11. Woolsington, for ditto.

Singapore.

BHIPPING ARRIVALS.

December.

7. Arabian, from Calcutta. Persian, from Liverpool.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

January.

11. Margaret, for London.

14. Singapore, for ditto.

China.

APPOINTMENTS.

March 7.—Mr. J. H. Astell, confirmed, (by Bengal Govt.) in app. of senior member of H. C.'s financial agency at Canton, v. Jackson, resigned.

- Mr. H. M. Clarke, confirmed, (by Bengal Govt.) in app. as 2d member of H. C.'s financial agency at Canton.

SHIPPING LRRIVALS.

- January. 6. Premier, from Calcutta & Singapore
- 9. Griffin, from Sandwich Islands.
- 13. Morrison, from Sourabaya. 22. Psyche, from Calcutta.
- 24. Julia, from Bombay.
- 27. Ann, from Calcutta.
- 30. Arabian, from ditto. - Orixa, from Liverpool.
- Kirkman, from Bombay.
- Hashmy, from London.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

December.

27. Ingleboro, for London.

January.

- 8. Lady Nugent, for London.
- 12. Eliza Susan, for Cowes. 23. Balgherio, for Bordeaux.
- Ariel, for Singapore and Calcutta
- 28. General Kyd, for London. - Lady McNaghten, for ditto.
- Isabella, for ditto.
  - Edinburgh, for ditto. - Duke of Sussex, for Manila.
- Sophia, for Cape & London.
- 30. Eliza Stewart, for London. Aber. Robinson, for ditto.

New South Bales.

SYDNEY,

GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATIONS.

In reference to the case of the unfortunate Doyle, who was recently expented for an offence committed in New Zeelsag, the Covernment have published the following proclamation:-

New Zealand Rigour of the Law. Librarial Scoretary's Chios, Sydney, December 8, 1837.—Representations having been made from time to time, by James Busby, Esq., British Resident in New Zealand, of offences prepetrated in that island, by subjects of Great Britain, under the belief that the difficulty of conviction would ensure impunity, his Excellency the Acting Governor and the Executive Council of New South Wales deem it right to notify, for general information, that sentence of death has been passed by the Supreme Court of this Colony upon Edward Doyle, found guilty of stealing in a dwelling-house, at the Bay of Islands, on the 18th of June last, and putting John Wright in bodily fear, and that Doyle has been executed accordingly, this day.

His Excellency trusts that this example will render such outrages less frequent in future.

APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS, CHANGES, &c.

APPOINTMENTS.

Dec. 1 .- J. Blaxland, of Wallern Hills; J. R. Booth of Cceil Hills, Cabramatta; J. Dulhunty, of Cullen Bullen; C. G. Grey, of Port Macquarie; J. Kinchela, sen., of Sydney; W. H. Mackenzie, of Bathurst; W. O. Raymond, of Wellington Valley; R. M. Westmacoft, of Illawarra; and H. Zouch, of Liverpool. Esqrs., to be magistrates. A.T. Faunce, to be polico Imag. at Queenbayan; A. Holden, to be police mag. at Brisbane Water; Capt. P. Plunkett, 80th reg. to be a justice of the peace of the territory, and police mag. at Illawarra; and A. Young, Esqr., of Sydney, to be a justice of the peace of the territory, and third police mag. of the town and port of Sydney, in the room of R. Stewart. Esq., resigned.

18. Msj. Sullivan, to be police mag. at Raymond Terrace and the adjoining districts; Mr. T. S Nind, of Paterson, Mr R. H. Brown, of Yass, Mr. J. Liscombe, of Bathurst, and Mr. W. Hardy, of Yass, to be Commissioners of Crown Lands.

Brelesiastical.

Dec. 18.—The Rev. J. K. Walpole, to be surrogate to Bishop of Australia.

BIRTHS.

Nov. 5.—At Lochend, Lake Macquarie, Mrs. W. Brooks of a son.
25. Mrs. F. Lawson, of Newcastle, of a daughter.

Dec. 3.—At the Posse, Cook's River,

Mrs. Duguid, of a son.

4. At George's Hall, Bank's Town, the lady of D. Johnston, Esq., of a daughter.

8. The wife of Mr. R. Maddox, of a daughter.

11. At Sydney, Mrs. J. H. Atkinson, of a daughter.

13. At Bolle-Ombre, Cook's River, Mrs. C. Prout, of twin sons.

14. At Bong Bong Bong, the lady of W. C. Haldane, Esq., of a son.

20. At Patrick's Plains, Mrs. Henry Glennic, of a son.

22. At Lachlan Vale, Appin, Mrs. B. Clayton, of a son.

31. Mrs. M. M. Cohen, of a son.

Lately, at Parramatts, Mrs. Watkins, of a daughter, still born.

MARRIAGES.

Oct. 23.—At Port Macquarie, Miss.
D. Isaacs, only daughter of Widow Image, Alic-street, London, to Daniel Cohen, late of Liverpool, England.

Dec. I.—At Sydney, Mr. Thos. Hope, (apoth. med. dept., I. A.) to Martin, daughter of the Rev. W. Crook, Jamison-street.

18. J. W. Smith, Esq., deputy-assett, com.-gen., to Agnes, secd. daughter of the late Capt. Donald Macarthur, ?d Royal Vet. Bat.

20. Mr. R. W. McLellan, of Cheapside, Parramatta, to Ann, eldost daughter of W. Burnett, Esq., of Macquarie street, Parramatta.

21. P G. Verge, Esq. of Lyndhurst Vale, Williams's River, to Elizabeth, fourth daughter of Licut. If gip, R. N.

- At Port Macquarie, Henry Betts, Esq., to Eliza Catharine, eldest daughter of T. W. Morton, Esq.

30. At Sydney, T. H. Fowler, Esq., surg., to Maria, widow of the late Cont. H. J. Ramus.

Lately, at Sydney, K. Mann, Esq., of Bombay Horse Artillery, to Mary, addest daughter of the late F. A. Hely, Esq., of Engehurst, Sydney.

DEATHS,

Sept. 11.—At sea, suddenly, on board the ship Portland, the wife of Mr. T. W. Robifison, teacher, formerly of 28, Greensido-street, Edinburgh.

18. On board the same ship, after a short illness, Mary Ann, wife of the Rev. R. Stewart, late of Greenwich, Kent.

Nov. 9.—By a horse taking fright, Mary, the only daughter of John Jamison, of Greenwich Park, Argyle, aged 4 yrs. 7 mo.

30. At Newcastle, Fannish the infant daughter of Mr. S. Kemp.

Dec. 7.—At Annandale, occasioned by a fall from his horse, Mr. J. W. Jones, superintendent to R. Johnston, Esq.

15. At her residence, Druitt-street,

Mrs. Ann Bradridge, aged 35.

17. In Pitt-street, William, only son of the Rev. W. Sowerby, aged 3 months.

18. At Belle Ombre, Cook's River, the twin sons of C. Prout, Esq.

20. At Sydney, eldest son of Mr. Greenhill, of Elizabeth-stroet, aged 6.

21. Mrs. M. E. Brown, aged 39.

24. At his residence, Parramatta, Capt. A. D. White, Royal Engineers, ag. 44.

26. At Morpeth, Hunter's River, Mrs. Dixon, late of Park-street, Sydney.

Lately, the infant daughter of R. Jones, Esq., M. C., Darlinghurst, ag. 4 mo. 23 da.

Lately, at Surrey Hills, Sydney, infant son of John Tyre, Esq., Comm. Depart.

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

November.

24. Osprey, from Bordeaux. December.

2. Gazelle, from Cape. - Asia, from Plymouth.

12. William Harris, from Downs.

— Mid Lothian, from Isle of Skye. 22. Henry Wellesley, from Downs.

22. Governor Bourke, from New Zealand.

- William, from Batavia.

24. Peter Proctor, from Calcutta. - Sir C. Forbes, from Dublin.

31. Alfred, from Plymouth.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

December.

2. Louisa, for Londor.

4. Samuel Winter, for Valparaiso.

19. Recovery, for Madras.

25. Osprey, for Mauritius.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

(Previous to 11th Dec.)

Lady Emma, from Downs and Cape. Navarino, from Downs. Peter Proctor, from Calcutta.

Van Diemen's Land.

HOBART-TOWN. APPOINT A ENTS.

Dec. 15.—A. Gardiner, Esq., to be assist. polico mag. at Avoca from 1st Jan.

- T. Maclaine, Esq., to be assist. pohee mag. at Spring Buy, ditto.

Dec. 29.—Capt. Forster to be Chairman of the Bench of Mag. J. Hone, Esq., Bar.at-Law; J. Gregory, Esq. and T. Nicholson, Esq., to be Commrs. under act for setthement of claims to grants of Land, of whom J. Hone, Esq., is app. Chairman. J. Arthur, Esq., M. D., A. Turnbull, Esq., M. D., J. McBaire, Esq., M. D., J. Learmonth, Esq., M. D., R. Officer, Esq., W. Seccombe, Esq., E. P. Bedford, Esq., to be Members of the Court of Examiners (to regulate the practice of Medicine) of whom Dr. Arthur is appointed President.

Mr. Charles Arthur, recently appointed to the Police Magistracy at Norfolk Plains, leave of absence to visit England. Mr. Price do duty for him during his absence (for half salary.)

BIRTUS.

Dec. 8 .- Mrs. A. Bent, of Elizabethstreet, Hobart-Town, of a son.

10. At Hobart-Town, the lady of M. Forster, Esq., C. P. M., of a son.

11. At New Town, Mrs. Bell, of a da.

— At Hobart-Town, the lady of A.

Montagu, Esq., of a son.

17. In Macquaric-st., Hobart-Town, Mrs. R. L. Murray, of a daughter.

DEATH.

Nov. 9.—At Dennistoun, V. D. L. wife of Capt. P. Wood, of the retired list, Madras army.

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

November.

3. Hope, from Calcutta.

14. Andromache, from Plymouth.

20. Caroline, from New Zealand.

21. Susan, from Portsmouth.

December.

7. Auriga, from Downs.

Bussorsh Merchant, from Cook.
 Marian Watson, from Bydney.

January.

1. Patriot, from Mauritius.

3 Emu, from Downs.

Derwent, from ditto.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

November.

6. Eudora, for Calcutta.

December.

1. Sarah Barry, for Calcutta.

13. William the 4th, for South Seas.

14. Susan, for Sydney.

22. Elphinstone, for London.

- Mary Anne, for ditto.

- Jane Merope, for ditto.

LAUNCESTON.

GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATION.

THE LIEUT.-GOVERNOR—December 29.—The Lieut.-Governor directs it to be notified that it is His Excellency's intention to be at Spring Bay on the 3d January, and to leave it on the following day for Waterloo Point; leave that on the 5th; and pass, 8th Jan. at Little Swan Port—12th Jan., at Avoca, proceeding thence to Morven on the 13th, remaining there 14th, and on Monday, the 15th, his Excellency will arrive at Launceston.

BIRTHS.

Dec. 17.—Mrs. Dudley, of Charles street, of a son.

20. Mrs. Lukin, of the Wharf, of a daughter.

— Mrs. W. Bransgrove, Thorpe Farm, East Bank, River Tamar, of a daughter.

22. Mrs. J. Robertson, of Brisbano street, of a son.

DEATHS.

Dec. 19.—Mr. W. Hewitson, superint. of Windmill Hill Signal Statton. Tho deceased served 25 years in the British Navy.

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

December.

9. Bardaster, from Downs.

14. Arabian, from ditto.

January.
6. Louiss, from Cowes.

SECTION DEPARTURES.

November.

16. Cygnet, for London.

20. Lowestoft, for New Zealand.

22. Artemis, for Valparaiso.

January.

9. Harriett, for London.

Mauritius.

BIRTH.

Dec. 23.—At Port Lewis, Maurities, Mrs. Wilson, the lady of his Honor the Chief Judge, and first President of the Supreme Court of that Island, of a son,

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

January.

16. Eagle, from London

17. Apprentice, from Table Bay.

- Glocester, from London.

- Commodore from Calcutta

- Pearl from Bristol.

18. Paragon, from Cape.

- Felix, from London.

- Victoria, from Calcutta.

19. Provence, from Madras.

20. Meldon, from Cape.

21. Helen, from ditto.

23. Parmelia, from Cork.

26. Elizabeth, from Calcutta.

- Emma, from Bombay.

27. Majestic, from Moulinein.

28. Alfred, from Calcutta.

28. Eliza, from Pondicherry. February.

4. Henry, from London.

16. George and Mary, from Calcutta.

20. Jannet, from ditto.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

January.

15. Britannia, for Calcutta.

17. Calypso, for London.

- Gilbert, for Calcutta.

21. Mary Ann, for Lofdon.

22. Cho, for Calcutta.

26. Ambassador, for Singapore.

27. Sir J. R. Reid, for London.

31. St. George, for Greenock.

February.

6. Rapid, for London.

Cape of Good Mope.

GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATIONS.

Monthly Returns of the State of the Colony. (March 5th.)—His Excellency the Governor, with the concurrence of his Honor the Lieut.-Gov. directs that in future, Monthly Returns shall be published, showing, the actival state of the civil relations between the Colonists of the eastern frontier districts and the neighbouring native Tribes; the observance or infringement, on either side, of the existing treaties with those Tribes; the particulars of all depredations committed in that quarter during the precoding month; the means taken to recover the plunder, or to procure redress, together with the success or failure of those means; and whether, in each case of depredation, due precaution had been taken to watch and guard the property which was stolen.

The object of the intended publications is, to prevent the Public from being misled, from the want of official information.

THE GOVERNOR, (Manual )—The Governor had notified his intention of shortly APPRENTICED Large (March 16.)—The Governor calls upon all Public Authorities to use their atmost endeavours to prevent apprenticed labourers accompanying their employers out of the Colony, this practice having become a subject of notice latterly, and militating against the agricultural interests of the Colony.

Ø,

**€

APPOINTMENT.

March 23.—H. Hudson, Esq., acting sec. Lieut.-Governor, to be ditto to the Governor for the districts through which the latter is about to proceed.

MARRIAGES.

Feb. 13.—At Graham's Town, Cape of Good Hope, Mr. J. Standen, to Emma, youngest daughter of Mr. C. B. R. Wright, of Greenwich, Kent.

March 19.—At Cape Town, Mr. T. Long, to Miss E. Thompson.

20. Mr. E. Buchanan, to Miss J. Cowans

DEATHS.

Jan. 24.—At Botha's Post, Graham's Town, infant son of B. D. Bell, Esq., commissariat department.

* Feb. 10.—Mr. R. Powric, aged 53.
21. Mr. We Leng, chief mate of the Olivia, aged 35.

23. Capt. A. Logie, late of H. M.'s 72d reg., aged 53.

24. Mr. J. Hogsflesh, aged 55.

25. At Constantia, Cape, Mrs. B. J. J. Colyn, aged 33.

— At the Cape, John, eldest son of J. Shewell, Esq. of York Place, Portman-sq.

26. At the Cape, Commander Barrow, late of H. M. S. Rose, son of Sir J. Barrow, of the Admiralty, of consumption, aged 28.

March 6.-J. Boileau, Esq., Col. of the Bengal Horse Artillery, aged 51. •

8. Augustus, son of Capt. J. Heyning Vanrenen.

SHIPPING ARRIVALS.

15. Acasta, from Mauritius.

17. Theodosia, from Calcutta.

18. Lord Hungerford, from Calcutta-

- Aber. Robinson, from China. - Paragon, from Mauritius.

19. Gazelle, from New South Water. - H.M. S. Winchester, fr. Trincomalco.

- Whitby, from Calcutta.

20. Lydie, from Mauritius. - Prince George, from Manila.

Atlantique, from Maurithus. 22. William Lockerby, from Liverpool

- Barretto Junior, from Madras.

February.

6. Reform from Downs.

7. Rippomenes, from Falmouth.

9. Muuster, from Rio.

10. Joseph and Victor, from Mauritius.

11. Ulivia, from Sydnoy. 13. Permel, from Downs.

14. Orissa, from Singapore. — Minerva, from Batavia. Earl Grey, from Mauritius. 16. Semiramis, from Falmouth.

20. Salus, from Liverpool.

- Duchess of Northumberland fr. Plym. - H. M.'s S. Hyfeinth, from Portsm.

21. Globe, from Torbay.

 Rosalind, from China and Halifax. - H. M.'s S. Triton, from Plymouth.

22. Boyne, from Bombay. Larles Carter, from Rio. - Jane Blain, from Downs. 25. Apprentico, from Mauritius.

27. Time, from Mauritius. Hero, from St. Helena.

28. Royal George, from Madras.  ${\it March}.$

3. Arab, from Mauritins. — Kerswell, from ditto.

5. Isabella, from China. 6. Velot, from Downs.

7. H.M.'s S. Melville, from Portsmouth.

9. Orontes, from Downs. 10. Jane, from Leith.

— Thomas Laurie, from ditto.

11. Sarah Baker, from Manilla.

— Trusty, from Falmouth. - Seymour, from Downs. 15. Mary and Jane, ditto.

— Meldon, from Mauritius.

February.

4. Transit, for Van Diemen's Land.

SHIPPING DEPARTURES.

8. Patriot, for Colombo.

9. Moifatt, for Hobart Town.

— Briton, for Chiua.

— Pylades, (H. M. B.) for St. Helena

11. Heber, for Cowes. London, for Bombay. Hippomenes, for Batavia.

--- Orissa, for London. - Hopo, for Whaling. 17. Franklyn, for ditto.

— Clorinda, for Batavia. 19. Emily, for Liverpool. 21. Resource, for London.

— Earl Grey, for ditto. 22. David Scott, for Madras & Calcutta.

24. Warwick, for London.

27. H. C. S. Semiramis, for Bombay March.

1. Boyne, for London.

2. H. M. S. Hyacinth, for India.

3. Duchess of Northumb., for Sydney. 4. H. M. S. Triton, for Butavia.

6. Kerswell, for Cork.

7. Royal George, for Lendon.

9. Jason, for Whaling.

13. Sarah Baker, for Singapore.

— Leonidas, for London. — Isabella, for Cork. — Jane, for Hobart Town.

15. Trusty, for South Australia.

17. Seymour, for Mauritius.

18. Acasta, for London. - Orontes, for Sydney. 20. Parrock, for Ceylon.

- Paragon, for Bristol. 21. Hero, for London.

22. Olivia, for Mauritius.

- Thomas Laurie, for V. D. Land.

HOME INTELLIGENCE.

PROCEEDINGS IN PARLIAMENT - DENIAL OF MR. TURTON'S APPOINTMENT AS LEGAL ADVISER TO LORD DURHAM. (April 27.) In the House of Lords, Lord Winchilsea enquired of Lord Melbourne, whether it was true that Mr. Turton had been appointed as legal adviser to Lord Durham who was about to proceed to Canada, and whether Mr. Turton was the individual, who three or four years ago stood at the bar of their Lordship's house as a party in a case of adultery. Lord Melbourno said, "that no legal adviser had been appointed, and on reconsideration, it was not deemed necessary to make such an appointment. On the 30th April, Lord Winchilsea renewed the question of Mr. Turtou's appointment, and by a speech > of a severe character, clicited from Lord Melbournc, that no situation whatsoever had been offered to the gentleman alluded to, and if that gentleman had gone out to Canada, he had gone without any appointment whatsoever, without the prospect of any appointment, and without any intention, as far as the Government was aware, on the part of the Earl of Durham, whom he accompanied, to appoint him to any public situation. Courts in China. (April 30.)-Lord Palmerston obtained leave to bring in a Bill to establish Courts in China. Idolatrous Worship. (May 4th.).—Gen. Sharpo presented a petition praying, that the Christian scryants of Government in India might be excused from participating in the religious ceremonies of Hindoostan. Hill Coolies. (May 15.)—In the House of Lords a bill was brought in by Lord Glenelg, at this date, and read a first time, for the protection of labourers migrating from the East Indics to the West Indies. The Felonry, in Van Diemen's Land. (May 22.)—Mr. Warburton, in the absence of Mr. Humc, moved for a return of the number of persons who have been sentenced to death, and of the number who have been executed in Van Diemen's Land, in each year, since these colonies have been made a penal settlement, to the year [1838, distinguishing the classes of capital offences, &c.; similar returns for the colony of New South Wales agreed to. India Protection Bill. (May 22.)—The India protection bill was forwarded a stage at this date.

Idolatry in India-Mr. Robert Nelson's Magnanimity.-Mr. Poynd( has communicated to the Times, of May the 7th, the fact of Mr. Robert Nelson, Madras civil service, having had the moral courage to resist. although to his serious personal injury, the exacting so unrighteensly required of its servants, by the Court of Directors, of doing homage to idolatrous rites in India. "Rather than bow down to them that are no gods, this gentleman has resolved to throw up a civil appointment of considerable value, choosing rather to serve God than apostatize from his religious profession, by rendering homege to base and senseless idols." By the correspondence which Mr. Poynder has published in the Times, as having passed between Mr. Nelson and the Secretary of the India House, it appears, that the former in February last, requested that the Secretary would inform him whether. "the covenant he had entered into with the East India Company rendered it imperative on him to accept and undertake any office the Madras Government (under which he served) might think fit to appoint him to, according to the usages of the service; and Mr. Nelson, in his letter, says "In soliciting this information I refer principally to certain offices connected with the idolatry of the country, which I could not feel at liberty to hold." The secretary replied as follows: "I am commanded to inform you that the Court has seen with surprise that an officer of your standing can entertain any doubt of its being imperative on you to accept and undertake any office which the Government may think fit to appoint you to, without any exception or reservation whatever." Whereupon Mr. Nelson, with a zeal which few men, however righteous, would think of imitating, throws up his valuable appointment in these extraordinary words: "The instructions of the Lord Jesus Christ are to keep myself from idols, and to flee from idolatry. The East India Company require me to unite myself with idols, taking part in their worship by assisting others therein. As I profer to follow the Lord Jesus Christ, I must renounce the service of the Company, which I therefore now do. I have accordingly to request that my name may be struck out of the list of civil servants on the Madras Establishment; all the privileges of which station I hereby resign, &c., &c., &c., (Signed) Robert Nelson.

MELANCHOLY DEATH OF A STUDENT OF HAYLEVAR'S COLLEGE.—On Saturday the 5th May, Mr. Robert Beatson, a student of the above College, and son of the late Colonel Beatson, of the East India Company's service, met with his death by drowning, having become affected with the cramp whilst bathing in the river Lea, near the Rye House, in company with three other students. Mr. Beatson, who was an excellent swimmer, was suddenly seen to sink after having been in the river about ten minutes; his friends thought he had dived, but as he did not appear again, they dived after him, but ineffectually, the mater being ten feet deep. The body was not found till nearly four hours afterwards. Every exertion was made to recover animation, but without success. He Beatson was only eighteen years of ago, and was deemed at the College a most promising student.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF MADRAS, We hear that Sir Jasper Nicholls, goes out to Madras as Commander-in-Chief. •

NAYTI THE NEW ZEALAND CHIEF.—On the 10th of May, the New Zealand Chief, Nayti, was introduced to the Judges in the Central Criminal Court, by the Halswell, Esq., Deputy Lieutenant and Magistrate, of Middlesex. He sat upon the bench in the Old Court for some time, and paid great attention to the proceedings. In the evening he dired with the Judges, &c.

DINNER TO COLONEL GAWLER.—The gentlemon interested in the Colony of South Australia, gave a farewell dinner to the Governor, Colonel Gawler, on World-nesday, the 23d May.

Sir John Herschell (May 17).—Sir John Herschell and his lady have arrived from the Cape of Good Hope, where he has been on an astronomical mission of great importance to the interests of science.

THE HON. EAST INDIA COMPANY'S MUSEUM.—The Court of Directors have resolved to open their museum gratuitously to the public from 1st June.

THE LATE GOVERNOR OF CEYLON.—Sir R. W. Horton arrived at Fulmouth per the Braganza Steamer, on May 10th.

Colonel Barr.—Colonel Barr, of the Bombay Army, engaged in making improvements in the communication between Suez and Cairo, has arranged, it appears, for three carriages (omnibus-like, but to admit of being thrown open at the top) to be in readiness for the passengers of the October steamer; also for the half-way house and mule station, the expense of the whole not to exceed the funds at his disposal, (£2000 from the Bombay Steam Fund Committee). Colonel Barr states, also, "that if the Pasha built the house, &c., it will leave us £500 disposal for the fun-provement of the conveyance, tank, or buildings, as may be required."

THE DRAMA—HAYMARKET THEATRE.—Mr. Webster has commenced his second season at this Theatre, renovating both the interior and exterior. It is altogether most elegantly fitted up and with every view to personal comfort. We lately witnessed the representation of the Hunchback here, and found this fine Play ally personated. Mr Knowles was the Master Walter; a now actor, (Mr. E. Glover,) the son of Mrs. Glover, respectably sustained Sir Thomas Clifford. Although apparently well educated, and possessing considerable histrionic experience, he did not appear to us sufficiently well advanced in the profession to grapple with the higher range of Diamatic characters. But he is likely to profit much by Town practice. Miss Elphinstone (a pupil of Sheridan Knowles',) personated Julia, with more than ordinary ability. This lady is what may be termed petite in figure, but there is much command and grace in her deportment. She evidently possesses a superior mind for Dramatic studies, and we angur much for her future fame. A Miss Cooper also made a successful debut here lately; as "a light comedy" Actress. she is perfectly au fait. Upon a subsequent visit wo witnessed Weak Points, a new Farce, by Buckstone, which is the most laughter-moving production that over excited our risibility. Doubtless, this Farce will keep possession of the Haymarket stage throughout the season. Buckstone himself and Webster arc decidedly great in it. Celeste's Cachuca Dance, her fine acting in St. Mary's Eve, and in Susanne, (a new and ingonious Farce,) the principal feature of which is a dumb girl (Celeste) tend to crowd the house nightly.

ASTLEY'S AMPHITHEATRS.—The equestrian entertainments of this Theatre headed by that classical and experienced horseman, Mr. Ducrow, are conducted in so superior a style, that we do not wonder at the fact of most of our nability and gentry (particularly the military partion) frequently patronising these amusements. The usual Dramatic department is also as well conducted as in any other London Theatre. If we speak of the pageantry, indeed Ducrow far surpasses his compeers.

To l'arties processione to India.—With all the promptness and decision, and all the kindly qualities of the Captains of East India Ships, surely are they often puzzled how to employ the time, occupy the mind, and keep health and happiness in the female portion of their passengers, the more particularly the young, who are intrusted to their especial and only care, and our attention has been drawn to this subject, one of great interest to Parents, Guardians, the ladies thomselves, and society at large, from an advertisement in this number, from a lady who proposes to undertake such a charge, either to one or more young ladies, who may be destined for a voyage to Calcutta. It is evident if the necessary qualifications can be found in any lady, that the advantages are so much more than commensurate with the expense of the lady's passage, at to be an object both for the parties and their friends and the Captains themselves; instruction without coercion, a freer exercise of the body than the Captain can give his time for, blended with systematic amusement must conduce to a more healthy state; one of peculiar argument on a long voyage without interest or necessary occupation; add to these advantages that of care and attention in ease of sickness and the comfort of a married lady's advice to the young and timid female, just entering the world and changing her life. and climate, away from all friends and relations. We cannot too strongly recommend the advertisement to our numerous readers in both hemispheres.

HER MAJESTY'S FORCES IN THE EAST.

4th Dragoons (Bombay), Cornet G. Rochford, to be Lieutenant by purchase, v. Jones, retired. G. Jacob, Gent, to be Cornet by purchase, v. Rochford. Lieut. C. P. Ibbetson, to be Adj., v. Gossett, who resigns the adjutancy only. April 28.

39th Foot (Madras), Capt. W. Wood, 69th Foot, to be Captain, v. T. II.

Kirkley, retired, h. p., unatt., receiving the difference. May 4th.

80th Foot (New South Wales), Lieut. A. Stewart, 6th Dragoon Guards, to be Lieut., v. Hawkins, who exchanges. May 4.

2d Foot (Bombay), Ensign J. McDonald, from 84th Foot, the Licut., without purchase, v. Mackenzie, cashiered. May 11.

44th Foot (Bengal), Lieut. E. Fennell, from h. p., 20th Foot, to be Lieut., v.

Stuart, app. to 7th Foot. May 11.

62d Foot (Madras), Ensign G. J. Fulton, to be Lieut. by purchase, v. E. Scopbell, who retires. Sergeant J. Dane, 57th Foot, to be Ens. by purchase, v. Fulton. May 11.

91st Foot (St. Helena), Ensign H. I. Savage, to be Lieut. by purchase, v. A. Campbell, who retires. F. F. Stokes, Gent., to be Ens. by purchase, v. Savage.

May 11.

12th Foot (Mauritius), Lieut. J. M. Perceval, to be Capt. by purchase, v. Elwes, retired. Ensign C. Simeon, to be Lieut. by purchase, v. Perceval. J. Marcon, Gent., to be Ens. by purchase, v. Simeon. May 18.

20th Foot (Bengal), Ensign J. Rodgers, to be Lieut. by purchase, v. Lynch, who retires. R. P. Sharp, Gent., to be Ens. by purchase, v. Rodgers. May 18.

27th Foot (Cape), Ensign Λ. V. Watson, to be Lieut. by purchase, v. Jones, retired. J. T. Cox, Gent., to be Ens. by purchase, v. Watson. May 18.

44th Foot (Bengal), Ens. F. S. Cumberland, to be Lieut. by purchase, v. Fennell, retired. E. T. Roberts, Gent., to be Ens. by purchase, v. Cumberland. May 18.

9th Foot (Bengal), Ens. R. G. Morgan, to be Lieut. by purchase, v. Crocket, retired; G. L. Thomas Gent, to be Ens. by purchase, v. Morgan. May 25.

12th Foot (Mauritius), Lieut. H. D. Fanshatv, half pay unat., to be Lieut.,

v. J. Thompson, who exe. May 25.

dec.; Gent., Cadet D. M'Coy from Royal Military College, to be Ens., v. Frend. May 25.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE. 19

ARRIVALS FROM EASTERN PORTS.

| Date            | Ship's Name.                      | Commandan                | Port of Descrit | When Saithe                |
|-----------------|-----------------------------------|--------------------------|-----------------|----------------------------|
| Apr 97 1839     | Slains Castle                     | Patria                   | China           | 15th Dan                   |
| 11 pr. 21 1000  | Richard Bell                      | Dogge                    | Ditto           | Little dieta               |
| 20              | John o'Gaunt                      | Dakastean                | Tritte          | Win Inniana                |
| ου ,            | Olloone                           | Mamaran                  | Rombar          | om vanusty,Očel Ilas   |
| .,              | Orleana                           | Main                     | Culoatto        | 2000 1700.[61]: 3574   |
|                 | Adam Lodgo                        |                          |                 |                            |
|                 | Asia                              |                          |                 |                            |
|                 | Frances Anne                      |                          |                 |                            |
| ,               | Bengalec                          | Hamlin                   | Calcutta        | tom anto.                  |
|                 | Perthshire                        | Jameson                  | Ditto           | 13th ditto.                |
|                 | Ariel                             | Strickland               | Wherms          |                            |
| taren.          | Frances                           | Heath                    | Boinbay         | 2nd January.               |
| 2               | Kitty                             | King                     | Timor           | 15th Angust                |
|                 | Advocate                          | Wilkinson .              | Mauritins       | 13th January.              |
| 4 .             | Tory                              | Reid                     | Bombay          | 5th Dec.                   |
| 11              | Duke of Bedford                   | Bowen                    | Calcutta        | 7th January.               |
| 14              | Blorenge                          | Banks                    | Ditto           | 27th Dec.                  |
|                 | Princess Charlotte                | Sproulo                  | Bombay          | 17th Jan.                  |
| 15 🛎            | Malabar                           | Bax                      | Ditto           | 8th ditto.                 |
|                 | Madras                            | Quinton                  | Ceylon          | 26th Dec.                  |
| ٠  ا | Ingleboro'                        | Ricketts                 | China           | 27th ditto.                |
|                 | Brothers                          |                          |                 |                            |
|                 | Earl Grey                         |                          |                 |                            |
|                 | Atlas                             | Hunt                     | Ditto           | 10th Feb.                  |
|                 | Penyard Park                      | Middleton                | Ditto           | 27th Jan.                  |
|                 | Wellington                        | $\operatorname{Liddell}$ | Madras          | 17th ditto                 |
|                 | True Briton                       | Beach                    | Ditto           | 24th ditto.                |
|                 | Windsor                           | Henning                  | Calcutta        | 17th ditto.                |
|                 | GilmoreChildren               | Lindsay                  | Bombay          | 14th ditto.                |
|                 | Children                          | Browne                   | Hobart Town     | 13th ditto.                |
|          | Urania                            | Noakes                   | Bombay          | 5th ditto.                 |
| 17              | London                            | Wimble                   | Calcutta        | 11th ditto.                |
|                 | Boyne                             | Richardson               | Bombay          | 12th ditto.                |
|                 | George the Fourth                 | Drayner                  | China           | 10th ditto.                |
|                 | John Knox                         | Thompson .               | Bombay          | 21st ditto.                |
|                 | Ann                               | Griffith                 | Manna           | 25th Dec.                  |
| *            | Jane Brown                        | Dunlop                   | China           | 12th January.              |
| 18              | Warwick                           | Little                   | Ceylon          | 13th 17ee.                 |
| ) = T           | Rajasthan                         | Hitchio                  | China           | 12th January               |
|                 | Rapid                             | Uassic                   | Maurinus        | our reornary.              |
| 19              | Royal George                      | Ationaras                | Carrita         | grad grove.                |
| Z1              | Thalia (H. M. S.)                 | Campoeu                  | Cape            | Mark Bansson               |
|                 | Sir John Rac Reid                 | Cumming .                | Manritius       | 27 in January.             |
|                 | Resource                          | Smull                    | Cape            | 218t POD.                  |
|                 | Heber                             | Campuen                  | Dillerviti      | din Dec.                   |
|                 | HeberMary AnnOrissa       | Anderson                 | Singapus        | sist ranuary.              |
| 99              | Ulissa                            | Taller                   | Calcutta        | DUI 1700.DOM Tarakanes |
| 24              | MountSt.ElphinstonElphinstone | Tuesdin                  | Unional Town    | asu Januar,Oga Traa    |
|                 | Ann                               | Ma Almin                 | Chart Lown      | agu serriItah dista    |
| 93              | Scotia                            | ըստ գորու                | Calculta        | Aigt January               |
| 200             | Cognetto                          | Cook                     | Muscot          | , Landing and              |
|                 | CoquetteEliza Stewart         | Millor                   | China           | 17th ditte                 |
|                 | Luisa                             | Wright                   | Sydney          | Righ Dies                  |
|                 | Draid                             | Ainguarth                | Mauritius       | 9th February               |
|                 | Druid                             | Holows                   | Ditto           | Bih dilia.                 |
|                 | Abere. Robinson                   | Scott                    | China           | 19th January.              |
|                 | ITT DOTO: TO GITTON               | WENEW SETS 1             | THE STREET      |                            |

SHIPPING ARRIVALS CONTINUED.

| Date.           | Skip's Name.   | 1 Commander. | Port of Depart. | When Sailed.   |
|-----------------|----------------|--------------|-----------------|----------------|
| 24              | North Briton   | Fayail       | Sydney          | 9th Jan.       |
|                 | North Briton   | Losk         | Singapore       | 13th ditto.    |
|                 | Emily          | Dunbar       | Calcutta        | 25th October.  |
|                 | Caroline       | Wheeler      | South Seas      |                |
|                 | . Theodosia    | Underwood    | Calcutta        | 13th January.  |
|  ,,, | . Arab         | Sogrkes      | Mauritius       | lith Feb.      |
| 25              | Cygnet         | Rolls        | Launceston      | 24th Nov.      |
|                 | . Glocester    | Brookes      | Mauritius       | 12th February. |
|                 | St. George     | Crawford     | Ditto           | 31st January.  |
|      | . William Wise | Ellis        | New Zealand     |                |
| 26              | Eagle          | Patterson    | Mauritius       | 21st February. |
|  , , .   | . Kerswell     | Haswell      | Ditto           | 1st ditto.     |
|                 | . Isabella     |              |                 |                |
|                 | . Fatima       |              |                 |                |
|                 | Calypso        | Smith        | Mauritius       | Ditto.         |
|                 | ₩ →            |              |                 |                |

DEPARTURES TO EASTERN PORTS.

| Data . [         | Ships' Name.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Commander     |                   | Doctionation         |
|------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------|-------------------|----------------------|
| 1000             | Woutmoreland                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Duineteelr    | Vinestown         | Seelman              |
| Apr. 20 1000     | Westmoreland                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Drigstock     | Zinkstown         | Sydney.              |
|                  | Letitia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Day rote      | Dista             | Pillo.St. Holona |
|                  | Charlotte                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Enterprizo                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Chelydra                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Hindostan                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Louisa Monro                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |               |                   |                      |
| 29               | Queen Mab                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Ma Cildauma   | Thurst '          | Manuiting            |
|                  | Norfolk                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Elizabeth                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | _             |                   |                      |
| 34 0             | York                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Decree 2      | Dardaranakh       | Dia & Cano           |
| May 2            | Lily (H. M. S.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Recycs        | Cortsmount \      | Culoutto             |
|                  | Ida                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Dispatch                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |               |                   |                      |
|                  | John Renwick                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Nautilus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |               |                   |                      |
|                  | SpartanDuke of Lancaster                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Horazoaras    | Lincomposi        | Dombos.              |
|           | Duke of Langaster                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Trargicaves   | Liverpool         | Colombuy.            |
| 4                | Ellen                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Tupp          | Dino              | Madraa               |
| 4                | Orwell                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Down          | INCOME.           | Manniting            |
|           | William Money                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Roughiar      | Dantemonth        | Culmitte.            |
|                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Penang                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |               |                   |                      |
|                  | Woodbridge                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |               |                   |                      |
| 7                | Malay                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Golbroath     | Shiolde           | Mouritine            |
|                  | Childe Harold                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Willia        | Dontemonth        | Domhor               |
| ~                | Sultan                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Doolo         | Cleanmonle        | Eingenere            |
|                  | Malabar                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |               |                   |                      |
|       | Speculator                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Marmor        | Deel              | G Assistantia        |
|                  | Memnon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |               |                   |                      |
|  _,,, | Ceylon                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Chaffee       | Tivernool         | Domoay.              |
|                  | Colombo                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Ma Kallar     | Dortsmouth        | Mad & Cala           |
| 10               | Minerva                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Iroland       | Thisto.           | Madra                |
| 10               | Elvira                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Simpson       | I iverned         | Calcutto             |
|                  | Clyde                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Matches       | Kingstown         | Granou               |
|                  | Canada                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Wieke         | Livernool         | China                |
|                  | Euphrases                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Wilson        | Dieta             | Ditta                |
| 13               | England                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Dog.          | Shields           | Coloutte             |
| 19               | Africaine                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Mc Tagget     | Deel              | id Anatrolia         |
| 12               | Wanderer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Smith         | Ditto             | Maurit & flain       |
|                  | Wanderer                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Kirkus        | Ditto             | Hohart Town          |
|       | Argyll                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Mc Donald     | Ditta             | Cane                 |
| ,                | ASTERNATION OF THE PROPERTY OF | MITO PLOTICAL | APRICA CONTRACTOR | Calib.               |

SHIPPING DEPARTURES CONTINUED.

| Date.        | Ship's Name.Wm. Rodger | Commander: | Port of Depart. | Destination. |
|--------------|----------------------------|------------|-----------------|--------------|
| Mayl4        | Wm. Rodger                 | Hall       | Greenock        | Sydnay,      |
|              | William Metcalfe           | Philipson  | Plymouth        | Ditto.       |
| 15           | Palmyra                    | Parsons    | Deal            | Ditto.       |
|              | Parsee                     |            |                 |              |
|              | W. S. Hamilton             | Brown      | Liverpool       | Penang.      |
|   | St. Vincent                | Muddle     | Deal            | China.       |
| 17           | Lady Fitz-Herbert .        | Ferrier    | Ditto           | Sydney.      |
| 18           | lsabella Cooper            | Currie     | Clyde           | Bengal.      |
| 20           | Crescent                   | Goldie     | Deal            | China.       |
| 21           | Eden                       | Noble      | Ditto           | Sydney.      |
|              | Mayflower                  | Headley    | Ditto           | Hobart Town. |
|              | Caroline                   |            |                 |              |
|              | Amwell                     |            |                 |              |
|              | Caernarvon                 |            |                 |              |
| $24 \ldots$  | Herculean                  | Gundell    | Liverpool       | Bombay.      |
| - | Malcolm                    | Sim        | Ditto           | Batavia.     |
|   | Sunda                      | Greig      | Ditto           | Calcutta.    |
|              | City of London             | Martin     | Deal            | Cape.        |
|              | Blakeley                   |            |                 |              |
| 27    | Alexander Baring           | St. Croix  | Deal            | Canton.      |

VESSELS SPOKEN WITH.

Hector, Liverpool to Bombay, Lat. 5 N., Long. 82 E., Jan 16. Rajah, Leith to New South Wales, Lat. 44, Long. 14., April 19. Crusader, Liverpool to Bombay, Lat. 13, Long. 29, March 16. Edward, Liverpool to Sydney, Lat. 22 S., Long. 29 W., Jan. 21. Malabar, Liverpool to Bombay, off Cape Finisterre, April 28. Abbotsford, Liverpool to Bombay, Lat. 6 N., Long. 83 K., Jan. 20. Kellie Castle, London to Madras, Lat. 3 N., Long. 21, April 3. Maria, London to Sydney, Lat 5, Long. 20, April 6. Indus, London to Calcutta, Lat. 1 S., Long. 19 W., April 10. General Palmer, London to Bombay, Lat. 33 S., Long. 25 W., March 24. Elvira, Liverpool to Calcutta, Lat. 50, Long. 10, May 14. Minerva, London to Madras, Lat. 44, Long. 13, May 17. Strabane, Clyde to Bombay, Lat. 4, Long. 11, May 14. William Rodger, London to Sydney, Lat. 49, Long. 10, May 18. St. George, Calcutta to Bristol, Lat. 16 N., Long. 88 E., Feb. 24. Mary Ann, Liverpool to Calcutta, Lat. 35, Long. 23, March 4.

NAUTICAL INCIDENTS.

Earl Stanhope, New South Wales to London put into Rio, 15th February, dismasted during a heavy gale on the 18th November in lat. 60 8. long. 152 W. Atalanta, (S.) was waiting at Suez, (March 28), for the London mail of 17th

Feb., and would sail 30th, whether the mail arrived or not.

The Blazer, (S.) sailed for Malta, 21st March for Alexandria, and the mail would reach Suez probably on the 29th.

South Australian, (That Company's Whaling Ship) went on shore (Nov. 11) at Encounter Bay in a gale of wind, where she lay bilged after having beaten over a reef of rocks. Strong fears that she cannot be effectually relieved from her situation.

Sir Charles Macarthy, (Brig) South Australia; was sold, (Nov. 11) for the benefit of the underwriters as she lay on the shore in Holdfest Bay, (Mr. Wright purchaser, master of the hired cutter, William,) for about £600, Mr. Wright having got her off, and found her uninjured, fitted her out immediately, and sold her to the Company for the sum (we hear) of £2,000.

Hero, Schooner; parted (17th March) in a heavy south wester from her chains, and went on shore on the sand below the New Jetty, Cape of Good Hope. Afterwards got off and hove down,

Harriet, (Whaler) totally wrecked on 16th July, off the Fejee Islands, with 300 barrels of oil. Crew (except the carpenter) saved.

Governor Bourke arrived at Sydney, Dec. 22, from New Zealand, bringing as pasengers two mates, and three seamen of the schooner. Sydney Packet wrecked a short time previously; also Capt. Gaunson, Mr. Moss, chief officer, and ten seamen of the bark. Lynx, lost 19th Nev. on the coast of New Zealand, in a gale of wind, where she had been for oil. The Captain and crew were saved, but suffered severe privations on the coast for eight days.

Louisa, Sydney to London, (sailed 2d Dec.) touched on the coast, to ropair damages, having lost rudder.

Mary, London to Hobart Town, put into Lisbon, leaky on 26th April; must discharge part of cargo.

PASSENGERS INWARDS.

Per Berenice, (S.) 30th March from Bombay to Suez.—Earl and Countess of Cardigan; Hon. W. L. Melville, C. S.; J. Elliott, Esq.; Lieut. W. W. Powel, H. M's. 9th Regiment; Capt. Halcs, Dr. Fraser, Capt. Long, 20th N. I., Ardascor Cursetjee.

Per Cornwall from Calcutta (expected).—Mesdames Mc Leod, Burney, Agnew, Stewart, Bell; P. M. Mc Leod, Esq., C. S.; Cols. Faithfull, F. Walker, Burney Harris; Dr. Murray, Lieut. Z. N. Mallock, J. Bonnaffic, Esq., J. Tosh, Esq., C. R.

Martin, Esq., Mons. Auben, Miss Lawrence, Miss Bell, and five masters.

Per Royal Saxon, from Calcutta (expected).—Mesdames Renner, Singer and children, Parker ditto, Miss Bradshaw; Capt. Singer, J. P. Parker, Esq., Master

Dyer.

Per Buckinghamshire, from Bombay (expected).—Mesdames Osborne, Waddell and child; Crocket and three children; Waterfield and three ditto; Woodhouse and two ditto; Shadforth and two ditto; Miss M. Osborne; General Osborne; Capts. Waterfield, Woodhouse, Shadforth, H. M's. 57th Regt.; Saunderson's child; Dr. Butchart, Capt. Bulkley's two children; Lient. Owen, 11th Madras N. 1., Jehangire Nerwanjee; Rev. Mr. Rosen, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Rosen and four children, Dr. Mc Donnell, H. M's. 57th Regt., and three children.

Per Symmetry, from Ceylon (expected).—Capt. and Mrs. Charleton and son, Mrs. Rugger and son, Mr. Sharman.

Per Mary Anne, from Madras (expected).—Mesdaines Blenkinsop, Gray, George Trevor, Godfrey, Croggan, Dr. Godfrey, Revs. — Græme, Blenkinsop, Deane, Goorge, Capt. Gray, Mr. Lovelle, Mr. Burry, Lieuts. Croggan, Faulkner, Julius, Donovan; various children.

Per Thos. Grenville, from Calcutta (expected).—Sir C. and Lady D'oyley, J. Dewar, Esq., C. S., G. Adams, Esq., C. S., Mr. and Mrs Adams, Capt. Adams, Lieut. Rhind.

Per Wellington. Left at Cape, from Madras; Mrs. Smith; Major Fryer; Capts. Chalmers and A. Gordon, and Master Chalmers. From the Cape, Mesdaines Hamilton, Rutherford, and Bellamy; Capt. Robertson, Art.; J. E. Rutherford, Esq.; Dr. Laing; Mr. Syme; 9 children.

Per True Briton. From the Cape, Mrs. Capt. Hammond, Miss and Master

Hammond; L. Twentyman, Esq.; J. Chisholm, Esq.

Per Tigris, from Ceylon, (expected).—Hon. Mrs. Granville and family; Mrs. Arbuthnot; Mrs. Browning; Mrs. Wright and children; Mrs. Rodney and child; Miss Jeremy; Hon. Mr. Granville; Col. Arbuthnot; Rev. Mr. Browning; Mr. and Mrs. Walker, and two children; Lieut. Caldwell, 90th reg.

Per Victoria, from Bombay, (expected).—Mr. John Biddle.

Per Bombay Packet, from Bombay; (expected).—Mrs. Boyd, and three children; Lieut. Snell.

Per Elora, from Bombay, (expected).—G. Hay, Bsq.

Per Aliques, from Bombay, Lieut.-Col. Morrison, Mrs. Morrison, Mr. Jefferson, and three children; Dr. Burrell.

Per A. Robinson, from China.—J. R. Reeves, Esq. From the Cape.—Mr. A. Oliphant, Miss Rivers; Master Ollphant.

Per Theodosia, from Calcutta.—Mr. and Mrs. Tomlin and four children; Mr. and Mrs. Edwards.

Per Paragon, from Mauritius, Mr. and Mrs. Twentyman; Mr. Walker and child.

Per Gazelle from Sydney to Cape, Mr. and Mrs. Leese; Miss Hill; Mr. Whitfield, 2 children.

Per Samuel Winter, from Sydney for England, via Valparaiso, (expected)—Tim Excellency Sir R. Bourke; Capt. Williams, A. D. C.; Dr. Ochorne, R. N.

Per General Kyd, from China.—Mesdames Flood, Edwards; Mr. J. Mackennie.

Per Sophia, from China.—Mrs. P. Alleyn; two Misses Mc Nair; Casar Chine; Sir J. Ida Costa 6 Armaral, and Lady, late judge of Macao; Sir N. F. Pereira, lady, and family.

Per Duke of Argyle, from Madras (expected)—additional passengers, Miss Mourier, Master Mourier, (to Tranquebar) Mrs. Ashton, W. Ashton.

Per Richmond, from Bengal, (expected)—Mesdames Tritten, Pegg; Misses Roope, Burney; Col. Roope, 19th B. N. I., Major Burney, Bengal Army; J. W. McLeod, Esq., — Harris, Esq.; Dr. Tritton; T. Pegg, Esq.; Capt. W. Smith, 19th B. N. I.; Lt. Grant, H. M.'s 44th foot; Five Misses Tritton; Muster Tritton; Lieut. Daniel, H. M.'s 3d Buffs. (with detach. 13th L. D. and 16th Foot.).

PASSENGERS OUTWARDS.

Per John Maclellan, for Sydney, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Lambton and 2 children; Mr. and Mrs. Robertson; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis; Mr. Jonathan Hoarder; Mr. and Mrs. Atwood and child; Mr. and Mrs. Rees, and 2 children; Mr. J. Jones; Mr. T. Jones; Mr. and Mrs. Graham, and 2 children; Mr. Hamley; Mr. Plummer; Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, and 4 children; Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, and 3 children; Miss Fletcher; Mr. Skinner. Steerage Passengers—21 mon, 21 women, and 26 children.

Per Colombo, for Calcutta .- Mrs. Bimfield; Capt. and Mrs. Whitlock; Capt.

and Mrs. Morris; Miss Morris; Capt. Pillowe; Mr. Eden Northmore.

Per Asia, to Madras and Calcutta.—Licut. and Mis. Stokes; Mr., Mrs. and Miss Tapp; Mrs. Disant; Miss Williams; Mr. Audaine; Ens. Baldwin; Ens. Campbell; Ens. Grazbrook; Ens. Moorshead; Assist.-Snrg. Hunter; Dr. Curvio; Mr. Wilson; Mr. Blake; Mr Thornhill; Mr. Cechrane; Mr. Heywood; Mr. Cunningham; Mr. Nichol; Licut. Leacock; Licut. Jackson; Mr. E. C. Gardner; Mr. Scott; Mrs. Stone; Mr. F. Edward; Dr. Murray; Mr. Whiteway; Mr. Bown; Mr. Whitfield; Mr. Hedger; Mr. Martin. Steerage—Mr. Miller; Mr. Kempser; Mr. Tiver.

Per Minerva, for Madras.—Col. and Mrs Parke,; Mrs. Lavin; Mrs. Macfarline; Mrs. Mackenzie; Miss Tulloch; Miss Rippon, (2): Miss Logan, (2); Miss Hoare; Miss Young; Miss Hall; Capt. Bell; Mr. Mackenzie; Mr. Langley; Miss Harris; Mr. Moir; Mr. Green; Mr. Campbell; Mr. Free; Mr. Ayah.

MARRIAGES AND DEATHS.

MARRIAGES.

April 23.—At St. Paul's Chapel, A. B. Kerr, Esq., Madras Rifles, second son of the late Major-General T. W. Kerr, to Jane, eldest daughter of the late Major-General, and the Right Hon. Lady Charlotte M. Macgregor, granddaughter of the late, and niece to the present Earl of Caithness.

24. At Weston Church, Lieut.-Col. J. Home, E. I. C.'s service, to Susan, eldest daughter of C. Batsford, Esq., of Weston, Somersetshire.

— At St. James's, Westminster, J. K. Ewart, Esq., Bengal C. S., to Georgiana, eldest daught. of the Rev. E. Repton.

24. At Monkstown Church, Assis.surg. A. Andrew, M. D., of the Hon. E.
I. C.'s Madras Army, to Anna Maria, cldest daughter of the late B. II. Grierson, Esq., of Kingstown.

25. At Fulham, T. P. Fenner, Esq., Juu., B. A., of Queen's College, Cambridge, to Mary Ann, youngest daughter of the late G. O. Ross, Esq., of the Cupe of Good Hope

Oriental Herald-Vol. 1,-No. VI.

May 1.—At Dublin, T. Pakeuham, Esq., late of the Bengal Civ. Serv., to Sarah, relict of W. Johnston, Esq., of H. M.'s 51st L. 1.

16. At Islington, C. Wilkluson, M. D., of Charemont-square, New Road to Janet, third daughter of the late J. Gilmour, Esq., M. D., of the E. I. C.'s serv.

23. At Ipswich, Capt. II. Hurkness, Madras Army, to Elizabeth, daughter of

E. Bacon, Esq., of Ipswich. 24. At Chertsey, D. Brakenridge, M.D.

of Perth, to Anna, widow of the late Lieut. B. T. Giraud, Madras N. 1.

Isately, at St. Pancras, Rev. J. Gall, of Maida Hill, to Charlotte, relict of the late J. Andrew, Esq., of Bengal.

Lately, at Dittisham, Devon, Capt. Hockin, E. I. C.'s serv., to Augusta, only da. of the late Capt. Montague, of Bath. Lately, at Bathwick, H. Brownlow, Esq., Bengal Civ. Sorv., brother of the Right Hon. C. Brownlow, to Louisa, daughter of P. Kirwan, of Cregg, county Galway, Esq.

DEATIIS.

March 13.—At New Orleans, Mr. C. G. Bowring, eldest son of Mr. J. G. Bowring, of Loudon.

April 25.—At his villa, Lansdown, W. W. Massic, Esq., late of the Bengal

C. S., aged 70.

26. Helen, eldest daughter of Wm. Ainslie, Esq., of Calcutta, aged 17 years and 9 months.

27. In Arlington-street, Sir Richard Carr Glyn, Bart., in his 84th year.

28. At 26, Eaton-square, John Gover,

Esq., late of Macao.

29. Mary Ann Turner, of Lewisham, Kent, the only daughter of R. Turner, Esq., of Canton, aged 18.

May 2.—In Crawford-street, Mrs. C.

Simpson, first married to Lieut.-Col. J. Edwards, E. I. C.'s Bongal Serv, then to J. Simpson, Egg., of Lloyd's.

— At Tower Garden, Tain, Scotland, Capt. D. H. Mackenzie, H. E. I. C. S., Mad. art.

13. In Clarges-street, Zachary Macaulay, Esq., aged 71.

19. At Thames Ditton, Lieut.-Gen. Sir J. Brown, K. C. B., of E. I. C.'s

Bengal Army.

23. On Woolwich Common, the widow of Col. Sir Aretas W. Young, Licut.-Governor of Prince Edward Island, and daughter of the late J. Cox, of Coolcliffe, Wexford, Esq.

Lately, at Milan, Mrs. M. Starke, of Exmouth, aged 76, (she was the eldest daughter of the late R. Starke, Esq., many years Governor of Fort St. George, Madras.)

— At Dinah, Brittany, R. I. II. Clarke, Esq., nephew to the above, and son of the late Lieut.-Col. Starke.

1)

Money Market and Commercial Intelligence.

CALCUTTA, 17th March, 1838.

H. M.'s Treasury, 30 days st.  $\mathfrak{P}$  C. R. 1s.  $10\frac{1}{4}$ d.  $\mathfrak{A}$  1s.  $10\frac{1}{6}$ d. Rl. Bank Scotland, 30 days st.  $\mathfrak{P}$  " 1s.  $10\frac{1}{6}$ d. " 1s.  $10\frac{1}{6}$ d. " 1s.  $10\frac{1}{6}$ d. " 1s.  $10\frac{1}{6}$ d. " 1s.  $10\frac{1}{6}$ d.

FREIGHTS a shade higher sinec our last quotation.

Indigo.—Purchases checked from accounts $\mathscr{P}$ overland mail.

RAW SILK.—Shows no change since our last.

Corron.—Market extremely dull.

SALTPETRE.—Prices given way about 4 to 6 as. of md. on our last quotations.

Sugar.—In limited enquiry.

LAC DYE.—Prices show a decline.

OPIUM.—No riso in prices expected. A collision between those employed in the sale of the drug at Whampoa and the Government, seemed inevitable.

EUROPEAN GOODS.—Generally as in our last.

MADRAS, 21st March, 1838.

| GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.                                      |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|
| 5 per Cent Non Remit. Loan of 1825, Rs. 1 to 5 Prem.        |
|                                                             |
| 4 per Cent Old and New " J Discount.                        |
| Taniore Bonds                                               |
| Exchanges.—Bills on London, 6 months 1s. 101d. @ 2s. 1d.    |
| 3 months 1s. 10½d. " 2s. 0¼d.                               |
| Bombay, 30 days Rs. 98. a 102.  Bombay, 30 days "99. a 101. |
| Bombay, 30 days " 99. a 101.                                |
| Sovereigns "10½ a 10½ cach.                                 |

FREIGHT TO LONDON.—Dead weight, £3. Light Goods, £5. per ton (numinal.) Corron.—Market without enquiry.

Indigo. — Sales limited in Southward produce, varying from 1-8 to 1-12 per lb.

Sugar.—Not varied since our last, and in limited demand.

SALTPETER. -- Prices without alteration.

Piece Goors.—Market dull.

GOVERNMENT SECURITIES .-

stated in our last.

METALS.—Sales effecting, on the increase.

European Goods.—Continue in very limited enquiry, and sales could not be effected unless at a decline under invoice cost, and nothing of interest has occurred to warrant a quotation; a few puncheons and hogsheads of good brandy realized last week 3s. 6d. to 3s. 8d. per gallon, and in fair request; several invoices of glassware, confectionary, oilmansfores, carthenware, perfumery, &c., have from the want of purchasers found their way to the Commission and Auction Male Rooms, to effect sales ere the market become overstocked with further supplies, by the expected ships from England, France, &c.

BOMBAY, 30TH MARCH, 1838.

5 per Cent. loan of 1825-26. No. 1151 to 15.200, Rs. 1087 a 112

| o Lor course town or rose sol with the roll of will                                  |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| $\frac{1829-30}{111\frac{1}{3}}$ " $\frac{111\frac{1}{3}}{112}$                      |
| 4 per Cent. loan of 1832-33, ———————————————————————————————————                     |
| 4 − − − − − − − − − − − − − − − − − − −                                       |
| 5 per Ct. tr. loan of 1831-35, "1173" 118                                            |
| Exchanges.—Bills on London, 6 mo. sight 2s. 05d. "2s.                                |
|                                                                                      |
| ——— Calcutta, 30 days st Ćo.'s Rs. 103 " 1031                                        |
| —— Madras, 30 days st 4 983 " 99                                                     |
| Spanish dollars                                                                      |
| FREIGHT to England, rather lower rates have been submitted to.                       |
| To Liverpool have been done at £4 15s. per ton.                                      |
| To China                                                                             |
| Corron.—Competition for the finer sorts is likely to enhance prices; of the ordinary |
| growth they are more likely to give way than be maintained.                          |
| Orium Operations extremely limited. Only 2 chests have been experted between         |
| the 7th and 21st instant. The passes sold amount to 7,231 chests, while at a         |
| corresponding period last year 18,000 had been taken out.                            |
| EUROPEAN GOODS.—English Bar Iron, on our returns we find a sale of 750 candies.      |
| Rs. 38, per candy; Swedish, ditto. Supplies have been moderate, and prices           |
|                                                                                      |

SYDNEY, 8TH JANUARY, 1837.

do not improve. Allsop's Beer, 50 hlids, have been sold for Rs 80, per libel. Supply of all kinds has been small for some months. Most other articles as

WHOLESALE PRICES.

European Goods.—Brandy, first quality, 4s. 9d. a 5s. 6d. per gal.; Rum, B. P. proof, 3s. 8d. a 3s. 10d.; Strong, 30 O. P. 5s. 9d. a 6s. 9d.; Gin, untinged, 4s. 3d. a 5s. 6d.; Straw coloured, 2s. a 3s. 3d.; Case, 4 gals., £1. 5s. a £1. 7s. 6d. — Wiess Port, best, per pipe, £50. a £60.; per doz. £1. 12s. a £1. 15s.; Sherry, best, per butt, £10. a £50.; per doz. £1. 5s. a £1. 10s; Madeira, per pipe, £30. a £45.; per doz. £1. 5s. a £1 10s.; Teneriffe, per pipe, £20.; per doz. £5s.; Change pagne, sparkling, £3. 5s. a £4.; Pink, £3. 5s. a £4.—Ales—Bass' Burton, per bar. 36 gal., £6. 6s. a £6. 10s.; Hodgson's pale, per hhd., £8. a £9.; Taylor's strong pale, £8. a £9.; Hastings, £8. a 9.; Ashby's £6. 10s. a £7.; Dunbar's, in bottle, per doz. 15s. a 18s.; Other Brewers' 10s. a 11s.—Porter, Taylor's, per lhd., £9. a £10.; Barelay's, £8. a £8. 8s.; Elliot's, £8. a £8. 10s.; Dunbar's, in bottle, per doz., 15s. a 18s.; other samples, 10s. a 11s.—Metals—Iron bar, assorted, per ton £12. a £14.; Hoop, ditto, £14. a £15.; Nail, ditto, £11. a £13.; Pig, ditto, £7. a £9.; Lead, sheet, per ton, £32. a £35.; Pig, ditto, £9. a £11.; Oil, Sperm-whale, per tun, imp., £55. a £60.; Black, ditto, ditto, ditto, £12. a 15.; Oil Butts, new London made, £4. 4s. a £4. 10s.; Liverpool, ditto, £3. 10s. a £4.; Rope, per ton. £28. a £40.; Liverpool Salt, per ton, £4. 10. a £4. 14s.; Soap, Hawes' London, per ton, £40. a £42.; Liverpool, ditto, £36. a £38.; Starch, per lb., 6d.; Tobacco, Negrohead, per lb., 2s. 6d. a 8s.; Tin Plates, I. C., per box, £2. a £2. 5s.

LAMB & PARBURY, MERCHANTS & AGENTS.

LONDON, 28th May, 1838.

STOCKS AND SHARES.

|   | Bengal 5 & Cent Transfer Loan registered at the East India House |
|---|------------------------------------------------------------------|
|   | India Stock                                                      |
|   | Do. Bonds to be renewed 30th June, 63s. a 66s. Prem.             |
| 0 | Do do. to be paid off 30th June, 2s. a 3s. "                     |
|   | East India Dock Stock                                            |
|   | Australasian Banking Company£40 paid £71. per share.             |
|   | Do. Do 30 " 49.                                                  |
|   | Union Bank of Australia 7# " 114.                                |
|   | Australian Agricultural Company 27 45.                           |
|   | Van Diemen's Land Company 17 " 111.                              |

LATEST DATES FROM INDIA, &c

| y    |   | Overland.   |                                 |
|-------------|---|-------------|---------------------------------|
| Calcutta    |   | 18th March  | W. S. Elphinstone, 22d January. |
| Madras      |   |             | True Briton, ditto, ditto.      |
| Bombay      |   | 30th ditto  | John Knox, 21st ditto.          |
| Ceylon      |   |             | Madras, 1st ditto.              |
| China       |   | 3d February | Aber. Robinson, 19th ditto.     |
| Singapore   |   |             | Singapore, 13th ditto.          |
| Sydney      | 1 |  | North Briton, 8th ditto.        |
| Hobart Town |   |             | Vià Launceston, 10th ditto.     |
| Launceston  |   |             | de Children, 17th ditto.        |
| Mauritius   |   |             | Eagle, 21st February.           |
| Cape        | ! |             | Aber. Robinson, 26th March.     |

POSTSCRIPT.

The overlaid Mail via Marseilles arrived May 19, and that via Fulmouth, on the 22nd. The dates are, Caloutta, March 18. Cadras, March 22. Bombay, March 30. We give as usual under this head the most interesting extracts.

Calcutta.

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL.—The Governor General reached Kurnaul on the 2d March. His Lordship with a small party was to leave the station on the 6th and to reach Scharunpore on the 9th instant. From Scharunpore it is probable the Gov. Gen., with a few attendants, will proceed via Nahur and Mussocrie, while the rest of the camp go by Bar to Simla. At Meerut, on the 12th February, a very grand fête was attended at the Mess House of her Majesty's Buffs, by the Right Hen the Cor. Gen. and the Hon. the Misses Eden; it was got up in the most superbatyle by the Officers of the Corps, a grand collection of every delicary that imagination would deem gratifying and within range of expensive purchase, or the season affect, automoded the dancing which was kept up until the united voices of chanticleer and his brothern welcomed the dewn of a new day. The entire party did not separate until after aug-Lord Auckland and Suite, however, took their departure at rather at early hour. At Delhi, on the 16th, the three Regiments of Native Infantry, Support and Miners, and Light Field Battery, were marched down from cantonments, to form street, to receive His Lordship the Gov.-Gen. His Lordship was met at the Bridge of Boats by Mr. Metcalfe, Gov.-Gen.'s Agent, attended by his assistant, and the Commandant of the Palace Guards, also by the Brigadier Commanding the Station and Staff, who escorted His Lordship to camp. His Lordship on entering the atrest formed by the Troops, was received with 'Presented Arms,' and Bands playing God save the Queen. On His Lordship's passing the colors of the different regiments, the regimental colour was lowered, a compliment acknowledged by His Lordship, by passing them uncovered. On His Lordship reaching camp, the Light Field Buttery fired a salute of 19 guns.

THE KING OF OUDE.—The King has come to the determination of abdienting in favour of his son, in consequence of his age and infirmities precluding his paying the necessary attention to his Royal duties. Those interested in the proceedings of this cabinet, give out that the new Vuzeer enjoys only the name, while the duty of principal adviser to the King is discharged by the nephew of the late Hukaem Mehndee, an arrangement in perfect keeping with the custom of this straight-going Court. The organization of the new contingent is going on. Distress from the season is extensive and severe.—Agra Ukhbar, Feb. 22.

POLITICAL NEWS.—We hoar from the Governor General's Camp, that his Lordship spares no pains in endeavouring to become acquainted with the state of the country, and in adopting measures for its improvement. Measures are in active progress for re-modelling the Police of the Turai, or tract of land hordering on the Rohilcund division, long notorious as the retreat of bands of dacoits. From the unbealthiness of this tract, and the denseness of the jungle, as well from the inadequacy of the establishments in the neighbouring zillahs, both Europeans and Natives, have been, comparatively speaking, unmolested by the robbers who infest it; but it is confidently expected that the measures now in progress, which have been adopted in communication with the most experienced of the local officers, will impart new vigour to the administration, and rescue the surrounding country from the continuance of so serious an evil. Active measures have likewise been adopted for clearing off the heavy arroars of criminal business, which have accumulated in Rohilcund, in consequence of the disturbances arising out of the present scarcity. Mr. Lushington has been appointed an additional magistrate and collector of Bareilly, and Mr. R. Catheart has been appointed an additional judge to hold the sessions at Budaon and Shahjohanpore. The latter gentleman has been twice removed from similar situations on account of negligence, and this third opportunity is given him to enable him to retrieve himself in the opinion of government.—Englishman, March 15.

Lotteny.—The Government had been again fortunate in obtaining the grand prize of Rs 100,000.

THE COUNCIL.—In consequence of the indisposition of the Hon. Mr. Shake-speare, his Honor the President in Council has called up into council Mr. W. W.

Bird, who was, while in England, appointed a provisional member.

Horrible Famine.—The Englishman, (March 16,) says, We have received the most horrible accounts of the progress of the famine in the western previous. It is said that the inhabitants of Agra are denying themsolves their usual evening ride, because of the intolerable effluvia arising from the dead bodies surrounding the station. A nullah, near Cavapore, is also said to be actually cheaked with the corpses of the multitudes started to death. This, if no exaggeration, is a fearful picture, appealing more strongly than words can, to the active benevolence of all who are beyond the immediate reach of the scourge. What are the natives doing? We do not see many of the names of the wealthier Hindoos in the list of subscribers to the Relief Fund! We have not seen the names of many Armenians or Markey mans! Must we call upon the righ by name? Must we expose their heat sluggishness by putting them into a separate list of non-subscribers? Let hasten to avert the reproach of callourness at a moment when active humanity imperative duty of every human being in India, who has conething to spare, be imperative duty of every human being in India, who has conething to spare, be imperative merely sufficient to preserve one life for one short day. The military in our neighbourhood, are, we hear, nobly doing their duty. Sir Willoughby Cotton headed a list of subscribers in the course of last week, and it is now in circulation throughout the cantenment of Barrackpore. We are truly rejoiced to observe that the ladies of Calcutta are coming forward in aid of the hapless sufferers from famine, and we ardently trust—nay, we confidently expect—that the excellent example so promptly set by Mrs. and the Misses Shakespeare, Mrs. Pemberton, and Mrs. H. M. Parker, will be universally followed. The subscriptions to the Relief Fund amounted at this date to Rs. 40,332..13..8; of which, Rs. 34,348..9, 9 had actually been paid into the Union Bank. The following extract from a letter of a person high in office and with the best opportunities for observation at Cawapore, will give an insight into the extent of distress in the Upper Provinces:—

"About a week ago, there fell some heavy rain here for some two hours, which has done some little good to the crops; but its fall was very partial. I was at the time between Etawah and Mynpoory, where one short shower for \( \frac{1}{2} \) of an hour was all that fell. The state of the country near the Jumna is much worse than it is near the Ganges; bad as is the latter. The former is in a great degree depopulated, and those who remain, seemed destined to die of starvation, as no effectual measures appear to be taken by government to preserve them from that dreadful fate. Every where the utmost misery prevails; and even when the monsoon shall arrive, I know not how the country is to be restored to cultivation: for if labourers enough remain, there will not be cattle to plough the land."

Influenza has recently made its appearance at Agra, but has attacked but few of the residents. Starvation to a fearful extent prevails in the city and suburbs. Scattered over the latter are found the bodies of persons, who have dropped down and expired from absolute exhaustion through want of food.

Steam Communication with India.—Extracts from late private letters from Calcutta. "The cause of Steam Communication is greatly indebted to the energy and perseverance of Mr. Greenlaw, but his continued attacks upon your friend Grindlay have surprised many here. Not even the strong testimony of Lord William Bentinck appears to have any effect in altering his opinious.—Tell Grindlay not to let Greenlaw's remarks disturb him while he has the approbation of those in England who are best able to judge, and those in India who are not led by a clique here.—People begin to see now that the Calcutta Committee were too hasty in their condemnation of Grindlay's measures.—I am glad to see that the Calcutta people are beginning to allow that they were somewhat hasty in their measure, in respect to Grindlay on the Steam Question; he must however look for things of this kind, the more successful he is."

Insolvent Estate of Fergusson & Co.—In the Supreme Court, (March 2,) their lordships gave judgment in the appeal of the assignees of Fergusson & Co., against the order of Mr. Justice Malkin in the Insolvent Court, allowing the assignees of David Clarke to prove on the estate of Fergusson and Co. for about six lacs. Our readers will remember the particulars of the appeal, and that in pronouncing his judgment, Mr. Justice Malkin held that the mere fact of the insolvency of a firm does not invalidate the retiring partner's claim, provided the agreement by which he retired was a fair and bona fide transaction. The Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Grant delivered their judgment at much length, entirely supporting the decision of the Court below and the appeal was dismissed.

INSOLVENT ESTATE OF PALMER & Co.—The Court also gave judgment in the demurrer in the assignees of Palmer and Co. v. T. Dickens. The bill was filled by the Assignces of Palmer and Co., against the Registrar and Administrator of G. Manuk, deceased, to refund the dividends which he and his predecessor had obtained from the Estate of Palmer and Co. In consequence of the Orphan Chamber of Batavia having instituted proceedings in the Court of Batavia, and obtained a decree whereby they ordered certain plantations at Java, belonging to Palmer & Co. to be sold, and the claim of the Orphan Chamber, executor of the will of G. Manuk, to be paid. The particulars of the claim are as follows Mr. W. Prinsep, one of the members of the firm of Palmer & Co., as the constituted attorney of the Orphan Chamber obtained letters of administration with the will annexed of G. Manuk, deceased. In virtue of this, he became possessed of funds to the extent of two lacs and a half of rupees, which he lodged in the house of Palmer & Co. This balace stood at the time of the failure of the firm, when the letters of Administration to Mr. Prinsep were cancelled, and one granted in lieu to Mr. James Hogg, as Registrar of the Supreme Court, who received the dividend from Palmer & Co. As the Orphan Chamber had in part paid itself by the sale of Palmer & Co's plantations in Java, by a sum which amounts to much more than has been paid rateably to the creditors here, the bill was filed to recover the dividends paid to the alteristrar of the Supreme Court. The Registrar demurred generally against the relief prayed by the bill. The Court allowed the domurror and dismissed the bill with costs, upholding the decree of the court at Batavia, not considering themselves competent to creat a refund of the mency which had been rightfully paid to the Registrar.

Union Bank.—The Union Bank has raised its rate of interest on fixed balances for three months from four to five per cent.

AGRA BANK.—At the half-yearly Bank Meeting held March 1, a dividend at the rate of 16 per cent. per annum, was declared; and independent of this handsome profit, there is a reserve fund of Company's Rupees 18,179-3-5 to meet numtingoncies.

THE LANDHOLDER'S SOCIETY, (March 14).—The wealthy Native landed gentry in Calcutta and its vicinity, are about to form themselves into a society for the pretection of their own interests.

AUCKLAND CHANNEL.—Captain Clapperton is now engaged with Messis. Royce and Patterson, of the pilot service in buoying off a new channel, in lieu of the Mud Point one, which is rapidly filling up. He has named it the 'Auckland Channel,'

-Hukaru, March 10.

RAISING OF A TALIEN CORPS.—We hear that the raising of a Talien corps is proceeding very successfully. About a hundred substantial looking follows, may already be seen morning and evening, on the parade ground, undergoing the drilling process, and when the corps is filled up, as it will no doubt shortly be, it will make a very respectable appearance, and form a portion of military defence or attack of which no commander need be ashamed.

THE GREAT FIRES OF 1837.—The subscription in aid of the sufferers, amounted to Rs. 50,000, which included Rs. 20,000, from Government: the higher class of natives had subscribed very little.

OUDE AUXILIARY FORCE.—We are informed that Captain Grant of the Artillery has either resigned the command of the Artillery of the Oude Brigade, or intends doing so shortly. Most of the Officers are, we are told, disappointed at the seals of allowances.—Englishman Feb. 23.

EMERALD ISLE, (For Sydney.) Corrected list of Passengers — Mrs. Look, Mrs. Becher, Mrs. Loughnan, Mrs. Bellew, Mrs. Yeatman, Mrs. Chisholm, Mrs. R. B. Gloeson, and Mrs. J. H. Gleeson; J. Donnithorne, Esq. C. S.; Dr. E. J. Yestman; Lieut. Charles Graham; Lieut. H. Becher; Capt. J. M. Loughnan; Mr. E. B. Gloeson; Mr. J. H. Gloeson; Capt. Bellew; Mr. C. Cardew; Ens. Mundy; Mr. W. J. Browne; Capt. Chisholm; Capt. Innes, H. M's. 39th Regt.; Mr. Bayidon, steerage passenger, several children and servants.—Passengers only to Madrus.—Miss Carr; Lieut. Jackson; Mr. Lindsay, and Mr. Elliott. The ship is as full as she can hold, and we understand that there is more cargo in the market for the colonies.—Englishman, Feb. 20.

Assam.—A letter from Assam informs us that the Commissioner and Major White arrived at Sudden on the 29th of January, and that Lieut. Millar had gone with 75 men to endeavor to take the Peechbe Gaum, who had been fighting with the Let Gaums. It is expected that Lieut. Millar will have some trouble.—Englishmen

Feb. 21.

MEETING OF CAVALRY OFFICERS.—At Kurnaul, a meeting called amongst the Cavalry officers, was attended by almost all who belonged to the two regiments stationed there. Lieutenant Colonel Wards, the senior officer present, took the shair, and a preliminary address was read, explaining the object of the meeting, &c. wheat: the following resolutions were put and carried non. con. 1st. That it is desirable. to establish some regular mode of purchasing out Lieutenant Colonela. 2d. That a bonus seems the most simple method of doing so. 3d. That each regiment should contribute an equal share towards such bonus. 4th. That each regiment should emgage to go to the second. That is, to purchase two steps as offered. The bonus to be twenty-five thousand rupees. 5th. That in all cases of competition, the junter Licutenant Colonel shall have the preference. 6th. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the other eight regiments, soliciting their concurrence. 7th. That the annexed scale seems to us proportionate to the advantage to be derived by each dividual. And although each regiment will of course make its own internal arrangement ment, it is desirable to have some acknowledged and general scale to go by. That the amount for three steps be raised immediately and deposited in Unmpany's paper. 9th. That funds sufficient to purchase two steps be always held in readings. 10th. That a Secretary be appointed through whom business may be transacted, and that that Secretary be a cavalry officer. 11th. That a corresponding Secretary be appointed to the party of th

MAROH AGAINST JOORAH.—(From the Delhi Gazette, Febr 28.) Letters from Neemuch, of the 17th instant, mention that the force ordered to hold itself in readiness to march against Joorah, expected to move daily, and had been prepared to do so for the week preceding. In addition to the troops we mentioned last week, as selected to compose the force, (viz. the 39th and 49th N. I., and 4th local horse,) we understand that the flank companies of the 71st N. I., and a wing of the 3d local horse, will also be employed. It was expected that the troops would enter the country simultaneously, by several passes, and that they would probably remain there in military possession, during the approaching hot season, if not longer, since Colonel Speirs was determined to occupy the country for some time after its subjugation. As the territories of the contumacious chieftain are situated towards the strong Hill Fort of Komulmer, in the heart of the Aravulle or Adabullee Range, and towards the lofty Mount Abboo, the climate will, probably be found more temperate than that of the adjacent plains, though we should apprehend the prevalence of junglo would render it insalubrious in the rainy season: and that the country is overrup with hills and jungle, and destitute of reads, we conclude, from the emission of artillery as an element of the force. The name of the delinquent Thakoor is said to be Goman Sing, and the cause of the present hostilities, his refusing or evading to surrender several Bheel banditti, who, last year, murdered a party of sepoys on mount Aboo, and have since taken refuge in his territories. We should hope that when he learns the extent of the preparations against him, he will yield with the best grace he can, and socure his own safety by sacrificing that of his guilty guests—the aforesaid Bhoel murderers.

MILITARY APPOINTMENTS.—The death of Major-General Robert Patton, C.B., will, promote Licut.-Colonel W. H. Kemm to a colonelcy; Major Eckford to a lieutenant colonelcy; Capt. Drummond of the 6th Regt. N. I. to a major rity; Lieut. Keiller to a captaincy; and Ensign Carey becomes a lieutenant.

DWARKANAUTH TAGORE.—We hear that letters have been received in town from Dwarkanauth Tagore, which announce his speedy return to Calcutta. The worthy Baboo has apparently had quite enough of travelling. A domestic affliction is, we are told, the cause of his return—the death of his mother; by which event the Lac Donation falls into the hands of the District Charitable Society (subject to the uses, &c., and controll of the Trustoes). The Donation being contingent on her death, and the munificent and magnificent donor paying out of his own funds eight per cent. on the lac to the Society until the above mentioned contingency should take place. We wish him a safe and a speedy return to his native city.—Calcutta Courier, March 12.

Another Royal Death.—Prince Sooleeman Shukoh expired at Agra on the morning of the 24th February, at the advanced age of eighty-two, and was interred on Monday at the Royal cemetry of Secundra; he was second brother of the late King of Dehlee, from whose court he retired some years since, and latterly fixed his residence principally at Agra. His only support was a pension of rupeos 6,000 monthly from the Lucknow court, chargeable on the interest of the loan lent to Government during the Burmeso war. He has left several sons and grandsons.

Indigo Mart.—(Calcutta, March 9, 1838.)—The public sale this day was thinly attended; out of 300 chests put up, only one hundred chests were disposed of, at the following rates:—D & J 31 chests J. B. Jones, Bubcha; 20 chests sold at Co. Rs. 145 0 p. fy. md.; 11 chests ditto 132 8 do.; DF JC Delimpore Concern Benares. 10 chests sold at 152 8; 5 chests ditto 137 8 do.; M & chests Native sold at 140 0 do.; TC 13 chests ditto 135 0 do.; BB & chests ditto 157 8 do.; AB 6 chests ditto 155 0 do.; T 5 chests ditto 117 8 do.; SM 5 chests ditto 95 0; C 5 chests ditto 140 0 do.; TR 2 chests ditto 145 0 do.—Hickey, Thomas, & Co., Brokers.—Eighty chests, marked D, were sold after the public sale by private contract.

AGRA THEATRE. The Agra Theatre was entirely destroyed by fire on the night of the 23rd February.

INSOLVENT COURT.—Mr. W. H. Abbott, the Registrar of the Ecclesiastical Court, had petitioned the Insolvent Court for relief.

CAPT. COOKSON.—This artillery officer died at Kurnaul off the 19th February of small pox.

Madras.

THE MASTER ATTENDANT.—We regret to hear (through the medium of private letters) of the death of Capt. Clarence Dalrymple, Master Attendant of Madras, in consequence of injuries sustained as detailed in the following paragraph:

"We are sorry to state that a serious accident occurred in the surf on Thursday evening. The Master Attendant, Captain Dalrymple, was returning from H. N. M. Frigate Bellona, when a heavy surf struck his boat, and from the violence of the concussion he was thrown overboard. The crew of a boat that happened to be near picked him up, but not till after so serious an immersion, that he has since been forced to remain under medical aid,"—Spectator, March 3. Capt. D. formuly commanded the H. C. S. Vansittart. His successor will be appointed by the Court of Directors in England.

Prince of Orange.—The Bellona anchored at noon on the 1st March, but His Royal Highness did not land until the following day, owing to the surf being rough and unsafe. Lord Elphinstone's carriage conveyed the Prince to Gov. House, attended by an escort of the Body Guard. On the 7th there was a highly interesting display of artillery practice at St. Thomas's Mount, in his honour. On the evening of the 12th a grand entertainment was given by the Right Hon. the Gov. at the Banqueting Room to His Royal Highness. The Hall was crowded, and dancing kept up with a gaiety and spirit that knew no wearying, until near morning's dawn. The Gavernor's Band and that of the 4th or King's Own wore in attendance. At support the health of the illustrious guest was proposed by Lord Elphinstone (after enthusis astic homage had been done to the toast of "The Queen") and received with loud plaudits. His Royal Highness returned thanks with much self possession, and in a neat and appropriate speech.—The melancholy accident noted below, interrupted the pyrotechnic display, which was to have been of a very superior order.—His Royal Highness Prince Henry embarked on the 13th on board the Dutch frigate Bellong and his return to his native land from his Oriental oruize. He had left a pleasing impression on the minds of every one who had been won by his amiable manners and unagsuming deportment?

Melancholy Accident —A melancholy accident occurred on Friday evening, the 11th March, in the Government gardens. It appears that one of the antelopes made its way into the place where they were busy preparing the fireworks for the succeeding Menday's display. In attempting to drive him out, the animal everturned a lantern amongst the guupowder, which immediately exploded, setting fire at the same time to all the fireworks prepared. Two unfortunate men, we deaply lament to say, were killed on the spot, two more were frightfully burnt and expired shortly afterwards, and two more received severe injury from the effects of this deplorable accident. The unfortunate people who fell a sacrifice to their imprudence, were actually attaching sticks to some rockets by the light of a lantern, when the everturning of the latter caused the fatal accident. The fireworks were not all destroyed by the explosion, and the loss might have been remedied in time for the fête, but Lord Elphinstone, with proper and humano feelings would not allow any display to take place.

LADY Gough.—Her Ladyship on the 26th February gave a splendid funcy and full dress ball to the Society of Bangalore.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF IDOLATORY IN INDIA BY THE COURT OF DIRECTORS OF THE E. I. Co.—Extract from a Revenue Letter from the Honourable Court of Directors to the Governor General of India in Council, No. 14, dated 18th October, 1837;—Para. 8. We now desire that no customary saintes or marks of respect to Native fewerivals be discontinued at any of the Presidencies, that no protection hitherto given by withdrawn, and that no change whatever be made in any matter relating to the Native religion except under the authority of the Supreme Government,—No. 4165. Extracts from the Minutes of Consultation, dated 6th March, 1838:—Ordered that any the Natives may be discontinued.—(True extract,)—Robert Clerk, See. to Goot.

— To the Venerable the Archdeacon of Madras. Conservative, March 13.

Human Sacrifices.—Extract from a letter of Captain Campbell, disted Goomsur, 25th February, 1838:—"I have been most fortunate in my late expedition among the wild konds of Goomsur, and have received no less than one hundred and three children of various ages, who were intended for the sacrifice by these barbarians, and that without the application of force:—these children are now at head-quarters, and form a most interesting group,—happy, such as were aware of their situation, in having escaped the fate which awaited them."—From the media-worthy activity of this excellent officer, one is led to hope that the custom of these human sacrifices will be greatly checked, if not wholly suppressed, and humanity will, we think, owe a deep debt of gratitude to Captain Campbell for his successful exertions.

THE MADRAS CONSERVATIVE.—This newspaper was to be discontinued at the end of March. The Male Asylum Herald was in future to be the advocate of Conservative principles.

ORIM. Con.—Colonel Napier v. Mr. Elliot, Superintendant of Police.—Verdict for the plaintiff—damages Rs. 25,000. Supreme Court, Feb. 19. (Further particulars in our next.

Bombay.

SIR HERBERT COMPTON.—We are sorry to understand (says the Gazette of March 21st) that Sir Herbert is about to depart from among the Society of which he has long been a distinguished member. Sir Herbert had recently taken the opportunity of a meeting of the friends of the native dispensary, to pass sundry by-no-means complimentary remarks on the Bombay Press, for which he was immediately castigated (though mildly enough) by the Bombay Gazette and Courter.

THE ORIMINAL SESSIONS.—The Sessions commenced on the 19th of March.
The cases though few in number were stated to be of an important (native) character.

Bank of Bombay.—At a Meeting of the Shareholders in the Chartered Bank of Bombay, (20th March at 3 p.m.) Admiral Sir Charles Malcolm in the chair. A report of the proceedings of the Committee was read by their Chairman D. Greenhill Esq. This special Meeting had been called, to enable the Committee to lay before the subscribers, the anomalous position in which the very great and unexpected delay in replying to the application for a charter, has placed them, and with a view to take the sense of their constituents, on the measures fitting to be adopted, to put a limit to an embarrassment, which is not only injurious to a large body of individuals, but also to the general welfare of this Presidency. It was resolved that the Bombay Joint Stock Bank should decidedly commence operations whether chartered or not in October next. At the suggestion of Sir C. Malcolm, a hearty cheer was given by the shareholders and friends present for the success of the Bank.

THE LATE SHERIFF.—Mr. J., L. Johnson has recoived an appointment in the court of requests

SALT TAX.—The Government of Bombay were it is said from the beginning decidedly opposed to the imposition of this tax.

NAVIGATION OF THE INDUS.—(Extract of a letter from Loodeeanah.) Some Parsee Merchants have just arrived here via the Indus. Their boat draws ten feet, and they state that they found no scarcity of water throughout their voyage. They are so much encouraged by their success, that they intend to write immediately for fresh cargoes. This experiment has proved the practicability of navigating the Indus thus far, and will doubtless be followed by many other adventurous traders.

CAPT. M'GILLIVRAY.—This officer's death (see obituary) appears to have been greatly lamented.

Subscriptions for the Sufferent from Famine in the North Western Provinces.—At the close of the meeting, the subscriptions amounted to upwards of Rs. 7,000—a much larger sum, taking all things into consideration, than was subscribed for at Calcutta on a similar occasion.

Ceplon.

CIVIL APPOINTMENTS.—T. Oswin, Esq., to be District Judge of the District Court of Columbo No. 3, and Assistant to the Government Agent for the Western Province.—Dated 1st March, 1838.

W. C. Gibson, Esq., to be a Commissioner of the Lean Board, vice T. Oswin, Esq.—Dated 1st March, 1838.

E. S. Waring, Esq., to be Assistant Government Agent at Colombia, vice W. C.

Gibson, Esq.—Dated 1st March, 1838.

E. S. Waring, Esq., to be Acting Assistant Government Agent in charge of the Cinnamon Department and Acting Superintendent of the Cinnamon Sorting Store, Colombo, during the absence of A. Walker, Esq.

PRARI. Francis.—A small steamer was expected in Coylon from England for the use of the Pearl-banks. It is said that the pearl fishery is not likely to be preductive of much for some years to come, in consequence of the oyster beds having been completely exhausted at the last fisheries, and that a fishery would not have taken place last year had it not been particularly desired to increase, by every possible means, the "surplus revenue."

STEAM MEETING .- A desire having been generally manifested that a mouting should take place for the purpose of considering the propriety of memorializing the Government at home, through the Right Honorable the Governor of this Colony, that Ceylon should be included in the arrangement in contemplation for steam communication between England and the Presidencies of Bengal and Madras, the undersigned request the attendance of the gentleman of this settlement at the Post Office on Theseday the 6th of March, at 2 P.M.—William Rough Chief Justice, P. Anstruther, U. H. Boyd, Robert Crowe, C. D. Parlett, David Wilson, John Wilson Major General, Joseph Read, Robert Jeffery, James Young, W. Clark, John Armitage, James At the meeting called as above, Sir W. Rough in the chair, the following resolutions were carried:—1st. That a Committee be appointed for the purpose of framing petitions to both Houses of Parliament, to be forwarded by the Right Honorable the Governor in such mannor as his Excellency may think best, praying that steam communication be extended to the Presidencies of Madras and Bengal including Ceylon. That the following gentlemen be chosen as members of the Committee, five of whom to form a quorum: - Colonel Burrol, Mr. Boyd, Mr. Elliott, Captain Skinner, Mr. Parlett, Mr. Armitage, Mr. Read, Captain Gregory, Mr. Layard, Mr. J. J. Staples, Mr. Crowe, Mr. Vertue. And that Mr. Steuart be requested to act as Secretary.—2nd. That the Committee be instructed to adopt as a basis for the petitions the 11th paragraph of the drafted petition to the House of Commons, published by the Madras Steam Committee.—3d. That the Committee be requested to procure the best local information with reference to steam navigation round Ceylon, to accompany the petitions.

Burmah.

THE EXPECTED WAR.—The Madras Spectator, March 17, says: -- We mentioned ton days ago that H. M. 63d Regiment had been ordered over to Moulmein forthwith by the Supreme Government. Report has since stated further orders to have been received by our local authorities, for their holding four Native corps available for prompt transmission to Rangoon in case of a necessity arising. This betokens a desire, however tardily aroused, to place our relations with the Court of Ava upon a less questionable footing than they have held since the usurpation of Tharawaddin, The only matter for apprehension is, that the moment of decision may have arrived too late to effect the quantum of good desired at the least possible cost, that the time shall have passed by when the idea of attack upon us might have been over awed, and we be perhaps left now to resist and overcome hostilities already commenced to our disadvantage. In this respect the policy pursued towards Burnanh wears somewhat the feature of that which has ruled Lord Auckland's quondem polleagues at home in their management of Canada. Action with spirit and determination seems however the present order of the day, and, to guard against any risk of dolay in the despatch of the 63d to their destination, shipping has been aiready magaged at Calcutta for the transport of one wing. The arrival of this corps in the Tenasserim Provinces will bring matters to a crisis. Tharawaddie,—who appears to have avoided committing himself to any fixed course of proceeding, by abstaining from all reply to the intimation made by our Government, that not a tittle of the treaty of Yandaboo would be allowed departure from-will either make his threatened attack forthwith upon our provinces are fresh troops can be sent to reinforce them, or will gather from the demonstration the wisdom of succumbing and give a frigned weicome to a British Resident again at his Court.

China.

We learn from the Canton Register and the Canton Press to the end of January that the Chinese New Year having commenced, business of all kinds was at a stand still. Although the deliveries of Opium at Lintia were rather more brisk, there is no improvement in price; indeed the tendency is rather downwards. Old Pains is unsaleable. New has been sold as low as 540 dollars. New Henares, 490 dollars, and Malwa 410 dollars.

Corron.—No transactions have been reported to us, except of some Madras at the former rates, for Tinnezelly 10.5 a 10.6 and the Nellore at 7.7. Both the Bombay and Bengal are very depressed.

Opium.—The small foreign passage boats appear to be still very active between Lintin and Whampot, although the Mandarins are said to be on the look out for seizures. The deliveries at Lintin are also more than were expected, being up to the 22d inst, Patna, old 2; new 290; Benares, old 1. new 95; Malwa, 515; Total 903 chests. One or two small vessels are also employed in deliveries of small parcels to the westward. Prices are however very low, and with every prospec tof being still lower. New Patna has been sold as low as 540 a 550. New Benares 490; Malwa 410 a 415, and the stock of all kinds is excessively large. Old Patna is unsaleable, but we think it unnecessary to alter quotation.

Sponey.

DEPARTURE OF THE GOVERNOR .- Sir Richard Beurke left the Colony Dec. 5th in the ship Samuel Winter, bound for Valparaiso. In the morning His Excellency received deputations from the Masonic body, from the School of Arts, and from the Meeting of his Friends which was held on Friday last; at one o'clock His Excelleucy held a levee which was numerously attended, many parties appearing to be willing to drop old grievances upon His Excellency's departure. Notwithstanding the town had been placarded with large bills signed "Vox l'opuli," calling upon the shopkeepors to shut up their shops and attend His Excellency to the place of embarkation, there were not so many persons present as might have been expected; and with the exception of the gentlemen attending the levee, it must be admitted that the greater portion of the crowd was anything but respectable. Precisely at two o'clock His Excellency left Government-house and was saluted by the Grenadier Company, of the 50th regiment, which formed a Guard of Honour on the occasion the troops in garrison, under the command of Colonel Wodohouse, formed an avenue from the Government-house to the new jetty. His Excellency was attended to his barge by the Acting Chief Justice, the Bishop, and a number of the Clergy, the Colonial Secretary and other Civil Officers and a number of the gentlomen who had attended the levde. The Sophia Jane steamer was waiting to convey His Excellency to the Samuel Winter, which was anchored below; the usual saluto was fired on the Governor's embarking. The Samuel Winter got outside about sundown, and His Excellency bade adjen to the Colony.

His Excellency Col. Snodgrass. —Until the arrival of Sir George Gipps, our esteemed and gallant senior military officer Colonel Snodgrass will hold the reins of Government. The reputation, which the Colonel acquired during his short visit to Hobart Town, will, we trust, in no degree be tarnished whilst administering the affairs of this colony, but that, by diligence and application to business, he may add another laurel to his well-merited honours. Of the gallant Colonel we can truly say, "a braver soldier never couched a lance," and experience will doubtless show that "a gentlor heart did never sway in Court."

HILL COOLIES.—The Peter Proctor, has brought 42 Hill Coolies from India, being the first of a series of consignments of the same description of agricultural laborers. The next ship expected is the Caledonia, which would sail about the beginning of November.

END OF THE FIRST VOLUME,

GENERAL INDEX TO THE FIRST VOLUME.

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | TAG       |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| ORIGINAL AND SELECT.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |           |
| East India Voyager (the) by Miss Emma Roberts—Ten Minutes Advice                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | ot        |
| to the Outward-bound-No. I. Choice of a Cabin, page INo. II. Choice                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | NO.       |
| of a Cabin, 73-No. III. Desultory Remarks, 177-No. IV. Advice to Ou                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 12-       |
| ward-bound Cadets, 273-No. V., ditto, Part 2., 396-No. VI., ditto, part                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 8. 49     |
| Bughis of Celebes, the,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |           |
| Colonial Government (Petition for its improvement by R. Montgomet                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | rv.       |
| Martin)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 1.        |
| British India, and its Mal-administration, 137; ditto, concluded .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | . 14      |
| Japan, as a field for British Commerce                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 7         |
| Wellsted's Travels in Arabia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 14      |
| Russia and China, (Military Organization)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | . 18      |
| Notice to our Readers and Subscribers relative to the change in the public                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |           |
| tion of the work                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | . 13      |
| Copyright, infringement of, in India                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | . 8       |
| Memorial of Calcutta Booksellers                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | . 13      |
| Lord Auckland's Reply to ditto                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | . 18      |
| Dramatic in India                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 29        |
| Silk, on the Culture of, in Bengal                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 90        |
| Marshman, Dr., (Memoir of the late)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | · N       |
| Stocqueler, Mr., (The best abused Man in India) account of, with a portrai                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |           |
| Behar, the vile Native Tribes of,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | . 293     |
| Steam Communication with India                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |           |
| Maldiya Islands, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 380       |
| Slave Trade, the East India,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | . 400     |
| Second article on ditto                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 500       |
| Colonial Representation                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 413       |
| Burnes, Capt.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 41        |
| East India Company's Rates of Exchange                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 500       |
| On the Trade of the Upper Indus or Derajat, by Capt. Burnes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | . 50      |
| Hong Merchant, Funeral of a,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 52        |
| Hot Springs near Moulmien                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 52        |
| LITERARY NOTICES.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |           |
| Capt. Jump's Views in Calcutta, 16-Queen's Medal, ibHill's Emigrant's in                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1-        |
| troduction to the British American Colonies, ib Curtis on Health, 146-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |           |
| The British Colonization of New Zealand, ib Beecham on Colonization                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |           |
| 190-View of the proposed Town of Adelaide, South Australia, ibFa                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |           |
| coner's Selections from the Bostan of Sadi, 191-Slade's Colloquie                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |           |
| (Phrenology) ib Slade on Ophthalmia, 192-Medhurst's Dictionary                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |           |
| the Hok-Keen dislect of the Chinese Language, ib Wilkinson's Anoism                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |           |
| Egyptians, 296—Heinroth on Education, &.—Burford's Panorama of New                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 1  |
| Zealand, ib Dodwell and Miles's Alphabetical List of the Officers of th                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | e         |
| Indian Army, 415-Hobler's Liber Mercatoris, ibThe Marquis Wel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |           |
| lesley's Dispatches, edited by Montgomery Martin, 416-Experience of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | f         |
| a Settler in New South Wales, ibBannister on Colonization, ib                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |  |
| Burford's Panorama of Canton, ib.—Muller's Indian Tables, 524-Med                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | -         |
| hurst's China, ib.—Camphelles Poems, ib.—Bacon's six years in Biscay, ib                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |           |
| HOME INTELLIGENCE.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |           |
| PABLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS-Col. Arthur, 62-Wool, ib South Aus                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | •         |
| tralia, ib.—Revonues of India, ib.—Sir J. C. Hobhouse, ib.—New South                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 4         |
| Wales, ib.: (Representative Assemblies). 471-Colonial Administration                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |           |
| Wales, ib.; (Representative Assemblies), 471—Colonial Administration 125—LtCol. Frith, ib.—Territory of Mysore, ib.—East India Prize Money                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | •         |
| ib.—Euphrates Expedition, 163—Petition from India, 364—New Zealand                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |           |
| 249, 471—Colonial Secretary, 249, 363—Corporal Punishment in the Army                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | , '       |
| 250-Tanjore Commission, ibSlave Trade in the East Indies, 250, 363-1411                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |    |
| Coolies, 471, 590-The Java Duties, 363-Hindoos, ibTransports; Expor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | ŧ         |
| Andread at miles a fundamental and a second |           |

|     | of Convicts, ib Postage to India, 364 - Court of Persia, ib Presidencies of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|-----|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|     | Madras and Bombay, ib.—Hayleybury College, 364, 471—Idolatrous Worship, 471, 590—Deccan Prize Money, 471—Onde Affairs, ib.—Land Reve-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|     | nue in India, 472-Van Diemen's Land, ib Denial of Mr. Turton's                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|     | appointment as Legal Adviser to Lord Durham, 590—Courts in China, ib. Felony in Van Diemen's Land, ib.—India Protection Bill, ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|     | East India House Debates.—Grant to the Marquis Wellesley, 62, 364—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|     | Abolition of the Company's Agency at Canton, 63, 125—Idolatrous Wor-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|     | ship in India, 63, 365—The St. Helena Servants of the Company, 127                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| 472 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| r   | HOME INCIDENTS.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|     | Bishop of Bombay, 128—Bishop of Madras, ib.—Overland Mails, ib., 366—New                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|     | Pay Regulation, 128—East India College, ib.—Sir George Arthur, ib.—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|     | Address from Madras, ib.—LieutCol. Michael, ib.—Mr. Waghorn, 129                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|     | 252, 473—Steam Communication, 165, 252—New Arrangement for the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|     | French Government Steam Packets, 165—Retirement of J. Morris, Esq., 166—Rumoured Relicfs of Regiments, ib.—Brevet, ib.—Opium Trade, ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | Vacant Appointments in India, ib.—Arrival of H. M.'s 78th, 250—Indigo,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|     | 251—Expedition to Bokhara, ib.—Designs of Russia, ib.—Commander-in-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|     | Chief, New South Walos, ib.—Indian Navy, ib.—Emigration, ib.—The                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|     | New Puisne Judge of Calcutta, ib.—Postage of Newspapers from India, ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | Wacant Appointments in India, 252—East India Direction, ib.—Mr. Woolff,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | ib.—Excluded Maritime Officers, ib.—Hon. J. E. Elliot, ib.—Sir C.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|     | Grey, ib.—The H. C. War Steamer Semiramis, ib. 366—Steam Com-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|     | munication with India, 252—Ships for India, ib.—Overland Dispatch, ib.,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | 367—Appointments (Sir T. Bradford; Sir H. Worsley; Maj. Gen. Macleod, knighted) 264—Surat Subscriptions, ib.—Sir Edward Barnes, 365—Sol                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | Gen., V. D. L., ib.—AttyGen. V. D. L. 366—New Judge of Calcutta, 365—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|     | February Overland Mail, 366—Lord Teignmouth, ib.—Arrivals from the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|     | Mauritius, ib.—The Earl of Dalliousie, ib.—Piratical Prahus, (Admiralty                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | Court) 366-Neglect of the East Indies, 472-Hill Coolies, ibCavalry                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|     | Regiments, ib.—The Army (Circular Memorandum) ib.—Mr. Turton, 473—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|     | Lady Hester Stanhope, ib.—New Governor of South Australia, ib.—Ditto                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|     | of Western Australia, ib.—New Member of Council at Bombay, ib.—Trade                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|     | between Newcastle and India, ib.—Taylor otherwise Joseph, v. Hopack,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|     | ib.—Miss Julia Newman, 474—Swan River, ib.—Idolatry in India, 590—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|     | Death by Drowning, of Mr. Beatson, 591—Commander-in-Chief of Madras, ib.—Nayti, the New Zealand Chief, ib.—Dinner to Colonel Gawler, ib.—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 1   | Sir John Herschell, ib.—The E. I. Co.'s Museum, ib.—The late Governor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|     | of Ceylon, ib.—Colonel Barr, ib.—The Drama—Haymarket Thoatre, ib.—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| 592 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|     | HER MAJESTY'S FORCES IN THE EAST.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 592 | 129, 166, 256, 367, 474,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|     | MONEY MARKET AND COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|     | Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Ceylon, Singapore, China, Sydney, and London                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| col | Prices current, 66 to 68, 134 to 136, 168, 261 to 263, 373 to 376, 482                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| OU  | to 485, 598 to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|     | SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|     | Arrivals and Departures from and to Eastern Ports; Vessels spoken with;                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 50' | Nautical Incidents; Passengers Inwards and Outwards, 69, 130-1, 166-7, 256 to 260, 368 to 372, 475 to 481, 593 to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 001 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 501 | BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 128 | Royal Geographical Society . 72, 131 to 132, 167-8, 260, 372, 481,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|     | Royal Asiatic Society                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 600 | Table of latest dates from India                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 69  | Indian Appeal Cases c                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 71  | Ships Trading to India and the Eastern Colonies                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 100 | Imports of Wool from New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land to Lon-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| 129 | don during 1837                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 63  | Hayleybury, East India College at, (General Examination, Dec. 1837) Addiscombs, East India Company's Military Saminary at (General Examina-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| 65  | Addiscombe, East India Company's Military Seminary at, (General Examination, Dec. 1837)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | The Queen's Levees 250,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|     | The second secon |

INDIAN INTELLIGENCE.

| CALCUTTA.                                 | Tr.                                              | AUR           |
|-------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------|---------------|
| PAGE                                      | Dum-Dum, Outrage at, 424-                        |               |
| A.                                 | Escorts, Treasure, 92—Secret Go-                 |               |
| Abassee Khanum, (her crucity) 19          | neral Order, 20-Liout. Gifford,                  |               |
| Abdool Razak, the dep. collector 42       | Death of, 24—Grant, Major W.,                    |               |
| Acts, Abstracts of, proposed and          | Death of, 20—Hansi, Review at,                   |               |
| confirmed in council—Tour of the          | 313-Hope, Captain, Death of, 22                  |               |
| Governor General 46—Aumeens               | -Lient. Kittoe, remarkable Go-                   |               |
| of police, ib.—Stamp Duties, ib.          | vernment Order, 531, 537-Capt.                   |               |
| —Persian language 47—Land-                | McNaghten, v. H. Tandy, 421-                     |               |
| ed proprietors of Singapore ib.           | Military Flogging, (Govt. Circu-                 |               |
| District police ib.—Magisterial           | lar), 193—Nizam Service, 92-                     |               |
|                                           | The Oude Force, (see Oude                        |               |
| power ib.—Abolition of oaths ib—          |                                                  |               |
| Jurisdiction of criminal judges ib.       | Force)—Military Passage Money,                   |               |
| -Salt act 343—The coinage ib.             | 206—Major Pew's Experiments,                     |               |
| —Quittance of the Territories, ib.        | 321, 536—Retired List, 23, 315—                  |               |
| Translations of Decrees, 344—             | Skirmishing in Shekawattee, 147,                 |               |
| Embezzlement of Public Money,             | 203, 529—Regimental Staff Allow-                 |               |
| ib—Political Offences, ib.—Local          | ances, 320—A word from Sylhet,                   |               |
| Agents, ib.—Perjury, ib.—Toll at          | 533—Talien Corps, raising of a,                  |               |
| Bhore Ghaut, 561—Powers of Zil-           | 603—32d N. I., 487—22d N. I.,                    |               |
| lah Courts, ib.—Fines, ib.—Func-          | 535—The Wellington Testimo-                      |               |
| tionaries of Kumaoon                      | nial, 534—Capt. Wood's Troop of                  | 4 +4 + |
| Accidents 41, 205, 420, 535               |                                                  | D 34   |
| Adams, Sir J. W. (Monument to)            | Arrivals, expected, 97, arrival of a             | an Wale       |
| 526, 206                                  | , , , , , ,                                      | 315           |
| Aeronaut, death of, Mr. Robertson         | Ariel, the                                       | 43            |
| the,                                      | Arracan 19,                                      | 379           |
| Affray (Native) 424                       | Assam, Fertility of Suddya in, 94,               | les . S s.    |
| Agra 21, 23, 44, 92, 94, 147, 199, 311,   | 536,                                             |               |
| 321-2, 379, 425, 537                      | Asiatic Society, . 94, 198, 418,                 | 9.50          |
| Agra (Bank), 603, (Treasury), 530,        | Atalanta Steamer 309,                            |               |
| (Theatre) 604                             | Attornies' Fees in Insolvent Court               | 10            |
| Agricultural and Horticultural So-        | Auekland, Lord, 19, 20, 23, 94, 193,             |               |
| ciety 20, 44, 148, 197, 379               | 310, 311, 313, 321, 377, 417, 418,               |               |
| Alexander & Co.'s Insolv. Estate 195, 527 | 485, 529, 533,                                   |               |
| Alms, distribution of, 423                | Auckland Channel, the                            | 603           |
| Allygurh Races 537                        | Australian Company 206,                          | AME           |
| Allahabad, 92, Departures from, 313,      | Ava 17, 18,                                      | 910           |
| The Governor-General at, 321              |  •                                    |               |
| Animals (Cruelty to) 525                  | Baboon, Child carried away by,                   |               |
| Appointments, 47 to 52, 113 to 115,       | Barrackpore, Bore at, . 152,                     |               |
| 159 to 160, 200, 228 to 232, 345 to       | Bareilly,                                        | 化      |
| 349, 382-3, 453-9, 488, 564 to 571        | Barasat School,                                  | 420           |
| Army, the, H. M.'s and Bengal, 21,        | Baboo Russomoy Dutt, 42, Rouploll                |               |
| 427-Adjutant of Fort William,             | Mullick's Shraud, 92, Neilmoney                  | AY.           |
| 422-Murder of Ens. Blenkinsop,            |                                                  | (b)           |
| 195—Captains Boscawen and                 |                                                  | 201           |
| TIAC F. Origina cont.)                    | Bank of Bengal, 312, 536, Union do.              |               |
| Burmah)—Brudenell Lord, and               | 315, Bank Notes, altered and                     | kne           |
| Col. Brutton, 426-Cavatry Rc-             |                                                  | 956           |
| tiring Fund, 531—Meeting of               | Ball, on board the Repuire, 313, to              | 815    |
| Cavalry Officers, 603—Military            |                                                  | 4 .           |
| Items, 200—Courts-Martial (see            | Bengalee Classics                                | 146           |
| Courts-Martial)—Cole Insurrec-            | Bengal Club                                      |               |
| tion, 206, 528—Commander-in-              | Begum Padsha, &c.                                | #0145     |
| Chief (see Commander-in-Chief)            | ——————————————————————————————————————           | 32            |
| H. M.'s 11th Lt. Dragoons, 200—           |                                                  | MILI          |
| 487 14 M. B. 30 LITAROURS, 0/0            | APARTER OF A T T T T T T T T T T T T T T T T T T | 40 P. L.      |

| PAGE                                                                             | PAGE                                                              |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Bijore                                                                           | -Gunners Gollins and Frith, 51                                    |
| Bishop of Calcutta, 23, 204, ib., 311,                                           | Privates Duffy, Brooksbank,                                       |
| 533, and the Agra School Book                                                    | Brann, ib.—Lieut. Parker, 147,                                    |
| Society ib.                                                                      | 199, 227—Lieuts. M. Kittoe, and                                   |
| Bills drawn upon India                                                           | J. T. Geils 380.—Lieuts. J. Keat-                                 |
| Births, Marriages, and Dcaths, 53-                                               | ing and P.R. Jennings, 381.—Cor-                                  |
| 4-115, 161, 232 to 234, 349 to 351,                                              | net E. Roche, . 564, 531                                          |
| 383, 459-60, 488-9, 571 to 573                                                   | Court of Requests, Mismanagement                                  |
| Black Act                                                                        | of the,                                                           |
| Bhurrutpore                                                                      | Coach, Mail, from Calcutta to Meerut 198                          |
| Bhopal                                                                           | Company's Paper 6                                                 |
| Bhotan Mission                                                                   |                                                                   |
| Boring for Water                                                                 | 195, 202-Review by, at Hansi,                                     |
| Botanical Garden, H. C.'s                                                        | 313—Introduction to King of Del-                                  |
| Bombay Post Office                                                               | hi, 323—Abandonment of Tour,                                      |
| Bookseliers, Calcutta,                                                           | 324—Dinner . 324Cotton Market                                 |
| Bombay, Railroad to                                                              | Cotton Market                                                     |
| Burdwan, Erection of a School at, 421                                            |                                                                   |
| Burnes, Capt. his Expedition 21, 196,                                            | bad,                                                              |
| 325, 419, 487                                                                    |                                                                   |
| Burmah, Expected War with, 17,                                                   | Cruttenden & Co. Insolvent Estate                                 |
| " 18, 41, 44, 193, 309, 320, 377, 426Brett's Hospitals, GovGen. and, 94, 525 | of,                                                               |
|                                                                                  | Curnin's Fund                                                     |
| Bruce, Shand & Co., Libel Case . 18 Brig on Fire                                 | Currency, the, 24 Purgunnahs, Rc-                                 |
| Brig on Fire 534 C.                                                              | nort of 96 Corner 203                                             |
| Cavalry Retiring Fund 531                                                        | port of 96, Copper                                                |
| Cavalry Officers, meeting of, 603                                                | Cuttack, Pilgrim Tax at 150                                       |
| Cawnpore                                                                         |                                                                   |
| Calcutta Courier, Editorship of, 314, 422                                        |                                                                   |
| Calcutta, want of cleanliness in, 535                                            | D.                                                                |
| Catmandhoo, Bhem Sien Thappa . 95                                                |                                                                   |
| Cameron and Amos, Messieurs, 379                                                 |                                                                   |
| Carts, Rubbish, 424                                                              | Darjecling, 420, the Hills of 313                                 |
| Captors, the,                                                                    | Deputy Sheriff of Calcutta 421                                    |
| Church, Free-School 531                                                          |                                                                   |
| Charitable Society, District 534                                                 | 91. 148—Emperor of, 198. 378. 532                                 |
| Chota Nagpore 424                                                                | Deyra Dhoon                                                       |
| Chunar—Tiger 425                                                                 | Deogur, Temple of 199                                             |
| Chota Nagpore                                                                    | Departures, projected, from Calcutta, 196                         |
| Chowringhee Theatre, 315, Corps                                                  | Discontinuance of the Persian Lan-                                |
| Dramatique, decadence of, . 531                                                  | guage                                                             |
| Child, another, destroyed by a Jackall 152                                       | Dispensaries and Hospitals, 96-                                   |
| Chandernagore, serious outrage at, 318                                           | Gurran Hatta 423                                                  |
| Civil and Military items 200                                                     | Distress, case of, 96                                             |
| Civil Service Retirements . 198                                                  | Dinapore, Fancy Fair at, 97, the                                  |
| Civil Service Annuity Fund 22, 197, 417, 533                                     | Bishop at, 204, the Governor at, ib. Dividend, Military Bank, 196 |
|                                                                                  |                                                                   |
| Civil Order of Merit                                                             | Dictionary, Chinese and English 530Diana Steamer, the, 314    |
| Corbyn, Dr. Robbery of, 419Coronation of the Emperor of Delhi 378            | Diana Steamer, the,                                               |
| Concerned department 422                                                         |                                                                   |
| Conveyances, Tax on,                                                             | Commander in Chief 394 to Sir                                     |
| Coal Committee 487 i                                                             | C. Metcalfe, at Calcutta . 485-6                                  |
| Council, the,                                                                    | Docking Company, Calcutta . 530                                   |
| Cole Insurrection 528, Coles, the 206                                            | Dora Bissoye, Capture of, 43                                      |
| Commissions, Sale of                                                             | Dress, valuable,                                                  |
| Commercial interests affected, 17, 197                                           | Drought, prevalence of,                                           |
| Coffee, Cultivation of,                                                          | Dum-Dum, Theatre 93                                               |
| Coolies, Strike amongst . * 42                                                   | Dum-Dum, Outrage at, 424                                          |
| Correction, House of                                                             | Duel, Fatal,                                                      |
| Coel News,                                                                       | E.                                                                |
| Cossier and Suez, Calcutta to, . 201                                             | Eafthquake 21                                                     |
| Courts Martial-Ensign Barrett, 50                                                | Echal ud Dowla, the Nawab 22, 377                                 |
|                                                                                  |                                                                   |
|                                                                                  |                                                                   |
|                                                                                  |                                                                   |

| PAGE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | TACE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Editorial Secession, another, 422                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Parting Tribute from Govt. to Blu                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Rimorald Islo, passengers by the,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | C. Metcalfe, 562 Queen's troops                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| for Sydney 603                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | restoration of service, in 1 wy                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| for Sydney                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | privates, ib. Ondo force,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Records Treasure                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Jungle Mehals, 563—Staff nomi                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Weaven by 420                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | nating to detachments, ib. Sait                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Rychange the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | duty, ib Pilot's additional rule.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Executions 151, 317                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 563—Col. Roper's memorial for                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | retiring advantages ib Entitled                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Factories, Indigo, Sale of 312                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | de frankingGoverner-General, (see Auckland,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| the Company's . 44                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Governor-factions, face watering                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Failure of Commissariat Grain Con-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Lord.) Gorrackpore races                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| tractors                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | COLLEGE THE STATE OF THE STATE  |
| Native, 423, (Tarrachund,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Grain, order Gunpowder manufactory                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Day and Co.)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Gwalior, 45, Discovery of the mag-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Fancy Fair, 97, 420                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | wette role at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Famine horrible, 601, at 1/e/fit, 140                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | netic pole at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Fergusson & Co. Insolv. Estato of 602                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Hatiney 48                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| Fires, 379, in Calcutta during 1837                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | HattrasHadjeepere Races                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| 526, 603                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Hansi, Review at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Flogging, Military 193                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Hakeem Mehndi Ali Khan, Death of 419                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Prepringential Procession of 424                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Herat                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Freedom of the Press 420                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Herefordshire, the crew of the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Fracas Legal 407                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Linerings in the salt water Lakes 420                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Furlough regulations, Lucid facts on, 202                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Furloughs of 1837 206, 420Futtyghur 44, 379, 425                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 152, Examination                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Futtyghur . 44, 379, 420                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| G. Gambling Native . 530                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Hindon Mythology . Will                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Chimbing views                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | ** ** ** ** ** * * * * * * * * * * * *                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Canges, me in the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Hedgsen, Mr., Buddhist Literature Day                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Howrah, ship launch at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Human Sacrifices in India . 421                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Government riouse                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Ice House                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| hoarding of mency                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Ice Establishment at Agra                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| advances on goods, 421                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Improvements, progressive                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| falsé report                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Insolvent Court, attornies sees in                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Congressiont Notifications—Passage                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 4Z. 13()—Ittourvent Com-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| alterns the Retired officers, 10.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Indigo crops, 20, Prospects, 147,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Commissions to native officers, 111                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Indige factories, 197, Sale of, 312,Indige seed, 421, Market, 487,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Tmprovements of invalid rolls,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Indigo Mort                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| :LNew brigade regulation, 112                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Indige MartIndia Rubber, Mr. Smith's experi-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Femily remittances, 10SCHOOL-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | ments in                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Corrected to Commerce                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Influenza                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| -c the ladge th.—Civil icaves of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | J.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| The state of the s | Jessore, Dacoitys and murders at, 96,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Officers, 226—Balaries of sudder                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Maturhance in, 315, Indigo planters                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| ameens & moonsiffs, ib.—Meurn-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | TO THE PARTY OF TH |
| ing fer the late King, ib.—Jeurney                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Jennings, Mrs.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| of the GovGeneral, ib.—King of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Jograh, march against                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Delhi,227—Pres. of the Cenncil,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Judicial Sentences                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| ib.—H. M.'s 3d dragoons ib.—Revenue and circuit commiss-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Tamina                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| sionerships, 344-Reg. of Artillery,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Jump, Capt., Views in Calculta by                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| ib.—Mutiny act, ib.—Impropriety                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Inencore .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| -c with and ing nen-cold. Outcotts                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Juggurnath, Pilgrim tax at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| is Cloud conduct walland occ-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Attendance at hilblic offices, was                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Firms, Dienri                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Cant and CATL. 430 WKW                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Order concerning                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Khasgunge Dackward                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Augod Deriods of service, 10.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Kidderpore Dockyard                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Warehousing of goods, ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | King, the late                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| ▼ · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | The second secon |

| PAGE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | PA                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | NE          |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Knighting a Native                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Mount Stuart Eliphinatone, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | IU   |
| Kower Kishenat H. Rais 22                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Movements of regiments 198, 379, 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | M9          |
| L                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Murder, 41, murders and robberies,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | ,           |
| Laudable Society . 534                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 44, native ditto and suicides, 96                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | , .         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Landholder's Society, the . 603                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 195, 531,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 20 G        |
| Land, resumptions of Rent free                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Muscat, Imaum of,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 17          |
| tenures                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Murnipore Levy, 530, Raja, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | )           |
| Lahore 21, 45, 425, 487                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Mynpoorie                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 21          |
| Larne, H. M. S 205                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | MAN TO THE RESERVE TO |             |
| Lepers, caution ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Nativo converts, 423, failure, 423,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | t.          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Leach, Mrs., the actress, 311—Her                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | native states scarcity, 313, native                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |             |
| farewell benefit                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | states, 532, native custom, disgust-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |             |
| Leopard, a 43, 532                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | ing, 93, female society, ib., natives,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |             |
| Library, Calcutta public . 152, 525                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | exportation of, 530, nativo gam-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |             |
| Litorary Taste, Indian 314                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 530         |
| Lionizing, Prince of Orange . 315                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 2 06 |
| Life Assurance Society, Universal . 379                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 125         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 324         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Locust Flight 531                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 92          |
| Lottery prizes, . 19, 23, 319, 601                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Not at home                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 320         |
| Lucknow, 45, 324—Resident at . 378                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Noneva, tho 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 536         |
| M.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Nusscerabad 44, 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 532         |
| Macaulay, Mr., 200, 378—His Code                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 0.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |             |
| of Laws, 379, 417—And the Press 534                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Official accounts, deficiency                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 21          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 24          |
| Macnaghten, Capt., 204-v. Tandy 421                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Opium, value of, 486, sales, 23, 41,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |             |
| Marine Registry Office 204                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 487, 488, relief, 534, export,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |             |
| Mail Coach Road 315                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | large,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 312         |
| Mackintosh and Co., insolvent estate                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Orango, Prince of, ball to 315, at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |             |
| of, 194, 527                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Delhi 3                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 378         |
| Malkin, Judge, death of, 196                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Orphan fund 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |             |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Onde, King of, appointment by, 45,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |             |
| Madagascar, the,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Mainages in india                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | king of, 601, regiments, 205, 603,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |             |
| Magistrates, circular to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | brigade, 206, 313, officers, 324,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |             |
| Maddock rules 423                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Masonic balls, 424, Masonic Lodge                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | ness of, 3                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 177         |
| at Agra 424                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | P.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |             |
| Magnetic pole, discovery of, at last 485                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Palmer and Co., insolvent estate of, 6                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 02          |
| March of mind                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Party animosity                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| March of mind                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Pattle, Mr., munificence of, 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |             |
| Madical Callers were 90 Medical                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Medical College, new, 20—Medical                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Padsha Begum, the, and Moona Jan                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |             |
| Board and Sir H. Fane, 517—To-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Palce, the plague at, . 3                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Z4   |
| pography of Calcutta 42                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Persian Language, discontinuance                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |             |
| Meerut,21—Races, 197,426—Moerut                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | of, in the revenue department                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 21          |
| Observer, 204-Meerut Magazino 206                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Pension Fund, Uncovenanted Ser-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Merit, civil order of, 22-Reward of 148                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | vice,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 33          |
| Men picked up at sea 424                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Pice, the,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | aa          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Dilote the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 43          |
| Mercer and Vos, Drs., 312                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 40          |
| Metcalfe, Sir Charles, 23, 91, 198-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Pilgrim Tax (at Juggurnath) 150,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |             |
| Agra address to, and his reply,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | (at Cuttack) ib. 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 30          |
| 311, Free Press dinner, ib., 313,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Piracy Case, the, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | .50         |
| 322-3, 377-8, 485-6, Allahabad ad-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 96          |
| dress to, 526, Invitations to, 527, 529                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Post-office, 320, new rules, 93-199,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |             |
| Medical Retiring Fund . 23                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | rates of postage, 5                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 35          |
| Mhow, mortality at,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Political news                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |             |
| Mhow, mortality at,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Political news 6                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | N.F.L       |
| Missionaries, the,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Press, pibfligacy of, 320, freedom of,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | m ^         |
| Mitzapore Bank, 379, 422, Mirza-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 34          |
| pore, 425, court                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Prize Medals                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 112         |
| Military Bank Dividend 196                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | R.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 1           |
| Items . 200, 313, 318                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Rangoon 17, 2                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 28          |
| Mofussil Voyageurs                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 17          |
| Mofussil and Native States . 199                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 06          |
| The state of the s |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |             |
| Moradabad                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Ram Zaun festival                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |             |
| Moltan ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Rajmahi Canal, the,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | χU          |

| PAGE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 1 AUM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Races, 92, 487, 525, at Agra 527                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Union Bank, the, 315, shapes of 525, 603                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Revenue, Sudder board of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Retired List, new Senior, 23, retired                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Vagrants, Europoan                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| list, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Vagrants, EuropeanVictoria, Queen, ball in honour of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| list, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | A theorem's Allianti's dustrantia resistantia in the second secon |
| #6-unions 91                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 43, 200, 204-5, 389                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Robbery, daring 91                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | W.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| David was OAL was do Ab.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Title I also Also Autorian Aut |
| Road, new, 201, roads, the 312                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | War boats for Arracan, tender for                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Runject Singh Ryan, Lady, entertainment to 378                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | building                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Ryan, Lady, antestainment to 378                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Water spout                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| and many minds, observations and                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Manham Mr. and Cal Cameball 1818                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Weather, the, 2R in the Districts . 313                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Saharunpore. • 24. 45                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Weather, the, 2R in the Districts . 313                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Sauger 24 Island Committee 49                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Widows' Fund                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Saugor, 24, Island Committee, 42, 45, 532                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 45, 532                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Zemindary association 198                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Schools in Arracan                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Schieroni, Signora, concert of . 531                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | MADRAS.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Sermon, funeral, by a native 206                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Semiramis, the 487                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Accident, melancholy                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Serampore, execution of decrees at, 526                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Affray, serious                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Sheriff Dep., of Calcutta, 421, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Annuities Civil Fund                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| new,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Andrew's, St., Dinner                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Shahjehanpoor 44                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Americana Civil Esplanication                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Shanjenan poor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Appointments, Civil, Ecclosiastical,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Shipment advances                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Military, and Modical 26, 58-9,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Shipwreck 42                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 60, 116, 161, 209, 235 to 237, 327,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Shipping Intelligence—Arrivals and                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 352 to 354, 383, 461-2, 490, 575 to $78                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Departures, &c., &c., 52-3, 70,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Army, the, Artillery drill for India,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 71, 72, 116, 130-1, 166-7, 234-5,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 209—Artillery, 24—Horse art. ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 256-7-8, 260, 351-2, 368-9, 370-1-2,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | -Brigado Major of Bangalore, 209.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 374, 460, 475-6-7-8-9, 480-1, 573-4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | -Review at Bangalore, ib., 435.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Shekawattee, skirmishing in, 147,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | -Full Batta, 538-The Com-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 203, 529                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | mander-in-Chief, (Sir Hen. Fanu)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Sinde manufactures . 19, 20, 206                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 25, 431, 538, 541—Ava Booty, 24—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Simla, 92, residents at, in 1837, 151,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | H. M.'s 3d Dragoons, 25—A Field                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 532, Commander-in-Chief 533                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | day, 326-H. M.'s 54th, 434-H.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Slavery, Indiau, 43, in Calcutta, . 92                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | M.'s 45th, 210—Extra furlough,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Sooleman Shukoo, 205, death of . 604                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 435—The King's Own (or the 4th)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Sombre, Dyce, Esq 487                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 153.—Deaths of Capt. T. Mait-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Sounding progent 219 exerting 279                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | land, 26, Claridge, 326, Moure,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Sporting present, 312, sporting 379                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | raid, 20, Cinitago, 020, Montes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Steam communication extension,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 538—The Military Male Asylum,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 534, steam postage, 316, steam                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 27—Important to the Military, 25                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| fund, ib., steam committee, ib.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | -Military dinner, 431-Female                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| steam tug association, ib., steam,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Orphau Asylum, ib.—Entertain-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 486, 602, steam meeting, 376,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | ment given by Capt. Parr, 433-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| steam company joint stock, 44,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Military rumours, 538—Murders                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| steam question, 371, river steam-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | of European Officers by natives,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| AAA 17                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 207-8-Retiring Regulations, 542                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| ers,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | and the second s |
| Strand road, improvements in, 93                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | -Retired List, 25-H. M.'s 63d,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Supreme Court . 18, 20, 417, 486                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 434—Major Gen. Sleigh, 433—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Sudder board of revenue 314                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 27th Regiment, 489—Wellington                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|    · · · · · · · · · · · · ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Statue, 327, 431—Major Wallace's                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Suicide, 199, suicides in Central                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| India 421                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Cholera mixture, 434—The Hy-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Suttee 45                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | derabad residency, 342—Colonel                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Т.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Stewart, resident at Hyderabad,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 4.04                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 324—Sham Fight                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| A COLUMN TO THE PARTY OF THE PA |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Tagore Dwarkanath, 526, 604 race                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | B.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| cup                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Ball, to celebrate Her Majesty's &                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| Tax on carriages 197                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | accossion                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| THE DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERT | Bangalore 154, 208, 435, 240:                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| A Case of Case | Ralmania the lass of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Thieves, religious,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Balguerie, the loss of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Transit duties                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Births, Marriages, and Doutles, 60, 4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Travellers, accommodations to, 525                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | • 117, 237-8, 354-5, 384, 462, 490, 3                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Tushecr. punishment of 43                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Breakwater, proposed Madras                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Turion, Mr., last letter of, to India 536                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Burmah, Expedition to, W. war                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| U.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Burnes, Cupit., his arrival at Ullegia                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Ulwar · · · · 21                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Musjid                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| O N                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 7                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 14                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| ignara. Insurrection in 26                              | 3. 200            | Hurricane, tremendous Liuman sacrifices  Idolatry in India, encouragement of, Inundation Inquests Iron and steel manufactures  Jauluah | A.C.         |
|---------------------------------------------------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| ashalties                                               | 152               |                                                                                                                                        | The second   |
| livil divisions, new                                    | 97                | Idoletry in India: encouragement of                                                                                                    | CAL          |
| hitty. Elliah. Trial of for nariury.                    | 434               | * Immdetion                                                                                                                            | 4.3          |
| holors on Indian wire for 96 Ch                         | 70.7              | The sevents                                                                                                                            |              |
| lose 45 07 154 90                                       | 7 900             | Tues and store manufactures                                                                                                            | 4            |
| withour                                                 | , 400             | tion our press many many and a                                                                                                         |              |
| Markey amounting after his                              | 5 K 7             | Janinah                                                                                                                                | (A)Chian |
| merier, operations of the late                          | , 100, non    | Tanking of the Done water                                                                                                              | S Abr        |
| Club, Madras . 209, 32Copper coinage . 209          | 7, 000            | Justices of the Peace, native                                                                                                          |              |
| opper comage                                            | , 207             | Justice Society of                                                                                                                     | 21           |
| hamber of commerco                                      | 434               | K.                                                                                                                                     |              |
| lompany's paper, sale of .                              | . 489             | King Richard, the racer                                                                                                                | 489          |
| Courts-Martial-Lieut. S. J. Car                         |                   | C L.                                                                                                                                   |              |
| ter, Capt. J. Mahon, 57-8-Lieu                          |                   | Literary Society                                                                                                                       | 395          |
| O. D. Stokes, 116—John Elli                             |                   | Literary Society Light House, new Libel Life, deplorable loss of                                                                       | 520          |
| 208—(nativo private), 235—L                             |                   | Tihal                                                                                                                                  | 00%          |
| Osborne                                                 | . 574             | Tife deployable loss of                                                                                                                | 400          |
| Cochin, death of the Rajah of                           | . 433             | Tattowe Company ont                                                                                                                    | ないし          |
| loorg country, the                                      | 324               |                                                                                                                                        | J4U          |
| Folony, new                                             | 432               | М,                                                                                                                                     |              |
| council seaf in                                         | 207               | Madras Conservative Journal .                                                                                                          | 606          |
| Coffee, cultivation of                                  | 99                | Malabar and Canara  Masullah boat, the new  Mail coach company  46,                                                                    | 210          |
| Surrency at Madras                                      | 154               | Masullah boat, the new                                                                                                                 | 46           |
| D                                                       |                   | Mail coach company . 46.                                                                                                               | 207          |
| D.                                                      | O.E               | Daribum all Dar management disease at a                                                                                                |              |
| PEckmuhl, Prince                                        | 25                | C 733 / FOO 73 (* 32                                                                                                                   |              |
| Despatches, overland, 489, 542, De                      | 3-                | address to on his departure                                                                                                            | ib.          |
| lay in publishing                                       | . 209             | Marintanta the new melice                                                                                                              | 25           |
| Dens' Theology                                          | . 208             | Magietraan nativa                                                                                                                      | 433          |
| Dindigul, Cholera at .                                  | . 489             |                                                                                                                                        | 209          |
| E.                                                      |                   |                                                                                                                                        | 431          |
| Elphinstone, Lord . 25, 9                               | 8, 207            |                                                                                                                                        |              |
|                                                         | 432               |                                                                                                                                        | 327          |
|                                                         | 100               | 1.24.1.00                                                                                                                              | 326          |
| F.                                                      |                   |                                                                                                                                        | 431          |
| ape's, Sir Henry, brevet, 25, Ma                        | ],no t |                                                                                                                                        | 208          |
| Generals a                                              | . 326             | Monro, Sir Thomas, Chantry's                                                                                                           | 000          |
| G.                                               |                   | 37                                                                                                                                     | 326          |
| lospel society                                          | . 434             | N.                                                                                                                                     | 000          |
| loomsur country, Human sacrifice                        | 8                 |                                                                                                                                        | 606          |
| in                                                      | 430               |                                                                                                                                        | 26           |
| lough's, Lady, Ball .                                   | . 605             | О.                                                                                                                                     |              |
| Fovernment Notifications — Ran                          | -                 | Opium Trade, the                                                                                                                       | ib.          |
| goon prize rollsCruelty of officer                      | 'S                | Orange, Prince of                                                                                                                      | 605          |
| towards the natives-Hospital in                         |                   | Ρ.                                                                                                                                     |              |
| spections, 56-7-Madras a ware                           |                   | Perry, v. Steel; (crim. con.) .                                                                                                        | 97           |
| housing port, 60-Mess allowances                        |                   | Petitions                                                                                                                              | 326          |
| 116—Allowances to Brigadiers                            | · ·               |                                                                                                                                        | 326          |
| 235—Station of corps, ib.—Pass                          |                   | Postmaster General, the old .                                                                                                          |              |
|                                                         |                   | Post-office, removal of the, 98-Post-                                                                                                  |              |
| ports to officers; Brig. Gen. Tay                       | m Ç               | office, 207—New Act, 432—New                                                                                                           |              |
| for, ib.—Indo-Britons, ib.—Pecu                         |                   |                                                                                                                                        | 540          |
| niary advances to officers, 461-                        | -                 | 1                                                                                                                                      | 040          |
| The Hon. G. E. Russell, 574-                            |                   | Wasan of Fredand addresses to                                                                                                          | 04           |
| Governor's ball to the Prince o                         |                   | Queen of England, addresses to                                                                                                         | 24           |
| Orange, ib.—Triennial assembly o                        | 1                 | o R.                                                                                                                                   |              |
| committee's expenses                                    | . 574             | Rampad, district seldom visited .                                                                                                      | 540          |
| H. 6                                                    |                   |                                                                                                                                        | 208          |
| lebe, the                                               |                   |                                                                                                                                        | 207          |
| lighlands and Islands of Scotland                       | , ,               | Races, 431, 539—Favorite horses at                                                                                                     |              |
| Madras Subscriptions for the dis                        | • "               | Regimental Movements                                                                                                                   | 325          |
| tressed population of .                                 | . 99              | Records, National                                                                                                                      | 200          |
| tressed population of lorticultural and Agricultural So | -                 | Roman Catholic Clergy, the                                                                                                             | $39         |
| ciety, Madras, 539, Presentation                        | 3 '               |                                                                                                                                        | 27           |
| to the                                                  | 541               | Roads, Madras                                                                                                                          | 540          |
| TALL MALES                                              |                   |                                                                                                                                        |              |

| 4 A A A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | PADM                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| PAGE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 546-H. M.'s 6th Regt., 100-Ca-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Russell, the Hon. G. E. 433 Din-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | tholic Soldiers, X14-ARRIVERS                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| ner to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Troops Agustic Sports,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Aquatic Sports,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Selem                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Agenthiv's General, Institution, Agent                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Sea-snake, fatal accident from the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Asiath Society, (Branch of Bom-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Period of .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | have \ 99 32, 231, (OF 1'8719) 40%                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Atslanta Stoamer, . 100, 444, 485                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Sessions, the Quarterly Criminal 153                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Author, a Nauve                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Slapping arrivals and departures, 60,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | B.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 118, 161, 238, 355, 384, 462, 490, 579                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Barada Affairs of 28, 548-(Gul-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Sheep bread of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Baroda, Affairs of, 28, 548—(Gul-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Sheep, breed of Sir Edward Paget, the 25, 98                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Rank of Bombay. 29, 216, 400, 949, 1049                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Sims. Mr. lottery prize to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Ball, Fancy, 384—(Bachelors') . 437                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Steam Communication, 97, 134                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Tail Cade Mativo                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| Petition, 538 — Committee 207—                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Berenice, Steamer, 30, 102, 213, 438                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| and Capt. Grindlay, 538—Meeting, 153                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Bell, Mr., of Poons, Audress to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Surf, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Roggers, Indian .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Supreme Court                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Bourout, Sanatory regulations at, . 100                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Taniora Government paper                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Thought Disturbances, the late with                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| I WINDLE COVERNMENT POPUL                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Though the rumoured insurreguous dans                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Test Tiado, mo nomo                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| I Hittings stores, torres                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Births, Marriages, and Deaths, 60, 121, 163, 244-5, 358, 467, 583-4                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 000 540                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Diath Native of importance                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Trichinopoly . 209, 340                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Birth, Native, of importance Bombay Gazette 27, 438                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Vacancies 538                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Bombay Streets, a call on the Police $15                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Vepery Scholarships                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Bombay, Improvement of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| w.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Bungalows Public                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| 25, 325, 431                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Burnes, Capt., Mission of, 32—Pur-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Wight, Dr. New Botanical Work by 434                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | chase of Shoen                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| · · ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Building improvements, regulations $14                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Building improvements, regulations $14                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| DOMBAY.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Building improvements, regulations $14C.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Pombay.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Building improvements, regulations $14  C.  Candeish                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| BOMBAY. A.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Candeish Cathedral Clock                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Candeish Cathodral Clock Cholers, the 31, 218, 332, 438                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meet-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes,  Caroli Ecclesiastical, Military,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval and Medical, 60, 120-1,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chase Challenge at                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 169 3 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Candeish Cathodral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Carriers Complaint                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583 Army, the: Bheundy disturbances,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief. 101, 212, 490, 548                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583 Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Candeish Cathodral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 490, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583 Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insur-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 490, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Ex-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills County Martial.—Lieut, C. F. Jack                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—By-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jacks                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regula-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 490, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baymardt. 463—Lient. E.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mu-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Candeish Cathodral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Incut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regula- tions, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitz-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Candeish Cathedrai Clock Cholera, the 31, 213, 332, 438 Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Incut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lient. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill,                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insur- rection of the Bheels, 545—Ex- pceted war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regula- tions, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mu- tual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitz- gerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the 31, 213, 332, 438 Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chese, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Incut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lient. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuyler, 65.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 581                                                                                                                                                     |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad 30 Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583 Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—Byculla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 490, 542 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lieut. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lieut. W. Loch, 65.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lieut. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuylor, 65.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 581 Criminal Sessions, the                                                                                                                                                 |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad . 30 Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—Byculla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib. — Magazine at Mazegon                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 68.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuyler, 68.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 681 Criminal Sessions, the Crown, Clerk of the                                                                                                                             |
| A. Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad . 30 Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—Byculla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib. — Magazine at Mazagon blown up, 213—Military Boards                                                                                                                                                                                   | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 542 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuyler, 65.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, Criminal Sessions, the Crown, Clerk of the Customs Act, new 328, 334                                                                                                       |
| Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib. — Magazine at Mazagon blown up, 213—Military Boards at Bombay and Madras, 545—Mi-                                                                                                                                                           | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 68.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuyler, 68.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 681 Criminal Sessions, the Crown, Clerk of the                                                                                                                             |
| Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—Byculla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib. — Magazine at Mazegon blown up, 213—Military Boards at Bombay and Madras, 545—Military Arrivals and Departures,                                                                                                                               | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 542 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuyler, 65.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, Criminal Sessions, the Crown, Clerk of the Customs Act, new 328, 334                                                                                                       |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insur- rection of the Bheels, 545—Ex- pccted war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regula- tions, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mu- tual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitz- gerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib. — Magazine at Mazegon blown up, 213—Military Boards at Bombay and Madras, 545—Mi- litary Arrivals and Departures, 243-4—Cols. Morrison and Pot-                                                                               | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the 31, 213, 332, 438 Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at . 28 Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Heut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuyler, 65.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 681 Crown, Clerk of the Customs Act, new Cutch,—Earthquake D.                                                                                       |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insur- rection of the Bheels, 545—Ex- pected war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regula- tions, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curnin, 28—Mu- tual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitz- gerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib. — Magazine at Mazegon blown up, 213—Military Boards at Bombay and Madras, 545—Mi- litary Arrivals and Departures, 243-4—Cols. Morrison and Pot- tinger,—438—Retirement of Capt.                                               | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 542 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 65.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient.— Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuylor, 65.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 581 Crown, Clerk of the Custome Act, new Cutch,—Earthquake  Dawks. Dawks. Dawks. Dawks. Dawks.                                                                            |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—Byculla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curain, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib.— Magazino at Mazagon blown up, 213—Military Boards at Bombay and Madras, 545—Military Arrivals and Departures, 243-4—Cols. Morrison and Pottinger,—438—Retirement of Capt. Morley, 32—Unequal Promotion,                                  | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lieut. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lieut. W. Loch, 65.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lieut. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuylor, 66.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 581 Criminal Sessions, the Crown, Clerk of the Custome Act, new Cutch,—Earthquake  D. Dawks. Dead Wall, Bombay Dead Wall, Bombay                                           |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—By- culla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curain, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib. — Magazine at Mazegon blown up, 213—Military Boards at Bombay and Madras, 545—Mi- litary Arrivals and Departures, 243-4—Cols. Morrison and Pot- tinger, 438—Retirement of Capt. Morley, 32—Unequal Promotion, 101—Promotions, 212—Move- | Candeish Cathedral Clock Cholera, the Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 548 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lieut. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lieut. W. Loch, 65.— Meut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lieut. Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuylor, 66.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 581 Criminal Sessions, the Crown, Clerk of the Custome Act, new Cutch,—Earthquake  D. Dawks. Dead Wall, Bombay Dead Wall, Bombay                                           |
| A.  Accountant-Gen.'s Department, the 331 Aden, surrender of for a coal depôt . 490 Ahmedabad Appointments, Promotions, Changes, &c., Civil, Ecclesiastical, Military, Naval. and Medical, 60, 120-1, 162-3, 241 to 243, 355 to 358, 384, 437, 464 to 467, 581 to 583  Army, the: Bheundy disturbances, the late, 30—Court Martial on Col. Baumgardt, 463—Rumoured insurrection of the Bheels, 545—Expected war with Burmah, 46—Byculla Club, 545—Cadet Regulations, 490, (Postings of Cornets, do.) 332, 543—Mr. Curain, 28—Mutual transfer of Major-Gens. Fitzgerald and Sleigh, 211—Forco in Kattewar, 548—Kattewar horses, ib.— Magazino at Mazagon blown up, 213—Military Boards at Bombay and Madras, 545—Military Arrivals and Departures, 243-4—Cols. Morrison and Pottinger,—438—Retirement of Capt. Morley, 32—Unequal Promotion,                                  | Candeish Cathodrai Clock Cholera, the 31, 213, 332, 438 Chamber of Commerce (annual meeting) Chapel, (Floating) Chess, Challenge at . Clergyman, an intolerant Cotton Crop, the Curious Complaint Commander in Chief, 101, 212, 496, 542 Conveyance from Bombay to the Hills Courts Martial.—Lient. C. F. Jackson, 119—Lient. W. Loch, 68.— Ineut. Fullerton, 212, 239—Lient.— Col. Baumgardt, 463—Lieut. E. Dalgety, 464—Brev. Capt. Hill, 580—Lieut. E. Cuylor, 68.— Gunners Boucher and Donovan, 581 Criminal Sessions, the Crown, Clerk of the Custome Act, new Cutch,—Earthquake  D. Dawks. Dead Wall, Bombay Districts, affray in, 29 (disastrous. |

| 15.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | PA                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Educational Society, native 438                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Maritime Law of India, meeting to                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Fuel a the delection                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| mily, the schooner                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | reform                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| uphrates, proposed new expedition                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Magisterial neglect                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| F.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Mouster, a faultless .                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| amine, subscriptions for the suffer-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Monsoon, second                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| are her                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Mutti, Signor; the growth of the                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| urlough Regulations, 214                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | with language in India                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| attought regulations,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | niulberry in India                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| G.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Muscat, Imaum of, William the                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| levernment of Bombay and inter-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Fourth present to                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| nal communication 100                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Munificent Undertaking                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Zovernment Notifications-Bombay                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | N.                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Nautical Meeting 4                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| a Warehousing Port, 60-Mili-                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
